PLANS ARE LAID FOR OCCUPATION

French Military Authorities Can Have Troops Ready at Mayence on Tuesday to March Into Ruhr Region

BOUNDARIES OF AREA HAVE BEEN FIXED

Reparations Commission Prepares Notification to Germany That Sum Demanded Is Now Overdue

MAYENCE, April 30.—Plans for occupation of the Ruhr region thus far perfected contemplate operations covering two days, according to French military authorities.

The territory to be occupied, subject, of course, to decisions reached by the Supreme Council in London, will extend to a line beginning at the confluence of the Wupper and Rhine rivers, running to the northeast, skirting and taking in the towns of Bolingen, Elberfeld, Barmen, Hagen and Unna. From Unna the boundary will extend northward to the Lippe River, and thence in a northwesterly direction to Wesel, on the Rhine.

The opinion is expressed at French military headquarters that complete mobilization of the class of 1919 will be required to effect the occupation, but it is not believed the mobilization order will be issued until late on Sunday. It is estimated by the French authorities that if the order should reach the troops on May 2, they would begin to arrive on the following day at Mayence, whence they would move into the Ruhr.

Actual occupation is thought unlikely before May 7.

The reparations commission has prepared a brief formal notification to Germany, which will be delivered tomorrow, reciting the fact that Germany has defaulted in the payment of 12,000,000,000 gold marks duo before May 1.

Germany's reply that one billion gold marks would be deposited in the Bank of France on April 30 has been a repetition of the one billion marks offer in the proposals sent to the United States.

A semi-official note issued in Berlin states that Dr. Simons, the Foreign Minister, tendered his resignation to President Ebert, but the latter refused it, says a dispatch from the German capital today.

PRINCE ABDUL'S SON FLEES TO NATIONALISTS

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 30.—Omar Farouk, 23 years old, son of Prince Abdul Medjid Effendi, heir-presumptive to the Turkish throne, escaped from this city Thursday and fled to Angora. He left a letter to his father, explaining his flight from Constantinople.

"I am unable," he continued, "to witness idly the invasion of the homeland by an imperialist enemy. I am going to fight."

It is expected the Angora Nationalist Government may renew its threat to supplant the Sultan.

SOVIET DETAINS CITIZENS OF U.S.

Wm. Flick Goes on Hunger Strike in Prison at Moscow —Engineer Keely Sentenced to Two Years

RIGA, April 30.—William Flick, American moving picture man, held captive in Russia, has declared a hunger strike in the prison in Moscow, where he is confined, according to information telegraphed here today by Captain Marion C. Cooper, the American airman who recently escaped from a Soviet Russian prison.

Captain Cooper, on his way to Warsaw, met a Polish diplomatic official who had just been released from the prison in which Flick is incarcerated.

The officer said Flick, on April 1, had been nine days without food. He was then unable to move from his cot, but was steadfast in his determination to starve to death unless he was freed, according to his recent companion in prison.

RIGA, April 30.—The United States Government has demanded release of prisoners held prisoner in Soviet Russia, says a dispatch from Moscow today.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Denial was made at the State Department today that any new demand had been sent to Russian Soviet authorities, directly or indirectly, for release of Americans held prisoner in Soviet Russia. The department has insisted that it was doing all in its power to procure release of the prisoners, but it has refused to deal directly with the Soviet authorities.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 28.—An American engineer named Keely, according to a Moscow wireless dispatch received here, has been sentenced by the Bolsheviki to two years' imprisonment for circulating false reports tending to discredit Soviet Russia.

Royal C. Keely, an American engineer, was arrested in Moscow last Spring. The charge against him was declared to be "economic espionage."

SOVIET BARS OUT WORKMEN OF U.S.

RIGA, April 30.—Admission to Soviet Russia of workmen from America will be permitted only when the Soviet Government can establish an immigration bureau in the United States, says The Petrograd Krasnaia Gazette, a copy of which was received.

The executive committee of the all-Russian Council of Trades Unions, it asserts, decided in this manner to halt the influx of unorganized workers from America.

VANCOUVER REVENUE COLLECTED IN APRIL

VANCOUVER, April 30.—Collections during April from all sources by the Customs office here, which recently absorbed the Inland Revenue department, approximated $1,000,000. Duties on imports contributed $764,223, as compared with $628,645 for the preceding March, and $1,078,470 a year ago. The excise taxes, including the sales tax, were responsible for another $206,068.

The balance is composed of $21,680 excise duties on spirits, tobacco and other items subject to Inland Revenue assessment and sundry collections, such as are received from fines and sale of stamps.

Revenue at Montreal

MONTREAL, April 30.—Custom and excise revenue for the month of April will total approximately eight and a half million dollars, according to a statement by W. S. Weldon, collector of customs for the port of Montreal.

SENATE ADOPTS KNOX RESOLUTION

First Step Taken Towards Formal Peace Between United States and Former Foes —Treaties Are to Follow

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The administration's first step toward placing the United States on a technical legal basis of peace was taken tonight by the Senate in adopting the Knox peace resolution.

The vote for adoption was forty-nine to twenty-three.

Three Democrats voted for the resolution, and although no Republicans voted against it, Senator Nelson of Minnesota was paired against it.

The resolution now goes to the House, with prospects of prompt action. It would repeal the war resolutions affecting Germany and Austria-Hungary, impound alien enemy property and reserve to the United States all rights and privileges under the treaty of Versailles and other peace treaties.

An effort to amend the resolution made by Senator Townsend, Republican, Michigan, who moved to strike out the clause repealing the war declaration and substitute a simple declaration of peace, was defeated forty-four to twenty-six.

Senator Lodge, in inaugurating the debate, told the Senate that the treaties with Germany and others with other nations with which the U.S. had been at war would follow the Knox resolution.

He also gave notice that the United States would not "abandon" the Allies.

Substitutes for the Knox resolution prepared by Senator King, Democrat, Utah, were not offered.

The vote on the peace resolution did not come until after 7 o'clock tonight, and was preceded by tense partisan clashes. The Republicans stood almost solidly behind the measure, and all but five Democrats voted or were paired against it.

OIL REGULATIONS SLIGHTLY RELAXED

OTTAWA, April 30.—An amendment to the oil regulations issued today provide that in view of transportation difficulties being encountered by lessees, the Minister may, upon the lessee proving to his satisfaction that he has incurred a substantial expenditure in an endeavor to comply with the regulations under which the lease may have been issued, grant such lessee extension of time for a period not exceeding two years from the date of the lease within which to install on his location machinery and equipment suitable for carrying on prospecting operations.

The regulations, before this amendment, called for the installation of such machinery within one year from the time the lease was issued.

Levis Votes "Dry"

QUEBEC, April 30.—The plebiscite opened in the city of Levis on Monday last to decide whether or not the provincial prohibition act should come into effect, came to a close yesterday and proved a victory for prohibitionists by a majority of 307 votes. The total number of votes was 1,591, of which 949 were against the repeal of prohibition, and 642 in favor of it.

An amendment to the act incorporating the Red Cross Society sets forth one of the purposes of the society as follows:

"In time of peace or war to carry on and assist in work for the improvement of health, the prevention of disease and the mitigation of suffering throughout the world."

The Canadian society will hold a membership campaign in May and June.

NATIONALIST TURKS MURDER OPPONENTS

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 30.—Anzevour Pasha, former Circassian bandit, who some time ago enlisted with the Constantinople Government in opposition to the Turkish Nationalists, has been executed following a court-martial at Angora.

A secret "committee of revenge" is said to have been organized by the Nationalists to carry out the sentences imposed upon other anti-Nationalists during the Angora court-martial.

Damad Ferid Pasha, former Grand Vizier, is one of the men sentenced to death, and has not left his palace on the Bosphorus for the past four months.

B.C. HAS GOOD CASE ON RATES

Mr. McGeer, Counsel for Government, Says It Will Not Suffer Because of Course Taken on Prairies

VANCOUVER, B.C., April 30.—British Columbia will not be adversely affected by the withdrawal of the prairie provinces from the equalization of freight rates agitation, emphatically declared Mr. Gerald G. McGeer, who is handling the case for the Provincial Government, upon his arrival in Vancouver this morning.

Mr. McGeer was reticent in referring to the work of the Board of Railway Commissioners in Calgary and other points east of B.C. He did not mind saying, however, that British Columbia was as weik if not better, off for the attitude now taken by the prairie provinces. The Province had never been dependent upon them for support, he pointed out, and was, if anything, in a better position to go ahead and fight its case than ever before. He had always expected opposition to the Province's claims from certain quarters on the prairie as strong as that due from other parts of the Dominion.

While Mr. McGeer was reluctant to deal with the progress of the case of the prairie provinces, it is understood he is thoroughly satisfied with the stand taken by their associated boards of trade.

JOB PRINTERS STRIKE FOR 44-HOUR WEEK

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., April 30.—Local officers of the International Typographical Union announced tonight that approximately 150 printers employed in job plants here would refuse to return to work Monday, the employing printers having refused to institute a 44-hour week.

GRAND FORKS, N. D., April 30.—Printers, pressmen and bookbinders employed in the job printing plants here will strike because their demand for a 44-hour week was refused by employers. Members of the Bookbinders' Union did not decide until late today to strike.

HUDSON'S BAY STORE MANAGER

Mr. G. A. H. Porte, Who Has Been Associated With Company for 23 Years, Will Be Manager of Victoria Branch

Pursuant to the company's policy of promoting within the organization, where possible, Mr. H. E. Burbidge, stores commissioner of the Hudson's Bay Company, has appointed Mr. G. A. H. Porte, at present assistant manager of the company's Vancouver store, to the position of manager of the new store on Douglas Street, which will be opened to the public in August next.

Mr. Porte has had a long and varied career with the Hudson's Bay Company, having joined the organization on April 12, 1898, at Vancouver as customs clerk. Promotion was not long in coming to Mr. Porte, as in November of the same year he was given the position of ledger keeper, and has since that time made steady progress up the ladder of success, passing through the positions of credit manager and superintendent until reaching his present position as assistant manager of probably the finest department store on the Pacific Coast. Mr. Porte has held this position for the past ten years, and, when the splendid organization and methods in vogue at the Vancouver branch are considered, it can only be said in fairness that great credit is due to Mr. Porte for the manner in which he has carried out his part in the building up of the organization. Mr. Porte's ability as an organizer and manager have long been known to those above him, and, when the opportunity presented itself, he was selected as the man to build up and control a similar large organization in the city of Victoria, and takes the position of manager at this point backed by the fullest confidence on the part of the company's officials in Canada and London that he will make a success of the business and gain the confidence of the public of Victoria.

Mr. Porte is a son of the late Captain A. W. Porte, of London, Ontario. He was born in the year 1877, coming to Vancouver in 1898, where he has made his home and a large circle of friends, who will regret to see him depart from that city, but will bid him good-bye wishing him every success in his new position. Not only has Mr. Porte endeared himself to numerous people in his private life, but the employees of the company at Vancouver have come to look upon him with respect and admiration, and he will leave Vancouver with the good wishes for his success of all those with whom he has come in contact. Mr. Porte will take up his residence in Victoria about the middle of June next, and will at once commence his duties in connection with the store here.

DAIL EIREANN TAKES ACTION ON ELECTION

DUBLIN, April 30. — Augustine Stack, "minister for home affairs" in the Irish republican parliament, today issued a proclamation declaring the Home Rule Act to be illegal as a foreign statute, but saying it would be recognized for the elections to enable the people's will again to be demonstrated.

Saying that the senate would mostly be a nominated body and that election to it would serve no useful purpose, the Dail Eireann orders county councils and other bodies not to participate in elections to the senate.

Day's Violence in New York

NEW YORK, April 30.—Eight persons lost their lives in and about New York today, in a series of holdups, robberies and acts of violence. One man was shot by a policeman, and in only two other cases were arrests made.

ALLIES ARE HOLDING DIVERGENT OPINIONS ABOUT REPARATION

INCOME TAX RUSH IS HEAVY IN REGINA

REGINA, April 30.—For the first time in the history of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, constables of that force were called upon to act as traffic officers here today. The squad that has been guarding Government dollars pouring in a steady stream into the coffers of the income tax inspector was forced to line up long queues of citizens who pressed about the building in an effort to file their 1920 returns.

"It is not a rush; it is an avalanche," said the Inspector.

COLLISION TRIAL IS TRANSFERRED

Case of Capt. Marden, Pilot of Governor, to Be Heard at San Francisco — Capt. Alwen's Evidence

SEATTLE, April 30. Hearing of the charges against Capt. H. S. Marden, pilot of the steamship Governor, which was rammed and sunk by the freighter West Hartland on April 1, will be held at San Francisco, it was announced tonight by Capt. William Fisher, supervising steamboat inspector of this district. The transfer of the hearing to San Francisco is made because witnesses and Captain Marden are there. The hearing has been delayed by the illness of Capt. Marden, but Capt. J. Bulger, supervising inspector of the San Francisco district, will preside at the hearing.

Captain John Alwen, master of the West Hartland, testified at the hearing of charges against Third Officer Arne Hage, of the Governor, before the U.S. steamboat inspectors here today, that the collision between the two vessels could have been avoided had the pilot of the Governor put his ship hard to starboard instead of reversing his engines.

Captain Alwen occupied the witness stand throughout the day today, and gave a detailed description of the collision. He declared the Governor could have avoided the collision up to the time that vessel answered the West Hartland's whistle signal at 12.01 a.m., three minutes before the ships struck. He said that until he heard the Governor's three whistles indicating reversed engines, he had no idea what the officers of the Governor were doing to avoid a collision.

It is expected the hearing will be completed early next week.

BUILDING IN OTTAWA MAY COME TO STOP

OTTAWA, April 30. Indications today point to a general strike Monday of all crafts in the building and construction industry of this city. The contractors are insisting that the schedule which they submitted, and which calls for wage reductions of 10 cents an hour for most of the trades, must be accepted. The unions are said to be equally determined not to accept a cut in the wages.

Work on the Parliament Buildings will not be affected, as it was announced this afternoon that the present scale would be continued by the Public Works Department until a settlement was reached.

Fire in Artillery Stables

EL PASO, Texas, April 30.—Fire tonight destroyed the stables of the 82nd U.S. field artillery at Fort Bliss. The fire extended to the ammunition stores of the regiment and exploding shells and small arms ammunition endangered the lives of the firemen. City firemen estimated the loss at $35,000.

ROME, April 30. — The Cabinet Council today decided to meet the May Day demonstrations with firmness and put down violence.

Point of Difference Is in Regard to Immediate Occupation of Ruhr District—France and Belgium Wish Action at Once—Britain and Italy Favor Delay

WANT ULTIMATUM SENT TO GERMANY

Hope Is Held That Agreement May Be Reached at Supreme Council Meeting Today—French Delegation Much Dissatisfied With the Outcome of Yesterday's Proceedings

LONDON, April 30.—A sharp difference of opinion between the French on the one side, and the British and Italians on the other, arose today at the meeting of the Supreme Council to consider enforcement of the peace treaty and the steps to be taken to enforce payment of the reparations by Germany.

Premier Briand of France, who had the support of M. Jaspar, Belgian Foreign Minister, made a strong fight for the Paris plan, which includes immediate occupation of the Ruhr region, while Premier Lloyd George and Count Sforza, Italian Foreign Minister, brought up new proposals, under which the conference should decide how the obligation was to be satisfied and then issue an ultimatum, which would have a brief time limit, to Germany. Experts tonight are considering the two schemes, and will report Sunday morning.

So serious was the situation considered that Mr. Lloyd George called an immediate meeting of the British cabinet.

Today's meeting of the Supreme Council was a protracted one.

Only today was it made known that the British had a new scheme to offer, which was communicated to M. Briand at noon. It was explained that the new move was made owing to the finding of the reparations commission that the German indebtedness was £6,000,000,000.

This, it was said, altered the situation, as it was necessary in applying the penalties that the provisions of the treaty should be observed.

It was no surprise to find Count Sforza supporting the British plan, as it had been known Italy was opposed to occupation of the Ruhr unless absolutely necessary.

Tonight's meeting of the experts may find a way out of the difficulty and tomorrow the Supreme Council may compose the differences or find a middle course, but the diplomats took a serious view of the situation, for if no agreement is reached, M. Briand is faced with the prospect of having France advance into the Ruhr alone or at best with the Belgians, or placing his Cabinet in jeopardy.

It was said after the reparations question was disposed of that some of the Allies expressed a desire to discuss Italy's alleged breach of faith in entering into a treaty with the Turkish Nationalists.

The French delegation is dissatisfied with today's conference. The present feeling of the delegation is that France, with Belgium, will have to act alone in the occupation of the Ruhr if the Allies fail to approve such a step.

AMBASSADOR HARVEY TALKS OF ENGLAND

NEW YORK, April 30. Less of tentative compromise and more durable agreements between this country and England is what is most needed by both countries, Col. George Harvey, newly confirmed ambassador to Great Britain, told the Lotus Club tonight.

He said he had received many criticisms and hints on diplomatic usage, but his final instructions from President Harding were to remind him that all partisanship should be abandoned "at the water's edge."

"In my case," he declared, "I am unable to perceive why a citizen of the U.S. cannot represent his country without appearing either a sycophant or a swashbuckler, nor how, as a guest, he can fail to evidence appreciation of the exceptional hospitality invariably extended by a hostess such as we all know England to be."

LOOKS ON NAVY AS INSURANCE

Secretary Denby Emphasizes Its Necessity as Defence Measure -Gives Illustration From Britain's Sea Strength

DETROIT, April 30.—The United States navy was described as an assurance against disaster by Secretary Denby in an address tonight.

"If the flag is ever lowered on the sea," he said, "prepare to lower it on land. Failure to maintain the navy will spell absolute disaster.

"You cannot send an army over unguarded seas."

Secretary Denby referred to what he said was the frequently heard complaint that the navy is an expensive institution. It was necessary insurance, he said, adding:

"All the cost of the navies of all the world was saved by Great Britain in one terrible week."

"You know and I know," he continued, "that if they had not had that navy there would be no England today."

A friendly greeting awaits any nation that extends to the United States the hand of friendship, he said, "but no nation that comes to us with intent to do us harm shall go unscathed," he added.

DEMOCRATS GET VOTE FOR ARMY REDUCTION

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Holding a solid front against a Republican split, Democrats forced through the House today an amendment to the army appropriation bill cutting down the enlisted force to 150,000 men. The Kahn proposal for a bigger force never got a vote.

The bill as approved by Secretary Weeks provided for 168,000 men.

There was no certainty, however, that the 150,000 figure would stand, for the vote today was in committee of the whole.

The amendment for reduction of the enlisted strength to 150,000 was offered by Representatives Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina. The vote was 109 to 82.

Ford Semi-Monthly Bonuses

DETROIT, April 30.—Plans have been practically completed by the Ford Motor Company for the payment of bonuses to employees semi-monthly instead of annually, as heretofore. The plan was devised, it is understood, to assure payment of bonuses to such employees as might leave the company's service before the end of a year. Bonus payments for 1920 totalled approximately $7,000,000.

Jewelry Theft in Seattle

SEATTLE, April 30. — Jewelry valued at $3,135 was stolen early today from the apartment of R. U. Peterson, according to police reports. The loot included a diamond sunburst worth $1,500, diamond rings and other jewelry and $10 in cash.

Washington's Action Depends on Council

Allies Are Now Acquainted With Point of View of U. S. Government on Reparation Question —Uncertainty as to Germany Making Move to Allow of Further Discussion

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The next move in the reparations controversy by the American Government will be the outcome of the Supreme Council. The Allied Governments have been made acquainted with the American point of view as a result of conferences which Secretary Hughes has had with the diplomatic representatives of those governments.

This view is that Germany must pay to the limit of her ability, but that the imposition of such terms as would prevent her economic recuperation should be guarded against.

This is accord with the views of the Allies.

Events may so shape themselves, it was said, that a further move by the United States will be unnecessary. Should the Supreme Council decide that the German proposals are of such a character as to form the basis for renewed discussions, it was explained that it would not be necessary for the United States to transmit the German offer to the Allies, as they already have received copies from Berlin.

If the Supreme Council decides, however, that the offer is unacceptable, it is understood that some further move by the American Government might be expected. It is suggested that since Germany already has indicated semi-officially a willingness to put forward modified proposals, it may be that the United States would suggest such a course.

MANITOBA FARMERS DRAW UP PLATFORM

WINNIPEG, April 30.—Co-operative goodwill, the common good as opposed to the seeking of class advantage, and the forward attitude, are among the principles embodied in the tentative platform of the United Farmers of Manitoba, issued today by W. R. Wood, secretary.

Direct legislation, proportional representation for grouped constituencies and the preferential ballot in single member constituencies are among the principles endorsed by the farmers, as well as the equality of sexes before the law, the simplification of legal and court procedure, a more rigid enforcement of the act compelling school attendance up to the age of 16, continued encouragement of the development of the munipal school board system, the development of university facilities to increase the opportunity for practical service to the people of the province, the practical application through all the educational system of the ideal of preparing for social relationships, co-operative service and duties, public care of the health of the people and other principles.

RAIL ACCIDENTS TAKE 254 LIVES

Figures Given in Commissioners' Report for Past Year—Injured Number 2,330—Other Statistics Furnished

OTTAWA, April 30.—A total of 254 persons were killed and 2,330 injured during the year ending December 31, 1920, according to the sixteenth report of the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada, tabled in the House by the Minister of Railways.

During the year ending December 31, 1920, 2,093 accidents were reported to the board. Of the total number killed 29 per cent were trespassers and five per cent of the injured were also trespassers.

Accidents at highway crossings included 53 at crossings where gates, bells or watchmen already gave protection. Sixteen persons were killed and 51 injured at these protected crossings. There were 138 accidents at unprotected crossings, covering 52 persons killed and 163 injured.

The accidents at highway crossings in which automobiles figure is still on the increase. These number 116 for the year 1920, as compared with 60 for the nine months ending December 31, 1919, an increase of 40 per cent, in round numbers.

A total of 1,732 fires from all causes were reported as originating within 300 feet of the railway lines in forest areas subject to the board's jurisdiction, or an increase of 405 fires over the previous year. These fires burned over a total area of 105,-653 acres and caused an estimated property damage of $298,844.

During the year covered in the report the board held 73 public sittings and covered 527,430 miles to hold those sittings.

The necessary hearings and traveling in connection therewith took 52 of every 100 working days.

Fifty-two general orders were issued by the board and five general circulars to railway companies. A total of 1,292 orders were issued during the year. In the traffic department 67,653 tariffs were filed, making a grand total of 944,747 tariffs since February 1, 1904.

ONTARIO IS WET IN ONE REGARD

Heavy Rains in Greater Part of Province Give Serious Concern to Farmers—Wet Weather Prevents Seeding

TORONTO, April 30.—Make Old Ontario "land dry." This is the general demand in many parts of the Province, particularly from the farmer and the market gardener, likewise the city dweller with gardening propensities.

Throughout most of the lower part of the Province, the crop situation, while by no means gloomy, is sufficiently serious to cause the farmers considerable apprehension. Many Fall wheat fields are inundated and have the appearance of rice marshes. From 50 to 75 per cent of the Spring grain areas and most of the root crop fields are still unseeded, and in many cases unplowed.

Rain has fallen almost incessantly in all parts of the Province for nearly a week, making seasonable agricultural operations impossible. The season, however, is still young, and there are great hopes that with an early dry spell of some days' duration, there would be occasion for much optimism in regard to grain and root crops.

Fruit trees are as a rule blossoming well, and there is promise of a good yield of small fruits, although some of the more venturesome varieties were badly nipped by frost a few days ago.

The weather, although wet, has been mild in most parts of the Province, giving young livestock full benefit of the excellent early pasturage.

ACQUITTED GERMANS ASK WIDE PUBLICITY

BERLIN, April 30.—The Reichstag yesterday accepted the second reading of the amendment to the statute covering the trial of war criminals.

The amendment directs the state's attorney to "give the widest publicity" to cases where information has established the innocence of men, the names of whom were on the original lists furnished by the Allies, and also those who may be acquitted at their trial.

The amendment was proposed on behalf of alleged war criminals in view of the wide publicity of their names in enemy countries.

The third reading of the amendment was postponed on account of objections by the communists.

Preacher's Sentence

WOODSTOCK, N.B., April 30.—Fourteen years in the penitentiary was the sentence imposed this morning on Charles Steeves, a Pentecostal minister, who was found guilty last night at the assizes of having improper relations with a girl under 14 years of age. In delivering sentence, Judge Harry said that had he wanted, he could have sentenced Steeves to life imprisonment and a whipping, and yet slept with a quiet conscience.

MR. CRERAR IS GIVEN CHILLY RECEPTION

FREDERICTON, N.B., April 30.—The audience assembled at Marysville last night to hear Hon. T. A. Crerar, national leader of the Farmers' party, numbered only 33 persons. Nobody would act as chairman, and Mr. Crerar had to act himself. He and E. W. Stairs, the Farmers' candidate, spoke, and the meeting lasted only half an hour.

Marysville is a cotton mill town, the Canadian Cotton, Ltd., having one of the largest mills in Canada located there.

At Nassawakis, the other place where a meeting was billed, the audience numbered about 50. It is a rural village only a few miles from Fredericton.

This afternoon Mr. Crerar speaks at the Farmers' party campaign headquarters in Fredericton, and this evening he will return to Ottawa.

PROPOSES PLAN FOR HOME RULE

Bill Introduced in Commons Would Provide for Local Legislatures in England, Scotland and Wales

LONDON, April 30.—The Times today devotes an editorial to the bill providing for the relief of the British Parliament from undue pressure of business by establishing local bicameral legislatures for England, Scotland and Wales, with powers generally similar to those of the new Irish parliaments which it is hoped to set up presently.

The bill, which was introduced by Hon. Murray Macdonald, member for Falkirk, has, The Times says, faced the problems of reform arising from the present system under which the electorate feel the value of their vote has shrunk in proportion with the growth of the country's population and affairs, and sectional interests intrude more and more upon the consideration of questions of national welfare.

The bill would divide the field of British politics into two distinct compartments, one having to do with national affairs, and the other with local affairs, and in this respect the prospect opened up is far from unattractive, The Times concludes.

THINKS UNEMPLOYMENT WILL NOW IMPROVE

WINNIPEG, April 30.—W. G. Fraser was chosen as chairman of the Prairie branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association at the annual meeting here last night. J. W. Ackland was elected vice-chairman.

D. J. Dyson, the retiring chairman, in presenting his report, declared that he believed the unemployment situation, which never was so serious in the West as in the East, had passed the worst period.

Mr. Dyson was elected a member of the executive.

GRAIN IN STORE SHOWS DECREASE

Reports From Western Elevators Received by Bureau of Statistics—Stocks Diminish by Four Million Bushels

OTTAWA, April 30.—According to returns received at the Dominion bureau of statistics for the week ending April 22, 1921, the quantity of grain in store at the different public elevators throughout Canada has decreased by 4,249,398 bushels in wheat; oats, 1,903,018 bushels; barley, 824,386 bushels; flax, 162,901 bushels; rye, 199,703 bushels, as compared with the previous week.

In the western country elevators a decrease is shown in wheat of 201,-201 bushels; oats, 984,500 bushels; barley, 289,470 bushels, and flax, 54,-267 bushels.

In the interior terminal elevators, decreases are shown in wheat of 561,-106 bushels; oats, 177,246 bushels; barley, 8,131 bushels, and rye, 944 bushels.

In the public terminal elevators at Fort William and Port Arthur decreases are shown in wheat of 2,243,-652 bushels; oats, 445,007 bushels; barley, 366,448 bushels; flax, 89,200 bushels, and rye, 24,727 bushels.

MEAN TRICK PLAYED ON WALKING SIGNBOARD

DES MOINES, Ia., April 30.—Charles Cain makes his living as a walking advertising signboard. For several days he paraded the streets of Des Moines with bare knees and wearing a skirt of imitation dried grass and hay, advertising a theatre. He closed his contract suddenly last night when an unidentified person touched a lighted match to the lower part of the skirt. Firemen finally caught him and extinguished the blaze. Today he was confined to his bed—face down.

TRAFFIC RESTORED EAST OF PORT ARTHUR

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., April 30.—Traffic on the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway which has been tied up since last Wednesday night on account of washouts east of Port Arthur, was resumed at daylight this morning.

The three trains from the east crossed over the repaired track and eastbound trains held at Nipigon were permitted to move.

Mexico's Foreign Debt

MEXICO CITY, April 30.—Payment of Mexico's foreign debt was again discussed by President Obregon and his Cabinet yesterday. The official statement issued at the conclusion of the meeting did not make any mention of the Cabinet reaching a definite decision.

SHOOTING CAUSES DUBLIN DISORDER

Raiding of Freeman's Journal Follows Shot at Police—Train Ambushed in County Waterford

DUBLIN, April 30.—Disorder reigned in this city for several hours last night following the firing of a shot at police auxiliaries near the office of The Freeman's Journal. Auxiliaries later raided the newspaper plant, alleging that the shot had been fired from an upper story of the building, but today's issue of The Journal stated that no arrests were made and that no evidence was obtained to support the charge that the person who fired the shot was in the building. Pedestrians declared that the shot was fired from the sidewalk on Townsend Street nearby.

About the same hour a shooting affair occurred on Brunswick Street, the disorder extending as far as College Green, several hundred yards away. The streets were crowded at the time, and the people rushed shrieking and panic-stricken to shelter.

DUBLIN, April 30.—A train carrying military and civilians was ambushed last night near Kilmacthomas, County Waterford, it was announced at headquarters today. The troops left the train and with machine guns and hand grenades dispersed the ambushing party. Three members of the attacking force and two soldiers were wounded.

CORK, April 30.—Sean Macswiney, brother of the late Lord Mayor Macswiney, with two other Sinn Feiners under internment escaped today from the Spike Island internment camp. They overpowered the guard while working outside the fort and seized a motor boat on the shore.

SUPREME COUNCIL BEGINS ITS TASK

Representatives of Allied Countries Assemble in London and Hold First Meeting—Premiers in Conference

LONDON, April 30.—The Allied Supreme Council met here at 4 o'clock this afternoon to begin consideration of the measures to be adopted in connection with the German reparations situation. The meeting was held in the official residence of Mr. Lloyd George, the British Prime Minister, in Downing Street.

Mr. Lloyd George, Lord Curzon and Sir Henry Wilson, chief of the British Imperial Staff, represented Great Britain, while Premier Briand, Louis Loucheur, Minister of Devastated Regions, and Phillippe Berthelot, general secretary of the Foreign Office, represented France, with Marshal Foch and General Weygand as their military advisers.

Count Sforza, Foreign Minister, and the Marquis Della Torreta were the Italian representatives. M. Jasper, Foreign Minister, and M. Theunis, Minister of Finance, represented Belgium, and Baron Hayashi, Ambassador to Great Britain, represented Japan.

Preliminary Conferences

The formal meeting of the council was preceded by a preliminary conference between Premier Briand and Mr. Lloyd George at the latter's official residence.

Mr. Lloyd George returned to London from Chevres Court this morning, going immediately to Downing Street. At the same time the British ministers charged with studying questions concerning reparations, Sir Laming Worthington-Evans, Secretary for War; Winston Spencer Churchill, Colonial Secretary, and Edwin S. Montagu, Secretary for India, met Lord d'Abernon, British Ambassador to Germany, who has just returned from Berlin, at the Colonial ministry.

The conversation, during which Lord d'Abernon gave the ministers the information he had learned in Berlin concerning the German proposals, lasted an hour.

Later the ministers conferred with Mr. Lloyd George, who was accompanied by Edward Shortt, Secretary for Home Affairs, and Sir Maurice Sankey, secretary to the committee on Imperial defence.

Premier Briand's Arrival

Premier Briand arrived at 12:30 o'clock with M. Kammerer, his official interpreter. Shortly afterward the British ministers left Mr. Lloyd George.

The preliminary conference between the French Premier and Mr. Lloyd George lasted a half-hour. They discussed the reparations, and Mr. Lloyd George, according to French reports, gave his entire approval to the general plan of action by the Allies in case of the failure of Germany to give satisfactory guarantees by May 1.

He raised some objections, however, against certain methods of applying the plan, particularly the tax on coal.

Hopes for Adjustment

Hope for an adjustment of the present situation by common accord was expressed by Count Sforza, the Italian Foreign Minister, who arrived in London during the morning.

"I do not deny that the situation is a serious one," he said, "but the ultimate aim of the Entente powers is the same, and therefore, I have not lost hope of a settlement being reached in common accord."

"Italy," he continued, "is quickly recovering by her own efforts and sacrifices from what a year ago was regarded as a very serious economic and financial situation. If only for this reason, I regard peace as a supreme necessity."

Official Statement

After adjournment of the Allied Supreme Council this evening an official statement was issued which read:

"Mr. Lloyd George presided at the first meeting of the inter-allied conference, which was devoted to examination of the situation created by the total failure of Germany to execute the terms of the Treaty of Versailles in respect to disarmament, punishment of war criminals and reparations.

"The conference adjourned after deciding upon an immediate meeting of the committee of experts to study measures and guarantees."

ADDS TO TOTAL OF REPARATIONS

Commission Decides to Tack Twelve Billion Marks Due Tomorrow to Main Sum—German Property Abroad

PARIS, April 30.—The reparations commission has decided to notify the German mission here that the twelve billion gold marks remaining due on the twenty billion gold marks which the peace treaty provides shall be paid by tomorrow are to be added to the total of 132,000,000,000 marks fixed by the commission as the amount of war damages assessed against Germany, thus making the grand total 144,000,000,000 gold marks. In addition to this there are the acts of restitution provided for by the Treaty of Versailles.

The commission has notified Germany that the petroleum and mining interests owned by the German Government, or German nationals, in Russia, Austria, Hungary, Bulgaria, Turkey and the territory ceded under the peace treaties must be included with the other public utility interests or concessions to be transferred to the reparations commission under Article 260 of the Treaty of Versailles.

The German war burdens commission has contended that the oil and mining interests were not included in the provisos of this article. The Germans had offered only the stock interests held in Germany in the enterprises affected, while the commission demands the turning over also of the German bond holdings.

Information has been received by the French delegation to the meeting of the Supreme Allied Council that unofficial United States advisers at Berlin are urging members of the German Cabinet to accept the Allied terms as laid down in the agreement reached in Paris last January. In this agreement the Allies demanded 226,000,000,000 gold marks in addition to the collection of a 12 per cent export tax on German goods.

Baron d'Abernon, British ambassador to Germany, has arrived from Berlin with the most recent decisions from Dr. Simons as to what Germany can do. Details of the views of the German Foreign Minister were not disclosed, and it was said the ambassador would make a report on them when he saw Mr. Lloyd George today.

MORE CHARGES LAID AGAINST KOLTERMAN

Stuff Found on His Premises Has Been Identified by Several Motor Owners—Good Work by Detectives

In the arrest on Friday evening of Frederick Kolterman by Detectives Macdonald and Rogers, the police have recovered a large quantity of motor parts and accessories which have been stolen during the past two months or more. Yesterday half a dozen motor owners visited police headquarters and identified part of the articles which the police, acting on search warrants, secured from Kolterman's garage at 756 Yates Street, and in the basement of the man's home on McCaskill Street, Victoria West.

Among the stuff are nearly two dozen metal motor car rims, many inner tubes, tires, seats, hundreds of tools, headlights, pumps and a host of other articles. Included in these were parts which were identified by Mr. A. C. Ralfs as having at one time been attached to his motor car which, about a month ago, was stolen, and later found near the Chinese Cemetery, practically stripped of everything movable. Also Mrs. Anderson, whose car suffered a like fate three weeks ago, being found on a side road near the Six-Mile House, with tires, cushions, gasoline tank cap and many other parts gone, has identified a number of parts as having belonged to her car.

Among the inner tubes found in Kolterman's possession were some bearing the names of the owners. It is customary for repair shops, when tubes or other articles are being repaired, to write the name of the owner thereon for identification purposes. Among the tubes held by the police were those bearing the name of Dr. Scott Moncrieff and other motor owners, all of whom have at various times had tires stolen from their cars.

All yesterday morning and afternoon there was a steady parade of motor owners to police headquarters anxious to ascertain if any of their missing property was among the stuff secured by the detectives. The value of the articles already identified runs up into the hundreds of dollars.

In addition to the charge on which he was arrested on Friday, that of being in possession of a motor tire, the property of Mr. C. D. Holmes, knowing it to have been stolen, Kolterman, who had been allowed out on bail of $1,000, was re-arrested yesterday afternoon on two similar charges sworn to by Mr. Ralfs and Mrs. Anderson. The charge laid by the former covers five tires, five rims, two side curtains, one crank handle, two headlights, tools and other accessories. Mrs. Anderson's complaint covers tools, rims, distributor head, floor boards, radiator cap and other parts.

As the work of identification goes on still other charges will be laid against Kolterman, the police stated yesterday.

THE IMPERIAL CONFERENCE.

It was never supposed that the Imperial Conference, to be held during the coming Summer in London, would be anything other than a consultative meeting. Every time such a gathering is held certain sections in different quarters of the Empire strive to make it the subject of political discussion, and impugn motives which are farthest from the thoughts of participants in the Conference. No responsible statesman has ever advanced the idea that there should be an Imperial Cabinet that would have governing powers over imperial matters. The suggestion is too preposterous to be entertained, for it is forbidden by the character of the constitutions of the Overseas Dominions. Much ink has been spilled, and much time exhausted, with comments upon and misinterpretations of the duties of an Imperial Conference. Only that the interests discussed at such a gathering are vastly more important, the power that is wielded by an Imperial Conference is purely of the suggestive variety, and differs but little from an inter-Provincial gathering of Premiers, who might discuss courses of action with a view to co-operative effort.

The idea that the Imperial Council is a power within the Empire, and that it infringes on any of the autonomous rights of any part of the imperial domain should be dispensed with for all time. It was never intended to usurp any of the rights of any of the Overseas Dominions. It is an inter-Imperial convention at which common interests are discussed, at which there is an interchange of ideas on subjects of Empire interest, and where suggestions for a unified defence are considered. Decisions may be reached, but in every case they are tentative and incapable of translation into law unless they obtain the sanction of the different units of the British Empire. This is the practice of the past. It is the practice that will prevail during the Summer conference, and there is no intention, in authorized quarters to suggest anything that will reverse the course of procedure. The limitations on the purposes and powers of an Imperial Conference are constitutionally imposed, and could not be changed without the unanimous consent of the Empire as a whole. That consent has never been sought, and never will be to the extent that it might impair autonomous powers.

An imperial cabinet would be an impossibility if it were to have governing powers, for it would imply a departure from the system of representative government upon which the whole British constitution is based. It would be impossible, for each of its members must remain responsible to some section of the population, and any one section might refuse to endorse decisions, so that immediately there would be cabinet disruption. We do not think that an imperial cabinet has ever been regarded as within the scope of practical politics, and if the term was used it never implied that the body should have any other than consultative powers. An imperial cabinet would infer, as its natural corollary, an imperial parliament, and the geographical position of the Empire would make this an unworkable body, and, indeed, an organization which no part of the Empire is prepared to accept.

It is an excellent idea for the leaders of Britain and the Overseas Dominions to meet in conference at intervals and discuss matters of mutual interest. The ideals of the race are furthered in this way, if only in an educative sense. It is regrettable, however, that such gatherings should be purposely misinterpreted by those who are seeking to achieve political ends and party aggrandisement. Tactics such as these have a bad effect for they tend to create the impression that new ties are necessary to cement the imperial domain. The ties of common blood, of sympathy, of interests that are alike, the ideal of authority and the traditions of the race are sufficient to bind the Empire. The more the different Dominions come to know each other and the Mother Country the closer will the common understanding be. It is to promote this understanding that Imperial Conferences are held. Their purpose is not and never has been sinister, as some politicians would have us believe.

THE SCHOOL BY-LAWS.

The decision to indulge in a campaign of education respecting the school needs, which have led to the desire to force money by-laws to a vote, would imply a belief among certain members of the School Board that the property owners need to be educated in some particulars. What the School Board is in a position to tell the people, more than they already know, we are unaware. Possibly, however, it is its intention to engage technical education experts during "propaganda week." In its efforts the School Board may secure the assistance of public-spirited organizations, but we are inclined to think the latter will hardly be fulfilling their function in the community if they array themselves on one side of an issue about which there are clear cut differences of opinion among the people. The property owners will be called upon to face increased taxation this year. They should be relieved from propaganda which, if successful, would increase that taxation still more.

The time is not ripe for the extension of technical educational facilities in our schools. The School Board has added over $60,000 to the budget of last year for ordinary expenditures, and this increase has not been caused, altogether, by the growth of school population. We doubt if the added pupils call for an expenditure of over $15,000, and, if it should happen that the Board indulges in the propaganda that is promised, it would do well to point to the beneficial results it expects to accrue from its extraordinary additions to ordinary expenditure. We have pointed out before that in Seattle the Board of Education is reducing its estimates by nearly $1,000,000. In technical education alone the reduction is to be $70,000, for it seems that Seattle's experience is that such education absorbs too much of the time of the pupils, and often time which could be more profitably employed. Thus, Seattle is changing its methods, not to the detriment of education, but so that on the whole it may be an improved system, and, in the process, it is found that a large sum of money can be saved. Victoria, on her part, wants by-laws submitted to provide moneys some of which is to extend a system which Seattle is abandoning in part, because experience has proved it does not possess the merits proclaimed by its advocates.

We do not dispute that there is value in technical education. What we contend is that it can be overemphasized to the detriment of the student, and to the extent of promoting a tendency to take a narrow outlook on life. The Victoria schools, because of the financial circumstances that prevail, and because of the economic situation in British Columbia, are amply equipped with facilities for technical education at this time. There are others who, with just cause, may lay claim to be thinking in the interests of the children to an equal, and perhaps an even greater extent, than the members of the School Board, and we do not know that the latter have any mandate to utilize propaganda methods to impose their will on the people. In the last analysis what is best for the children is for their parents to decide. It is the parents who will say if additional taxation is justified at this time for benefits that are purely problematical, and which often are not benefits at all when participated in to the exclusion of other essentials.

BRIDGE DELAYS

Assuming that Mr. F. M. Preston, the City Engineer, is correct in blaming the Dominion Government for delaying the construction of the Johnson Street bridge, it surely should be the duty of the City Council to ask the Federal authorities to accelerate the work upon which they are engaged. Although it should have been, the Dominion Government is not a contributor to the cost of the bridge, but it should be amenable to any request which will expedite the laying of the foundations of the structure. There is no reason that we can foresee why a work of this kind, no one of any great magnitude, should occupy two years. The original assumption was that it would be built within twelve months. The assumption also was that it would prove a valuable factor in decreasing unemployment, whereas we find that only a handful of men are engaged instead of a few hundreds as was anticipated. Under these circumstances it is only natural some dissatisfaction should be expressed, for it is not clear that the city has done all that lies within its power to relieve the unemployment situation.

We are bound to accept the City Engineer's statement that the bridge will be constructed within the original estimate of the cost. The citizens will be pleased to learn this, and will look forward to the fulfilment of the present promise. It is necessary, however, that the City Council as a whole, and not the Chairman of the Streets Committee and the Mayor only, should be kept in regular touch with the work of construction. Progress reports, which can be published for the information of the taxpayers, should be submitted to the Council at stated intervals. That is purely a business arrangement. The City Council has to accept the responsibility and should be kept fully informed on the details of the work, the cost involved and the rate of progression. The Council, too, should have some duty to see if the bridge cannot be completed at an earlier date than is now anticipated. It should also insure that its construction is a medium for providing more work for the unemployed. The first essential is to persuade the Dominion Government to employ more men, and, if possible, more up-to-date machinery on the blasting and drilling on which it is engaged, and the process of which is delaying progress on the civic undertaking. Representations made in the proper quarters would undoubtedly have a good effect.

SINKING FUND DEFICIT.

Mr. J. S. Floyd, the city auditor, has rendered a public service in directing attention to civic accounting methods, and, especially, in what he has pointed out relative to the deficits in the Local Improvement sinking funds. His statement that these funds went behind by an addition of $313,000 last year affords another striking argument in favor of the proposal, so often advanced, that the taxpayers should be given a statement of civic finances much oftener than it is now the custom to do. In the discussion on the auditor's report at Friday's meeting of the Mayor and aldermen it did not develop what payments had been made into the sinking funds during 1920. The payments that should have been made were those covered by the tax arrears collected under the ten-year relief plan, the receipts of the tax sale and the money accruing from the sale of reverted lands, together with all current Local Improvement levies, which reached the civic exchequer. It is time that the City Council made a statement to the public as to whether or not all the moneys alluded to were employed for making good the shortages in the Local Improvement sinking fund. If they were not then they have been applied to other uses.

The city made the claim that taxes came in well last year, and that some 75 per cent of those owing for 1920 were collected. We do not know if this statement is correct. In addition to the taxes collected, large sums of the arrears were paid in instalments. The city realized some $80,000 through its tax sale. Reverted lands to the value of $100,000 have been sold, though, of course, some of that money was obtained during the present year. If conditions are as the public have been led to believe, then there is no justification for the sinking funds having fallen so much further into arrear. An alarming state of affairs is revealed if in a year when taxation collections were supposed to be good, and were heralded as such by the civic authorities, sinking funds can show such a deficit. There is a good deal more explanation required than has been vouchsafed to the public up to date.

CANING IN SCHOOL

Headmasters and headmistresses of public and elementary schools considered the question of punishments, corporal and otherwise, at the headquarters of the Medical Officers of Schools' Association, Chandos Street, Cavendish Square, London, says The Daily Mail. They met to consider the resolution recently passed by the medical officers, that caning on the hand ought to be abolished.

Dr. Nash, speaking for the medical officers, said that the Scots were the salt of the earth; they were far ahead of England in respect of corporal punishment. They used the tawse, which, he explained, was a leather strap about two feet long, not so wide as a railway strap, with the last few inches split into five.

"Though practically unknown to English schoolmasters," he explained, "it is particularly effective. It stings ferociously, but the sting is a temporary thing."

Many parents thought a caning derogatory to the well-being of their "darlings." You could cane the son of a duke but you could not cane the son of a dustman. Complaints were sure to arise, Doctor Nash concluded.

Canon A. A. David, headmaster of Rugby, said that he knew one teacher who invented ingenious forms of punishment to fit the crime, but they were so ingenious that the boys enjoyed them.

He did not think caning on the body was degrading. Some boys might be too mentally sensitive to be caned; but they were the boys who did not require to be caned. According to the mothers of England 90 per cent of our boys were highly strung. (Laughter).

A local contributor, a Scotsman, has the following comment to offer on the foregoing:

Ye hardy Scots, saut o' the Yirth,
Are ye no prood noo, o' y'er birth?
Your heids swall the enormous girth,
Let beacons flush!

The Roaring Forties

AN INTERLUDE

By P.C.R.

"Only stay quiet, while my mind remembers
The beauty of fire from the beauty of embers."
—John Masefield.

We were talking the other night, my friend and I, as old friends who have known worse and better times together will talk. A soft rain had succeeded two days of high wind; and it was almost cheerful to sit by the fire and listen to the slow drip from the first leaves of the maples. We had known wind and rough weather together, war and the assaults of the Antient Enemy, and now we were here together in temporary haven, our pipes sending up the evening incense of men whose work for one day was done.

The hour and the place had invited retrospect. We had gone out on the back trail for awhile; and, as men do as they sit by the evening camp fire, we had sat, as it were, "and talked about the death of kings." And we remembered in our pagan orisons some old comrades who had taken the last trail of all.

"Do you remember," said my friend, suddenly, but with sufficient relevance, "how Dante starts out upon that immortal journey of his?—'Midway of this our mortal life, I found me in a gloomy wood alone.' I think I have not looked into Cary's translation in the last twenty years, and I have but the dimmest memory of that great argument and that mighty line. But those words rooted themselves in my mind; and now, times lately, they come home to me like all the bells that have rung out the years that are past.

* * * * *

"I heard them first," he went on, "in the young days 'when passion sets the spindrift flying,' as John Masefield has it. They spelled for me then the story of some far-off, unimagined, austere tragedy of another age than mine, I remember. They struck for my young fancy the high, mournful keynote of that great song. But I did not know then—how could I?—how true they might be of the middle years of men like you and me, who were past our youth when the days of '14 came.

"Another age than mine," he repeated; "don't you see how different it might be with us if we could only look forward one half as well as we can all look back? When we are young, I mean. Who wants to look forward now? Who seeks to gather a mere fig of hope from the thistles that have choked our latter days? Ah, my old lad, Dante said it for us, once and for all of us, 'Midway of this our mortal life, I found me in a gloomy wood alone.'"

I rallied him. "But, man, you're not yet, with the round Knight of Windsor, not blasted with antiquity; you are come to the Roaring Forties—you may sail your bark on the great circle, in the trade winds of the Forties, for many a year yet."

* * * * *

He took up my phrase, "the Roaring Forties." "The meridians of time and place do not run together," he said; "your figure halts and stumbles. You will find your Roaring Forties shall roar you as soft as any turtle dove. No, no, my lad, don't fool yourself; the middle time of our lives has found us fallen into the sere and yellow leaf; and the world has slipped by us in the night."

"But there are the things that still taste good," said I. "There's the smoke of tobacco, and the friendship of books, the blossom of the apple, the talk of friends, the music of old songs, and on your hale days there is the wind on the heath."

"Aye," he answered, quick to take color from a heartening word, "and there are the laughter, the eager questions, and the never-sated zest of the kiddies. I hold to that in despite of all the rest. That's the everlasting mercy of life."

"But I wonder, these days, if the young men have found their own enthusiasms, I wonder if they dream as we dreamed. I wonder if they are still unafraid of the ridicule of the old men, scornful of compromise, quick to flame with resentment against well-fed cynicisms. I wonder," said he, "if they are still fain to be as joyful, as absurd, as much in love with all the mystery and the promise of the days to be, as we were in the days before the War and, bitter loss had cast a black shadow across our doorsills."

"I wonder if the sour grapes the fathers have eaten in this generation shall wry the mouths of the children, even to the third and fourth generation of them. Can you tell me," he asked me, "that the War has not robbed this age of hope, and stripped it bare of courage, and filled its heart with the bitterness of death?"

"Yes," I said, "I can tell you. I can't prove it to you, but I can tell you. You can tell yourself if you will listen to the hints which come from the playgrounds of the children. There is hope there, and courage, and the sweetness and the wisdom of life. You said it yourself when you said that there was the everlasting mercy of life."

"I want to believe that," said he. "I want to see it in the green miracle of Spring. I want to hear it in the high calls of the migrating birds. I want to feel it in the renewed fires of the sun, and know it always in the laughter of the kiddies. But, even so, how much of all this is left for us who have crossed the line of your Roaring Forties?"

* * * * *

And so I quoted to him from his own poet, John Masefield, from whom he himself had been quoting that night:

"I cannot sail your seas, I cannot wander
Your cornland, nor your hill-land nor your valleys
Ever again, nor share the battle yonder
Where the young knight the broken squadron rallies.

"Only stay quiet while my mind remembers
The beauty of fire from the beauty of embers."

"Yes," he agreed, "that is just. It did not begin with us, and it cannot die with us. After all," he concluded, "I suppose it is for us still to look with faith and purpose upon that last of life, for which the first was made."

ANNA EDSON TAYLOR DIES IN INFIRMARY

LOCKPORT, N.Y., April 30.—Anna Edson Taylor, the only woman who ever navigated Niagara Falls in a barrel and survived, died in the Niagara County Infirmary today.

Mrs. Taylor made the trip over the falls October 24, 1901, in a crudely-constructed wooden barrel as a cast at fortune, but ill-fortune pursued her from the time of her adventure to the time of her death.

She was 58 years old. She was severly injured in the plunge over the Horseshoe Falls and it was necessary to cut the barrel in half to get her out. While she was receiving medical attention her barrel was stolen.

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

(From The British Colonist of May 1, 1871.)

Where Shall We Bury Our Dead?—The question with which we head our present issue is inevitably suggested by the notice which appears in Saturday's Gazette, viz., "After twelve months from this date no further burials will be permitted to take place in the present Victoria cemetery."

Road Steamers—We regret to have to announce that there will be a temporary interruption in the road steamer enterprise in the Upper Country. It is found that the links holding the steel shoes which form the flexible or outer tires, being made of malleable cast iron, will not answer on the rocky roads of this colony, as they are constantly snapping, causing much delay. In every other respect the steamers appear to answer very well.

Baseball Match—The match between the Olympic and the Victoria nines came off yesterday afternoon at Beacon Hill and resulted in a tie, 23 to 23. One home run was made by Friedman. The captain of the Olympics is E. McQuade and of the Victorias, J. Griffiths. D. McQuade acted as umpire.

"BIG BILL" HAYWOOD SENDS MESSAGE HOME

CHICAGO, April 30. — The first direct word from "Big Bill" Haywood, I.W.W. leader, in Russia, reached Otto Christensen, his attorney, today.

A wireless message from Christiania, dated April 25, said that Haywood had arrived in Moscow, and was attending the conference of trade industrial unions and the Third Internationale. The message added that Haywood would return to the United States after the conference, and it was expected he would immediately give himself up to serve his 20-year sentence at Leavenworth prison for violation of the espionage law.

SAANICH ASKS AID FOR BEACH HIGHWAY

Council Meets Minister of Public Works in Effort to Have Government Pay Part of Maintenance Costs

A strenuous effort is being made by the Saanich Municipality to have the Provincial Government assist in the maintaining of the Beach Road which extends from Uplands around the waterfront to Cordova Bay and then west to the East Saanich Road at Elk Lake.

A short time ago the Council received from the Public Works Department a list of the roads classified as primary and secondary under the Highways Act and for the maintenance of which the Municipality will receive assistance from the Government. The only highway classed as primary was the Gorge Road from Harriet Road to the Craigflower Bridge, while those named as secondaries were Quadra Street from Cloverdale Avenue to Royal Oak, and East Saanich Road from Royal Oak to the northern boundary of the Municipality.

Last Thursday afternoon the Council met the Minister of Public Works and urged upon him the desirability of the Government aiding in the maintenance of the beach highway, which included Cadboro Bay Road, Sinclair Road, Arbutus Road, Ferndale Road, Tyndall Avenue, Ash Road, and Cordova Bay Road to Elk Lake. The deputation asked that the highway be classified as secondary.

The Minister stated that the classification could not be changed this year, but the suggestions of the Council would be considered next year.

Reeve Watson pointed out that from the Island section the Government had taken in $60,000 in increased motor taxes and that therefore Saanich deserved some further consideration. The Minister admitted that the Reeve's statement was conservative and the figure has since been found to be $85,000 for the first four months of the year. The Reeve urged that if it was impossible to place the beach roadway under the Highways Act, the Minister should consider making a $1,500 grant toward its maintenance this year, as a sum of $3,000 spent now would obviate a possible repair bill of $7,000 next season.

The beach highway is used to such an extent by non-residents of Saanich that the Municipality finds its upkeep an expensive proposition.

At the Saanich Council meeting on Thursday evening a resolution was passed asking the Minister of Public Works to make the Beach Road a secondary highway, and the Saanich member, Mr. F. A. Pauline, will be asked to do what he can in this connection.

MUNICIPAL OFFICE IS UNDER NEW TIME

Reeve of Saanich Issues Instructions — Teachers Not Affected — Troubles With Schools Foreseen

Employees of the Saanich Municipality will work under daylight saving time, according to instructions issued by Reeve Watson. This does not include the school teachers, who come under the School Board jurisdiction.

At the last meeting of the Saanich Council no action was taken in the matter of daylight saving, as Reeve Watson ruled that the matter could not be again considered under the rules of procedure. He further pointed out that the Council had no power to enforce the plan. A majority of the councillors favored the municipality falling in line with the city in the matter of daylight saving to avoid confusion. Reeve Watson has given the scheme official approval by utilizing his authority and putting the Municipal Office and outside staffs under the new time.

Discussing the situation yesterday, Reeve Watson pointed out that the School Board had no legal right to alter the time of schools, but he added that Oak Bay and Esquimalt were doing so. He suggested that as the rural wards evidently did not want daylight saving while the inner wards did, that the outer schools could be operated under the old time and the schools of the inner districts under the new time. He believed that no difficulties would arise under this plan, and pointed out that the schools close to the city could hardly hold to the old time.

Effect on Schools

What the results will be if the Saanich schools do not adopt daylight saving are being gloomily foreseen by members of the teaching staff of the municipality, and one of them declared yesterday that Saanich would be eventually forced into line.

Numbers of the teachers reside in the city or in Oak Bay or Esquimalt. In the morning they will have to get up according to the new time or they will find themselves not in accord with the timetable of those who eat at the same breakfast table.

In the afternoon teachers do not get away often until five o'clock, which will mean six o'clock according to the new time, with the result that they reach their homes after the supper hour.

Numbers of the boys in the inner Saanich schools carry The Daily Times. They must be in town for this purpose at four o'clock, but if Saanich schools go on under the old time, the lads will not be out of school until it is four o'clock in the city.

Then again, many of the Saanich fathers work in the city and go home for lunch. They will use the new time while the children will go home under the old time, making more work for the mothers.

That there will be other troubles still unforseen is not to be doubted.

NEED NO BY-LAW FOR NEW CEMETERY

Mayor Porter Says New Legislation Will Enable Purchase of Site This Year—Calls Special Meeting

Before the end of the present year Victoria may have a new cemetery.

Mayor Robert J. Porter yesterday called a meeting for Thursday afternoon, of the inter-municipal committee, composed of members of the Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Saanich Councils, for the purpose of discussing the possibility of going ahead at once with a municipal project.

Under the new legislation, brought down at the last session of the Legislature, authority is given for the formation of a board of cemetery trustees who are given power to purchase a cemetery site and make their own arrangements for financing, the bonds to be guaranteed by the municipalities which are a party to the scheme.

According to Mayor Porter, this new legislation provides that a cemetery site may be purchased by the trustees without the submission of a by-law, as was previously necessary.

The city now has under consideration several sites, but a special committee has reported definitely in favor of the Rowland Farm property, of about seventy acres, on the Carey Road. It is possible that some arrangement may be made whereby only a portion of this area would be bought, as the majority of the Council seems in favor of limiting the size of the cemetery to approximately forty acres. The purchase price submitted to the Council is about $53,000 for the entire property.

"We are convinced that the need of a cemetery is very pressing," said the Mayor yesterday. "Reports from our officials are to the effect that Ross Bay will not serve the city much longer and one of the most serious points is the fact that certain sections of the cemetery, such as that allotted to the Anglican Church, are much congested and probably will be completely occupied within a few weeks.

LECTURE ON PASTEUR AIDS FRENCH REFUGEES

Madame Sanderson-Mongin Spoke at Unitarian Church Thursday Evening on Life of Pasteur

An appreciative audience listened to an able discourse delivered by Madame Sanderson-Mongin on "Louis Pasteur" before the Women's Alliance of the Unitarian Church on Thursday evening. Madame Sanderson-Mongin, who is a member of the Victoria College staff, delighted her hearers with her detailed account of the life and achievements of Pasteur, who was in 1895 acclaimed by press referendum the greatest man in France.

Madame Sanderson-Mongin, in her introductory remarks, mentioned that Pasteur was born of humble parents, his father, a soldier of the Empire, who had received the Legion deL'honneur and from whom he had instilled his great love of duty, and his mother was a good woman, and from her he had inherited his love of work and his great imagination. She pointed out the various educational centres which he had attended, and that his first work was the symmetry of crystals, indicating that the symmetry marked the mineral formations of organic life.

The speaker stated that throughout his entire life, Pasteur was continually experimenting in scientific enterprises, and that today one of his great accomplishments, known as pasteurization, is of paramount usefulness to mankind. She quoted a renowned utterance which Pasteur once made to the effect that if science has no country the scientist should have one and ascribe to it the influence which his work may have in the world. While in his private life Pasteur was of a quiet temperament, the speaker pointed out that his work was marvellous, especially the revolutionizing of medical science of the past five hundred years.

The details of Louis Pasteur's various theories were carefully described in detail by Madame Sanderson-Mongin, who, in concluding her lecture, declared that the life work of Pasteur is admirable, but to know the kindness of his heart one must have lived in close intimacy with him, and that future generations will come to realize even to a greater extent than we do the wonderful contribution to the realm of practical science which Louis Pasteur has made.

In a brief speech Mrs. Frank Gibbs expressed the thanks of the audience to Madame Sanderson-Mongin for her most thoroughly enjoyable and instructive address. The proceeds of the lecture are to be devoted to the relief work in France on behalf of the unfortunate refugees.

City and District in Brief

Tolmie P.-T. Association—The Tolmie Parent-Teachers' Association will meet in the Tolmie School on Tuesday evening, May 3, 1921, at 8 o'clock Saanich time.

Museum Opened — The Provincial Museum will be open on Sundays from 1 to 5 o'clock throughout the Summer, beginning May 1.

Friendly Help Meets—The monthly meeting of the Friendly Help Association will be held on Tuesday morning, May 3, at 10:30 o'clock, in the rooms at Market Building.

Delta's Member Here—Mr. A. D. Paterson, Liberal member for the Delta in the Provincial Legislature, was a visitor at the Parliament Buildings yesterday.

North Dairy P.-T.—A meeting of the North Dairy Parent-Teachers' Association will be held in North Dairy School on Monday evening, at 8 o'clock. A large attendance is requested.

Photographic Society—The monthly meeting of the Victoria Photographic Society will be held in the members' room, Parliament Buildings, tomorrow at 8 p.m.; special subject, "Lessons for Beginners," illustrated.

Draws Big Crowds—Mr. J. J. Sims, the evangelist, has been addressing large audiences in the Berquist Hall, Sidney, during the past week. He will continue the series through this week also. His illustrated lectures have proved exceedingly popular.

Musical Club Social—The members of the Columbia Musical Club will hold their fortnightly social tomorrow evening at the studios of the Columbia School of Music. This will be the second last event of the season.

Gets Cash Register—Some time during Friday night a thief entered the junk shop of F. Bean, 1314 Wharf Street, and purloined the cash register, which was devoid of money at the time. The case was reported to the police.

Bank Clearings — The clearings through the Victoria clearing house for the past month were $10,580,984; for the month of April, 1920, the total was $11,914,125; for the same month in 1919, $9,658,898; and in 1918, $8,856,111.

Astrology Lecture—The final lecture on "How to Read a Horoscope" will be given Monday at 8 p.m. in the Rosicrucian Fellowship Hall, 324 Pemberton Block. The chart of a celebrity will be analyzed and used for illustration. The lecture is free to the public.

Cabaret By-Law—The City Council will consider tomorrow the recommendations of the Board of Police Commissioners regarding regulation of cabarets, one of the features of which is a provision that entertainers and other female employees must not "mix" with patrons.

Change in Hours—Beginning today, and continuing through the Summer months, the James Bay Methodist Sunday School will be held at ten o'clock in the forenoon, instead of at half-past two in the afternoon. All the services at that church will be held on the daylight saving time today.

Twentieth Century Club—On Friday, May 6, at 8 p.m., a Maytime variety entertainment will take place under the auspices of the Daughters of the Twentieth Century Club, at the Metropolitan Sunday School. Among the outstanding features of the evening will be a couple of numbers by J. Burke, the ventriloquist, and a shadow pantomime and a Maypole drill by the girls of the club.

Cleared $3,244—The Y.W.C.A. "Fair of Nations," held a few days ago at the Drill Hall, was a tremendous financial success, clearing $3,244.64 for the Association Building Fund. No finer community effort of the kind has ever taken place in the city, many organizations lending helpers and conducting some department of the fair in order that the enterprise might be a complete success.

Applies for Patent—A. R. Sanderson and G. Schofield, of Metchosin, have applied for a patent for an electric gas pre-heater for automobiles, and expect to place this new invention on the market shortly. The new pre-heater is attached to the intake manifold, near the carburetor, and is used to heat the gas before starting. It is expected the pre-heater will be manufactured in Victoria.

Whist Drive and Dance — The Ladies' Guild to the Sailors' Club, Esquimalt Branch, following its successful masquerade dance held on April 11, is holding a whist drive and dance on Tuesday evening in the Sailors' Club, Esquimalt, commencing at 8 o'clock. There will be good prizes given. Mrs. Gleason's orchestra will provide the music. Dancing will commence at 10 o'clock.

Humming Birds Arrive—Although the season seems backward, bird migrants from the South have appeared in Victoria and neighborhood in due season. A hummingbird was yesterday observed flitting around the cherry trees of Mr. A. W. McIntyre, of David Street, in the Rock Bay district of this city. The dainty and gorgeous-hued stranger appeared to be as blyth of spirit as if this were the height of the Summer season.

Service of Praise—A special service of praise will be given at the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church this evening at 7:30 o'clock, at which Bonner's hymns will be featured. A fine programme of music has been prepared, the soloists for the evening being Mrs. Bertram Mayell (soprana), who will sing "Abide With Me," and Mr. Wm. Melville (baritone), who will sing "O Come, O Come, Emmanuel."

Fifth Regiment—The 5th Regiment, C.G.A., will parade at the Drill Hall tomorrow (Monday) night at 8 o'clock. Dress, drill order. Signallers' and Gun Layers' classes from 8 to 9. At 9 o'clock there will be a meeting of the Rifle Association. After the Rifle Association meeting there will be a meeting of the executive committee of the Regimental Association to make necessary preparations to equip the men's room in the Drill Hall.

Won Gold Star—Two sheets of drawings were sent to the Spring exhibition of the Royal Drawing Society, London, England, from St. George's School. The awards just received are most encouraging, Myrtle Hall having won the gold star for vigorous painting of horses, and Norma Pendray a first-class for pretty landscape. The school had attained the honor of a bronze star on a previous occasion, but this is the first gold star to be won.

P.O. Home Tag Day—On Saturday next, the public will be asked to contribute, in large amounts or small, to the funds of the Protestant Orphanage through means of a tag day. This institution is carried on in our midst quietly and unostentatiously, doing good without other support than the charitable impulses of the citizens. No grant from either Government or city is received, and we trust that our fellow-citizens will realize the need and the value of this institution and fill the tag boxes to overflowing.

May Day Concert—An interesting concert under the auspices of St. Columba Young People's Society is to be given tomorrow evening, at 8 o'clock, in the Church Hall, Mitchell Street. Among the items to be given will be an old English Maypole dance by sixteen girls of the C.G.I.T.; "darkie" drill by nine boys of the C.S.E.T.; and numbers by Miss Barfoot, Mrs. Ogilvie, Mr. Edmonds and Mr. Wright, all well-known entertainers. The proceeds will be devoted to the tennis club fund.

Order of Eagles—At the regular meeting of Victoria Aerie No. 12, Fraternal Order of Eagles, on Wednesday, May 4, the election of officers for the year will take place, and after the election there will be a social for the members and a big meeting, and a good time is expected. During the past year the Aerie has initiated eighty new members. At the last meeting ten took their first step into Eagledom, with eight new applications. Their cosy new home on Fisgard Street is all clear of debt.

Warrant Issued—In the city police court yesterday, with Mr. W. W. Northcott, J.P., on the bench, Frederick Kolterman, charged with unlawful retention of one motor tyre, the property of C. D. Holmes, knowing the same to be stolen, failed to answer to the calling of his name. City Prosecutor Harrison stated that the accused was on bail in the sum of $1,000, and applied for the issuance of a warrant for arrest, which was accordingly directed by the court.

Central School P.-T — "Manual Training in Relation to Technical Education" will be the subject of an address to be given by Capt G. Breadner at the general meeting on Monday evening of the Central School Parent-Teachers' Association. Mrs. Spofford will be present to explain the policy of the School Board on school expenditures. Miss Middleton and Mr. J. G. Brown have kindly consented to render vocal solos. The meeting is being held in the Girls' Central School at eight o'clock, and all interested are cordially invited.

Additional Concerts — The Arion Club, which has just successfully concluded its twenty-ninth season, has consented to give two additional concerts on behalf of two good objects. The North Saanich Women's Institute will benefit by a concert to be given at Sidney on Monday, May 9, in Berquist's Theatre, and the other concert will be given at the Empress Hotel on behalf of the Y.W.C.A., date to be announced later. There will be a full rehearsal for these concerts in the clubrooms tomorrow evening.

Trip to Northern B. C.—Mr. W. E. Payne, general secretary of the Vancouver Board of Trade, will be a guest of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce at their luncheon in the Dominion Hotel tomorrow at noon. Mr. Payne will tell about the plans for a tour being arranged by the Vancouver Board to Northern British Columbia ports. A large number of Mainland businessmen intend to make the trip some time next month, and members of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce have been asked to join the party.

Georgian Circuit Edition—The annual Georgian Circuit edition of The Island Motorist and Georgian Circuit Magazine, edited by Mr. Charles L. Harris, secretary of the Island Automobile Association, is a magazine of over seventy pages. For those wishing to make the famous motor trip around the circuit it contains a log of the journey, a map of the route, and information concerning customs regulations. There is also a description of a run around the circuit. Some of the points along the route are dealt with in separate articles in the magazine.

Conservative Club Orchestra—The Conservative Club orchestra, an organization which members of the club predict will become one of the premier musical organizations of its kind in Victoria, held a rehearsal on Friday night, fifteen musicians being on hand. Another rehearsal will be held next Saturday night. It is the intention to build up the orchestra to

MEMBERS INDIGNANT SAYS MR. R. H. POOLEY

Esquimalt's Representative States "Salary Grab" Would Not Have Passed Had Signers Not Been Fooled

On Tuesday evening, April 26, there was a large gathering of residents in the Sooke Hall at a public meeting held under the auspices of the Sooke Conservative Association. The meeting was one of indignation and protest at the action of the Government during the recent session of the House with regard to the increase in the ministers' and members' indemnities, whilst the wages of the Government's employees had been cut.

On taking the chair, shortly after 8 p.m., W. Miller Higgs, J.P., president of the Sooke Conservative Association, said: "Ladies and gentlemen, I was asked to call this meeting by one or two members of our executive in order that we might join with other bodies who have already voiced strong disapproval of the action of the Government with but one or two exceptions, and notably that of the Conservative leader, the Honorable W. J. Bowser, in the matter of the increase of salaries to the members of the House whilst reducing the salaries of other Government employees.

"An increase of salary to the ministers and members of the Provincial Legislature may, or may not, be necessary in the carrying out of their public duties, in some cases travelling many miles over large areas of difficult country under circumstances where the expenses incurred are not provided for.

"This, however, is not the crucial point in tonight's meeting of protest. The point at issue is: Why should any Government raise the pay of its ministers and the representatives of the people and at the same time reduce the wages of the men who do that Government's work upon the roads and elsewhere? Such legislation can only bring a country to the spirit of Bolshevism and anarchy! And, in making such a statement I am, I believe, but voicing the opinion of practically all in this hall.

"In fairness to our representative, Mr. R. H. Pooley, I felt it only right to ask our secretary, Mr. Hughes, to let him know about this public meeting of protest, and I am glad he has responded by coming in person to let us hear why he attached his signature to the 'Round Robin' for this increase at the present time when the Government cry has been 'retrenchment' in all directions?"

Mr. Pooley Speaks

Mr. Pooley, on rising, thanked the residents of Sooke for the opportunity afforded to him of addressing them on this subject, and remarked that, in his opinion, the meeting should undoubtedly pass some resolution of protest on this subject.

Mr. Pooley then went into details leading up to the signing of the Round Robin, and stated that the indemnity to the members of the Legislature had remained at the same figure since the year 1912, and that, although the question of an increase had been brought forward at different sessions during the period of the war, nothing was done in this regard owing to most of the members being of the opinion that in spite of the general increase in the cost of living and the general high wages then prevailing, war-time was not the proper time to grant the increase.

Mr. Bowser refused to sign the Round Robin, and advanced arguments in the House levelled at the increase in the ministers' salaries, and stated that he thought there might be good grounds for granting the increase in the members' indemnities, although personally he, as leader of the Opposition, did not want any increase, and there were other members who did not sign the Round Robin, viz., Mr. Whiteside, the Liberal member for New Westminster, and Mr. Hanes, Independent member for North Vancouver.

That the amendment to the "Constitution Act" legalizing the increases, was up for discussion in the House on the 1st of April at the afternoon session (and a very proper day). During the discussion, Mr. Hanes is reported in The Colonist of April 2nd, as having said that he thought the $400 increase in the indemnity should be sufficient for the Cabinet ministers, and he saw no reason for the boost of $1,500 proposed. The Premier would receive $9,000 as salary, $2,000 as indemnity and $2,000 for travelling expenses, something the private members did not get; that he thought it was a proper time to ask the question as to whether the Government intended reducing wages of the Government workmen throughout the Province by 75c per day. This question remained unanswered.

Mysterious Silence

"It is especially to be noted," said Mr. Pooley, "that Mr. Hane's question remained unanswered, although the Premier and the Minister of Public Works were both sitting in their seats." And, in passing, it is to be remembered that Mr. Hanes was first elected to the Legislature in 1916 as a supporter of the Liberal Government—that he had considerable differences with the Government over P. G. E. matters, and consequently left the Government and remained in the House as an Independent member. During the last election Mr. Hanes ran as an Independent member and he had all the Liberal guns turned against him, but, notwithstanding this, he was elected by nearly 3,000 majority during the election of last year.

Since Mr. Hanes has ceased to be a supporter of the Government, the Government has consistently ignored his questions and any matters that he might try to advance, so it was not surprising to the members present when the Government paid no attention to this question.

Mr. Pooley stated that none of the members of the House knew of this contemplated reduction of wages on Government work of 75c a day, and that he personally did not know anything of it until the morning of the 5th of April, when a resident of Goldstream came into his office and told him that on the morning of the 1st of April the road foreman in that section approached every man who had reported for work and produced a notification from the Works Department advising them that a cut of 75c a day had been made in their wages, and that if they wished to work they must work on a new scale, and anybody who did not wish to so work could go home.

That he asked this gentleman why he did not take the trouble to let him know, and he stated that he thought that the members would know all about it.

Wrote to Mr. Hanes

Mr. Pooley then said that consequent upon this information he wrote to Mr. Hanes, of North Vancouver, to find out how and when he got the information on which his question was asked in the House, and Mr. Hanes replied that he had been given the information that such was the case by one of the members of the Victoria Trades and Commerce Council that very day, and further, that neither the Premier nor the Minister of Public Works, who were sitting in their seats at the time he asked the question, paid any attention to him or gave any answer.

Mr. Pooley further stated that he had made inquiries of other members and none of them knew of the change in wages, and it is certain, he said, that Mr. Bowser did not know, as he spoke for twenty minutes or half an hour that day, and he certainly would not have missed this opportunity of drawing the attention of the members to it and making an attack on the Government on this point.

"I want you to particularly note," said Mr. Pooley, "that we find now that the Government order went into effect on the morning of the 1st of April, and on the afternoon of the same day we, as members of the House, voted to increase our own indemnities. I am convinced that the members on the Government side, the members of the Opposition, or the members of the Independent or Labor party did not know that this order reducing the wages 75c per man per day and $1 per team per day was contemplated or had gone into effect, otherwise they would have immediately withheld their support, and I certainly think," he said, "that either the Premier or Dr. King should have enlightened the members on this very point. Their actions, to my mind, are unpardonable, and they had no right to allow any member to vote on the subject while in ignorance of the situation. Personally I resent being made a fool although it was done on April Fool's Day."

Members Hoodwinked

"I stated in the House at the time that I had signed the Round Robin and was prepared to stand by my signature, and I meant what I said when I said it, but I made that statement in complete ignorance of what had been done by the Government in the mattter of wages that very day, and I am sure that all the private members were as ignorant, and now are as indignant as I am on the subject, and I think you can all rest assured that more will be heard of this matter at the next session."

"This is my explanation, ladies and gentlemen, and I shall be glad to answer any questions on this or any other subject."

Mr. A. N. MacNamara here asked: "Why were the wages for work done on the roads in March paid at the lower rate when the order-in-council did not come into force regarding wages until April 1st?"

"This is all news to me," said Mr. Pooley, "and I will look into it."

Mr. Edward Milne, road foreman, stated in answer to the question that work done in that month had been in the nature of "Relief Work," which was paid at the lower rate, and that he got his orders reducing the wage rates on the last day of March which came into effect on the 1st day of April.

More Unnecessary Expenditure

Mr. Pooley then proceeded to tell his electors and the many others present, how, during the recent session, $400,000 had been voted by the Government to pay half the expense incurred to the B.C. Electric Railway Company on account of the change soon to come into force in regard to the rule of the road, which necessitated altering all their cars; a change and an expense to the Province which could well have been postponed and carried out at a later date when times were better. He also proceeded to show, from the figures of appropriations made by the Government, for road work over the Province, how the Government had dealt with those districts which had seen fit to return other than a Liberal member to the House, which applied to Conservative and Labor representation, making a cut in the appropriation of money to be spent in those districts, whilst a large number of the districts with Liberal members had had their appropriations increased, irrespective of the actual needs of the various districts in road repairs and maintenance. In reply to a question from Mr. A. Helgesen as to what the members had to say with regard to this matter, Mr. Pooley stated that all appropriations for road work are decided by the Hon. Dr. King and the members had no voice at all in this matter. He also stated that the extensive work now being done upon the Sooke main road was being paid for out of the Dominion Government's allowance to the Province for road work, and was not a part of the appropriation made for the Esquimalt Electoral District.

British Columbia Oil

Mr. Pooley then at some length dwelt upon the necessity for keeping our British Columbia oilfields for ourselves and not entering into any dealings with the Standard Oil Company in this matter of great importance to the British Empire. He severely criticized the attitude of the Hon. Mr. Pattullo with regard to his treatment of the British Government in this matter.

On resuming his seat, Captain John A. I. French moved the following resolution, which was seconded by Mr. Henry Fisher.

"That this meeting is fully satisfied from Mr. R. H. Pooley's explanation that the members of the Legislative Assembly signed the Round Robin asking for an increase in their indemnities in complete ignorance of any action having been undertaken by the Government as to the reduction of salaries on road work.

"And further, that we do express our renewed confidence in Mr. Pooley's attitude on this and other matters in the House during the past session."

This was carried by the meeting unanimously.

Mr. R. H. Pooley expressed his appreciation of this resolution of satisfaction and confidence.

The chairman then called for the opinion of the gathering as touching the Government's action during the recent sitting of the House, whereupon Mr. A. N. MacNamara moved the following resolution:

"That this meeting of the electorate assembled at Sooke most strongly condemns the action of the Government in the matter of the increased indemnities to the ministers and members of the Legislative Assembly whilst making a reduction in wages to the Government's employees;

"And further, that we, here assembled, deplore the fact and denounce the Government in the strongest terms for keeping our representative, Mr. R. H. Pooley, together with the other members of the House, Conservatives, Liberals and Labor alike, in complete ignorance of any action having been undertaken by the Government as to the reduction of wages when the vote was taken regarding this increase in indemnity."

This resolution was seconded by Mr. Tristram Willett and carried without any dissenting voice.

The meeting then closed by the singing of the National Anthem.

TELEPHONE SYSTEM OF SOOKE BURNT OUT

Considerable Damage and Great Inconvenience by the Service Being Cut Off

Major George Nicholson, manager of the Sooke Harbor Hotel, states that his hotel, and likewise the entire Sooke and Otter Point districts are still cut off from all telephonic communication with Victoria and other points and have been so for over a week now. On Friday, the 22nd, through some unknown means, the high-power from Jordan River, in a most mysterious and unaccounted manner jumped across the road from the company's line to the Government telephone wire in the vicinity of Vogel's Logging Camp at Otter Point and burned out the entire telephone system of the district; not only were all the telephones at Sooke, while the switchboard and operating system in the post office at Milne's Landing caught fire and did considerable damage, and only the prompt action of the operator, Miss Milne, saved the post office from destruction, while she herself narrowly escaped very serious accident by contact with the sixty thousand volts which was running wild for a few moments. Considerable damage by the same cause was also done in Mr. A. Murphy's house and several other buildings at Jordan River. Mr. William Dee, the superintendent of the Dominion Government Telegraphs, under whose jurisdiction the Sooke telephones are operated has the matter in hand and hopes to have the system in working order again by the end of this week, in the meantime the wire only works as far as Milne's Landing. It is estimated that the damage will cost several thousands of dollars, while in the meantime it is causing the subscribers considerable inconvenience to be for two weeks without telephone communication.

Lord Minto, who lately returned to his ancestral home, Minto House, near Hawick, conformed to a custom, many centuries old, by carrying his bride, formerly Miss Marion Cook, of Montreal, across the threshold in his arms, says an English exchange. This picturesque act is reminiscent of the Borderers' runaway marriages, but in the early days it was usually carried out on horseback. Those who watched the little ceremony gave heafty cheers for the Earl and Countess, who received a warm welcome on entering their estate, which overlooks the Vale of Teviot. Their car, preceded by pipers, was drawn by a number of the estate workers from Hawick station to Minto, where a choir of school children sang the "Maple Leaf," out of honor to the Canadian birth of the Countess. Cameron Douglas, the factor, offered the bride and bridegroom a hearty welcome home, and the estate workers were afterwards entertained to a substantial feast in celebration of the occasion. Prior to going to Minto House, the Earl and Countess have been paying a short visit to Major and Lady Violet Astor at Hever Castle in Kent. The young Countess, who is pretty, appears likely to be "snowed under" with invitations from hostesses anxious to make her acquaintance and to welcome her to this country.

WEDDINGS

McLaughlin-Archibald

A very pretty wedding took place Wednesday evening, April 20, when Annie Louise, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Archibald, 3131 Delta Street (late of Regina, Sask.), became the bride of Hugh McLaughlin, son of the late Judge McLaughlin, of London, England. Rev. R. M. Thompson, pastor of Victoria West Methodist Church, officiated. The ceremony took place in the drawing-room under a bell of whiterock. The bride entered on her father's arm, the Bridal March being played by Mrs. J. W. Walker. The bride's dress was of pink chiffon, hand painted, over mauve silk, and she wore a picture hat of pink chiffon, and carried a bouquet of pale pink roses. Mr. Thos. Miller sang "Because." The wedding supper was held in the dining-room, which was arranged with dogwood and pear blossoms. The table decorations were of white tulips and whiterock. Mrs. Colbeck, of Battleford, Sask., cousin of the bride, assisted the bride's mother in receiving the guests. Mrs. McLaughlin was formerly a teacher at Marshall School, Vananda, B.C. Mr. McLaughlin is a prominent business man of Chilliwack. They left by the midnight boat for Vancouver, en route for Chilliwack, the bride traveling in a navy blue tailored suit, with navy blue silk hat and white furs.

Nairne-Bartlett

In the presence of an assembly of friends of the principals on Friday evening, at Breadalbane, the officiating minister's residence, the Rev. Dr. Campbell celebrated the marriage of David Alexander Nairne and Miss Annie Bartlett, both of this city. The groomsman was Mr. William Davis. The bride, who looked very pretty, was given in marriage by her mother. The bride wore a traveling suit of dark blue gaberdine, with hat to match, and was attended by Mrs. Catherine Davis. Mrs. Nairne and Mrs. Bartlett, the mothers of the bride and bridegroom, becomingly gowned, were matrons of honor. After a honeymoon holiday on the Mainland, Mr. and Mrs. Nairne will make their home in this city, of which both are natives, and where they have a large circle of friends.

Thoreau-Billingsley

A quiet wedding was celebrated at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Monday afternoon last, when Miss Mira Victoria, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Billingsley, of Victoria, became the bride of Mr. Marvin H. Thoreau, of Vancouver. The bride was attended by Miss Sadie McGregor, and the groom was supported by Mr. J. McInnes. Upon their return from their honeymoon, the happy couple will reside in Vancouver.

FAIR AND UNIVERSITY

Now Vancouver Has New Plan to Make World's Exposition Provide Educational Facilities

Having failed to arouse any enthusiasm among Victorians for his project to hold a world's fair here in 1923, Mr. Stanley H. Johnson, who described himself as "world's fair promoter of Honolulu," is now in Vancouver seeking to enthuse the residents there in his plan and has evolved the idea that such a project might aptly be dovetailed in with the project there to induce the Provincial Government to borrow $1,000,000, to be added to the general debt of the Province, to be devoted to the erection of permanent buildings for the University of British Columbia.

The plan, as outlined by Capt. Ian Mackenzie, second Liberal member for Vancouver, at the Legislative Buildings yesterday, is that the Fair should be held on the University grounds at Point Grey, the buildings to be so designed that they would afterwards be suitable for university purposes, a plan which, Capt. Mackenzie stated, was adopted at Seattle on the occasion of the A. Y. P. Exposition, some of the buildings of which were afterwards devoted to University of Washington purposes.

MISSIONARY WILL PREACH

Victorians will have the opportunity to hear first-handed the conditions which at present exist in China from Rev. C. G. Gowman, who has been working in the Province of Yunnan amongst the tribes of Southwest China. Rev. Mr. Gowman, accompanied by his wife, arrived this week in Vancouver, after ten years' service among the aboriginal tribes of Southwest China.

The story which this missionary will have to relate will be of great interest to all, for the different experiences which he has had while stationed with the China Inland Mission at Yuanmowhsien, Yunnan, China, are both varied and thrilling, and during his work there he and his wife lost all their possessions in an attack by the brigands, he was taken prisoner and was successful in making a remarkable escape.

Rev. Chas. Thomson, Superintendant of the China Inland Mission on the Pacific Coast, in writing from Nelson in connection with the Gowmans arrival here, says, "Mr. Gowman will have a very interesting story to tell as he has been working in the very heart of China. It will be a new story which the people of Victoria will hear from this missionary."

In St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Victoria West, both this morning and evening, Rev. Mr. Gowman will speak. man's arrival here, says, "Mr. Gowman the Sunday School and Bible Classes, will be held on the "new time."

BIG PHOTOPLAY IS BOOKED AT ROMANO

In "The Frontier of the Stars" Thomas Meighan Is Seen as Gangster in Strong Paramount Picture

Thomas Meighan, Paramount's big, likeable star, will be seen tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Romano Theatre in "The Frontier of the Stars," written by Albert Payson Terhune. Charles Maigne wrote the scenario and directed the picture.

The story concerns Buck Leslie, a gangster and gunman, who tries to stop a fight between Gregory, a chemist, and a Bowery tough, with the result that Phil Hoyt, a Bowery detective, catches Buck with Gregory's gun, making a clear case of circumstantial evidence against him.

Buck escapes to the housetops, where he comes upon Hilda Shea, sister-in-law of Hoyt, a cripple, who has spent most of her life in a wheel chair on the roof of an East Side tenament house. Hilda hides Buck from Hoyt and they become such good friends that Buck is induced to seek an honest livelihood.

Seeking revenge on Buck, Gregory originates a scheme whereby he will be caught with some dangerous explosives in his possession. Buck visits Hilda with the explosives, and Hoyt tries to arrest him.

A fearful fight ensues, during which the explosives set fire to the tenement. Exciting incidents follow in lightning rapidity. Faire Binney is the leading woman.

CHURCHES OBSERVE DAYLIGHT SAVING

Services Throughout City Will Be Held According to New Time Today—Put Forward Clocks One Hour

All the big city churches are falling into line with the daylight saving plan which comes into force today, and will hold all their services throughout the day according to the new schedule. This means that the 11 o'clock service will commence at 10 o'clock old time, the 7 o'clock service at 6 (old time), and those churches whose evening service commences ordinarily at half-past 7 will commence at half-past 6. However, there will be no need whatever to go through the labor of translating the time if all clocks are put forward one hour first thing this morning. This will correct any doubts that might exist as to the right time, as if this is done every household and those in charge of the church services need make no other change whatever in their day's routine.

Dance patrons and friends of "Paddy" Heaton, leader of Heaton's Orchestra, will be pleased to hear that he is progressing favorably from an attack of pleurisy which necessitated his confinement to bed for the past ten days, and will probably be out again this week.

Chilly Weather Militated Against Limbering Up of Cricketers in Virtue Cup Openers—Victoria, Incogs, and Congos Take the Points —Hat Trick for Sparks

League cricket opened here yesterday in rather depressing and uncricketlike weather. Although, fortunately, there was no rain, the overcast sky and chilly wind made conditions rather unfavorable for the game; but, in spite of this, not only was there some fairly good cricket played, but there was, at the Jubilee Hospital ground especially, quite a good turnout of spectators.

Naturally, in such chilly weather, there were not any very big scores made, the conditions favoring the bowlers, but there were two fairly close contests seen out of the three League engagements, Victoria winning from the Five C's by 105 to 76, and the Incogs beating the Garrison by 109 to 85. The third game, played at Beacon Hill by the Congos and the Army and Navy, was not so close. The last-named team fielded only eight men, and the Congos got them all out in short order.

At the Jubilee Hospital ground the Five C's batted first, Qualnton and Wilkinson being the only men on the side who succeeded in reaching double figures, the latter getting 23 before being clean bowled by a good one from Matson, which completely beat him. Matson proved the most successful bowler for Victoria, taking 6 wickets for 17 runs.

At the start of the Victoria innings it looked as though Wilkinson was going to play havoc with the batsmen of the pioneer club when he dismissed Capt. Coley and Vaughan in successive balls in his first over, each clean bowled by a similar ball, which took the leg stump. McAdam and York stopped the early rot by playing steady cricket, and Matson and Gillespie, who followed them, helped materially to put the issue of the game beyond doubt, the rest of the side failing rather miserably. The detailed score follows:

Hat Trick by Sparks

At Work Point, the Incogs did none too well in the early stages of their innings, and, though they eventually won out, they had seven wickets down for a smaller total then their opponents had, but a good 49 by Allen and a 16, not out, by Seeley, with a tail rather less inclined to droop than that of the Garrison, insured them the final victory.

Against the bowling of Sparks and Tracey the Garrison started fairly well, their first five batsmen making 74 runs out of a total for the side of 85, of which "extras" was responsible for another nine, leaving the last six batsmen with but two between them. Sparks clean bowled six men and did the hat trick in taking the last three wickets. The bowlin honors were certainly his, but Cobbett did fine trundling for the Garrison, with an analysis of 6 for 40. The score:

BIKE RACES PROVE EXTREMELY POPULAR

Great Enthusiasm Displayed at Meet Held by Plimley & Ritchie, Ltd., at Stadium Grounds

One of the liveliest and most excited bunches of boys that had gathered together for many months assembled at the store of Plimley & Ritchie, Ltd., yesterday afternoon and joined in the parade which traveled through some of the principal streets en route to the Stadium grounds.

At 2 p.m. the parade started off and was led by a mounted police officer, following whom was a car with officials, followed by a high-wheel and several odd style bicycles, and then came the mob, on wheels of many different descriptions. When the parade reached Fort Street, on Douglas Street, the boys could no longer contain themselves, and they set out on one mad rush for the grounds like a flock of bees.

The races were in almost every case very closely contested. In many of the contests there were so many entries that several heats had to be run. The Dunlop and Massey race proved exceptionally popular, bringing out a large number of competitors. In the relay race six teams entered, and after the race, which terminated in a dead heat, the respective captains of the two teams ran it off, which resulted in victory for Kenny's team.

As is usually the custom, the obstacle race was of an interesting character. Each boy was required to run 50 yards, then pump up his tires, then ride about 25 yards, drink a bottle of "pop," and on to the finish. The officials had a busy time keeping the boys away from the track when the races were in progress, so eager were they to be close to the scene of the conflict.

Messrs. Plimley & Ritchie desire to thank those who assisted in any particular whatsoever to make the meet such a success, and also the Stadium officials, who kindly donated the use of the grounds, and the daily press.

The enthusiasm displayed in this race-meet seems to warrant a repetition of the "meet" in the near future on a larger scale. Bicycle riding can be made one of the most popular sports of the season as soon as the Stadium grounds are enlarged and a track put around them.

The results of the various races were as follows:

Tines Newsboys' Race—1, R. Thomas; 2, N. McMillan.

Colonist Newsboys' Race—1, F. Hole; 2, W. Lindley.

Dunlop Race—1, John Fisher; 2, W. Baird.

Slow Race—1, R. McDonald; 2, W. Marchbank.

Massey Race—1, W. Taylor; 2, C. Comber.

MILLES BEAT JOURNEE FOR FRENCH TITLE

PARIS, April 30—The French fighter Milles, who is to accompany Georges Carpentier to the United States, retained the title of heavyweight champion of France tonight against Paul Journee. The bout was scheduled for twenty rounds, but Carpentier, who acted as referee, stopped it after ten rounds, owing to the superiority of Milles.

NAVY OARSMEN GAIN THREEFOLD VICTORY

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 30.—Navy oarsmen swept Severn River in the rowing regatta today, taking all three races for varsity, second varsity and freshmen second eight-oared crews. The Quaker varsity eight was badly defeated, four and five boat lengths separating them from the world champions at the finish. The other two brushes were bitterly fought, the navy juniors winning only by a half length, while the navy plebes defeated the red and blue freshmen by one and one-quarter boat lengths.

LONDON, April 30. — Leigh defeated Halifax by 13 to 0 in the final game of the Northern Union Rugby Cup series today.

ST. ANDREW'S WIN

VANCOUVER, April 30.—St. Andrew's defeated the Victoria Mets in the semi-final round of the McBride Shield competition for the provincial soccer championship here today, by a score of three to one in 30 minutes' overtime.

The visiting squad had the best of the play in the first half, but failed to stand the pace. St. Andrew's were the more steady throughout. It was a good game, played under poor weather and ground conditions. A heavy rain descended about 15 minutes after the start, which soaked the field.

UNIVERSITY SCHOOL WINS FROM ALBIONS

Total Best Cricket Score of the Day—Wenman Hits Fine Innings for 87 Runs and Bowls Well

The biggest cricket score of the day was made yesterday by the University School eleven, on their home ground, against the Albions, their batsmen totalling 151 against 49 for the Albion eleven. The school's total included a fine 87 by Wenman I, by far the finest individual batting performance of the afternoon. The same player shared with Holt the bowling honors of his side. Freeman was the only Albion batsman to get his eye in, there being an array of no fewer than seven blobs on the club's score sheet. The full score follows:

SUCCESSFUL MUSICALE

Final Event of Season Held Yesterday at Home of Mrs. Spencer Attracted Big Audience

The concluding Saturday afternoon tea of the season under the auspices of the Ladies' Musical Club rallied the largest number of guests experienced during the entire season at any of these functions. The affair took place at the home of Mrs. David Spencer, Moss Street, Miss Sara Spencer, in her mother's absence, filling the part of hostess very charmingly. The big reception rooms, with their tastefully arranged flowers, comfortably accommodated the audience of nearly two hundred which attended the affair, Mrs. Chas. Wilson and Mrs. H. P. Hodges presiding at the urns at the teatable, which held a big bowl of daisies. Assisting with the tea were Mrs. Wallace Whidden, and the Misses Moggie, Curtis, Pearcy, Collison, Hyndman, and Mary Campbell.

The programme brought forward a big array of student talent from among the junior members of the club, and it is hoped that in future teachers will encourage their more advanced pupils to join the club so that they will have opportunities of this kind to display their skill. Those who took part yesterday were as follows: On the piano—Miss Dorothy Dean, Miss Lucille Hall (pupils of Miss Marian Heming), Miss Ruth Curtis, Miss Vivian Moggie, Miss Dorothy Greenwood (pupils of Mrs. Boulton), Miss Monica Davie (pupil of Miss Long), Miss Myrie North (pupil of Mme. Webb), Miss Alex. Bradshaw (pupil of Miss Saunders); vocal—Miss Peacy (pupil of Miss Eva Hart), Miss Bunting and Miss Lois Lockwood (pupils of Mrs. Baird); and violin—Miss Annie Holt and Miss Inez Handley (pupils of Miss Mary Izard). Mrs. Gideon Hicks was programme convener for the day.

PRINTERS' DISPUTE

So Far No Settlement Arrived at On Question of the Union's Demand for Shorter Hours

No new developments were forthcoming yesterday in the dispute between the International Typographical Union and the employing printers relative to the question of the 44-hour week in the job printing shops of the City and Vancouver. The union, holding out for the 44-hour week as opposed to the present 48-hour week, has so far refused to retire from its position. A meeting of the union is scheduled for today, when final decision as to whether the threatened walk-out will become a certainty tomorrow or still further negotiations shall be carried on will be made.

The employers have, it is understood, made a tentative suggestion to the effect that they would not object to a cut in hours to a 44-hour week provided the scale of pay was based upon the present per hour rate for the 48 hour week, but the union is holding out on the basis that the question of wages is not at present in dispute, but solely the question of hours.

First Presbyterians Gather More Laurels

Now Claim Senior Basketball Championship of British Columbia by Virtue of Defeat Last Night of Towers, Champions of Vancouver, by 44 to 32

In one of the fastest games ever witnessed on local gymnasium floors the First Presbyterians, senior champions of Victoria and district, scored a clean-cut victory over the Towers, of Vancouver, at the Y.M.C.A. here last night, the final score being 44 points to 32. As the Towers were the senior leaders at the Terminal City during the past basketball season the Victoria boys now claim the senior championship of the Province. The contest was of the most gruelling character during the greater part of the time, both sides working very hard, and at half time the teams were tied with the score of 17-17. In the second period the Capitals advanced steadily over the visitors. At no time during the entire argument were the Vancouvers ever ahead of Victoria.

Pace Terrific

The game opened at a terrific pace, with Victoria on the aggressive. The Towers seemed dazzled for a start, as the First Church were piling up point after point, the centres and forward men playing the most elusive type of combination. When the church boys were eleven points up the pace slowed and the visitors seemed to get a line on themselves, and the floor. They commenced steadily attacking and soon had the score about equal. Victoria speeded up again, and to the end of the period the teams battled neck and neck in a most exciting fashion. Vancouver's speciality seemed to be long shots, but they were not very useful.

Immediately after the whistle for the resumption of play, Little, of Victoria, started thing moving by registering on a brilliant long shot. The First Church pressed hard, and, although the game was much slower, the visitors seemed to have lost their combination, and the Victoria lads commenced gaining steadily. The victors maintained leadership in the play to the close. The Towers tried to check Victoria by huddling around the defence area, but this only prevented them from clearing the ball easily and getting to the other end when the opportunity offered. In a brisk rally Vancouver scored two baskets in succession, but the First Church retaliated at once by gaining three baskets. Several minutes before the end, with the issue practically certain, the play lagged considerably and there was not much scoring.

Little Top Scorer

Little, the speedy Victoria centre, was top scorer of the encounter. Webster was second man on the church side. Forbes, who played guard, put the ball into the basket twice. Ross and Gordon were best men in the scoring line for the visitors.

The teams were:

First Church: McKinnon and Webster, forwards; Little centre; Forbes and Boyd, guards.

Towers: Ross and Hunter, forwards; Fletcher, centre; Gordon and Banham, guards.

The decisions of Referee Cobley were, on the whole, pretty fair, although at times he seemed to be overcritical of the play of the Vancouver's, not in a way that would have affected the outcome, however.

In the additional exhibition affair, which came after the main contest, the Belmont Methodists defeated the Huskies 40 to 21. The teams:

Belmont: Brindley and Moore, forwards; Wilkinson, centre; Jones and Dangerfield, guards.

Huskies: Hopkins and Peden, forwards; Nute, centre; Goodacre and Louis Fait, guards.

NANAIMO BEAT WESTS BY TWO TO NOTHING

No Score Registered Until Near End of Game, Though the Miners Had Somewhat Better of Play

NANAIMO, April 30. — Nanaimo City football team defeated Victoria Wests here this afternoon in their Island league fixture by the score of 2 to 0. Poor work in front of goal on the part of the home forwards was responsible for the score being so low, as Nanaimo had all the better of the play, and should have won by a much wider margin. The first half was featured by a good exhibition of football, although neither side was able to register, and it was only after the greater part of the second half had elapsed that McMillan drove in a shot which completely beat the Wests' custodian, followed five minutes later by Robertson converting a penalty which had been awarded by reason of Whyte handling the ball within the visitors' penalty area. The last few minutes of the game were marred by rough tactics. The local custodian and Muir came to blows, but were separated before any damage was done.

VICE-PRESIDENT IS WINNER AT BOWLING

For First Time in History of Club President's Team Defeated in Annual Fixture at Beacon Hill Park

For the first time since the green was laid down, the vice-president defeated the president.

SOOKE IS PLANNING BIG CELEBRATION

Picnic and Sports on Large Scale Will Be Held on May 24—Committee Already at Work on Programme

Such a pronounced success was last year's picnic and sports at Sooke that the Sooke Harbor, Otter Point and Jordan River Athletic Clubs have decided to hold it again, and the event will take place on Empire Day, May 24. Considerably over 1,000 people attended last year, and this time there should be many thousands more if the attractiveness of the programme is any criterion. Features will include tug-of-war, baseball, boat racing, flat racing and athletics of all kinds; horse racing, canoe and swimming events, greasy pig and all the other novelties that proved so popular last year.

Last year's prize list was valued at many hundreds of dollars worth of exceedingly good prizes. This time it will be increased. Not a child came last year but received a prize, and this time they will get two. The ladies, too, will be given ample opportunity to show their skill in anything from felling trees to driving a nail, and liberal will be the prizes for them. Tickets for the sports will include chances in the grand tombola, for which handsome prizes are being offered. A committee, consisting of P. Graignic, H. Vogel, W. Miller Higgs and Major George Nicholson (chairman), is attending to all details and promises a great time for old and young.

When she screamed, one of the men leaped into the tonneau and choked her to death, while the others covered her chauffeur with revolvers.

LACROSSE HOLDOUTS WILL DISCUSS TERMS

Report From Vancouver Says Cotton Brynjolfson May Be Induced to Rejoin Ranks of Terminls

VANCOUVER, April 30. — Local lacrosse players have informed officials of the Terminal Club that they will hold a meeting to discuss terms—probably tonight—and have promised a definite answer soon.

The club leaders this morning declared that the terms offered a week ago will not be boosted a cent, and that, if the stickhandlers intend to play, it was up to them to sign without delay.

"Cotton" Brynjolfson, Victoria star, may be seen in the ranks of the Terminal Club this season. He arrived here today to play in the football semi-final, and, shortly after debarking, had an interview with local lacrosse officials. He promised to talk business later in the day. Jake Davis, goalkeeper, informed Harry Pickering today that he would sign if the other players would also affix their John Hancocks to contracts.

Several lacrosse enthusiasts have suggested to the club that new material be given a chance to show this season. There are several players, it is stated, who are anxious to try their hand in the professional game, and they may be approached if the regulars fail to come into line following tonight's meeting. The regulars still maintain there is no attempt to hold out, declaring that they are merely acting individually and endeavoring to secure the best terms. The officials, on the other hand, assert the players have an understanding to the effect that they shall act in a body.

HOME RUN SWATTERS HAVING MERRY RACE

Kelly Now Leads Babe Ruth by One—Batting Averages in National and American Leagues

CHICAGO, April 30.—Babe Ruth, the home-run king of the major leagues, is finding a worthy rival in George Kelly, first baseman of the New York Nationals, who is tied with Ruth in the race for home runs hitting with five circuit drives to his credit. Kelly is playing his second season in the major leagues as a regular.

Besides leading the American League with five home runs, Ruth is runner-up to Harry Heilman, of Detroit, in the scramble for the American League batting honors, according to averages including games of Wednesday. Heilman is topping the batters with an average of .513, compared with a mark of .447 attained by Ruth. Stephenson, of Cleveland, is behind the New York slugger with .419. Harris, of Washington, is showing the way to the base-stealers with four thefts. Other leading batters:

Gharrity, Washington, .406; Tobin, St. Louis, .400; Young, Detroit, .395; Rice, Washington, .386; Sewell, Cleveland, .385; Johnston, Cleveland, .376; Speaker, Cleveland, .376.

Johnston, Brooklyn, is leading the National League batters with a mark of .525, while Tierney, of Pittsburg, is the runner-up with .461; Maranville, of Pittsburg, is third with .407. Maranville went into a tie with Southworth, of Boston, for stolen bases, each having four.

Other leading batters: Bruggy, Philadelphia, .381; Griffith, Brooklyn, .378; Kelly, New York, .372; Barbare, Boston, .370; Maisel, Chicago, .368; Meusel, Philadelphia, .364.

Kelly Goes Ahead

NEW YORK, April 30. — First Baseman Kelly, of the Giants, knocked his sixth home run of the season, in the seventh inning of today's game with Boston, with the bases full. This puts him ahead of Babe Ruth, whose total to date is five home runs.

MANN CUP APPEARS LIKELY TO STAY HERE

Orangeville Asks Con Jones to Arrange Matches With Victoria and Guarantee Them a Paltry $4,500

VANCOUVER, April 30. — Even amateur lacrosse comes high these days. Orangeville players, Ontario champions, are willing to come to the Coast and play for the Mann Cup.

They so advised Con Jones in a wire received today. They have asked the local man to arrange four matches, two cup games at Victoria and two exhibition matches here. All they ask in return is a guarantee of $4,500.

Mr. Jones will reply that there is "nothing doing."

"Victoria holds the cup and it is for Orangeville to deal with them," the Vancouver man stated.

CHURCHMEN START NEW TENNIS CLUB

Following out a carefully thought out all round programme of mid-week activities, the First Presbyterian Church Athletic Association has recently organised a tennis club. Two courts have been rented for the season at the corner of Stanley and Gladstone Avenues and will be used by the club on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. Already some twenty-five applications are in, although the season has as yet hardly commenced. Membership will be limited to adherents and members of First Church.

In order to encourage beginners and to create general interest, handicap tournaments are being arranged to commence at an early date. Under this plan the mature player will compete on equal terms with the novice. Arrangements are also being made to enter a full quota of teams in the newly-organised Victoria Sunday School Tennis League.

ELKS' BALL PLAYERS PRACTISE TOMORROW

The Elks' baseball team will get down to work tomorrow evening at the Stadium in preparation for this season's activities. Last season the Elks won the City League and will endeavor to repeat again. Walter Lorimer will again have them in hand and has signed a very likely looking lot of players. Some of last year's team will not be with them, but in their places others have been booked up who will ably fill the vacancies. The practice tomorrow evening will commence at 7 o'clock (daylight saving time) and any player wishing a game will be welcomed.

BENEFIT GAME ENDS WITHOUT ANY SCORE

G.W.V.A. and the Sons of England Battled Full Distance Without Single Goal Being Registered

A fairly even soccer game resulted in the match between the G.W.V.A. and the Sons of England at the Royal Athletic Park yesterday afternoon, and with both teams going hard the full distance no score resulted. No replay has been decided upon, as the game was a benefit one. A fair crowd turned out for the event, and the collection made will be devoted to the G.W.V.A. fund for veterans in need.

In the first half play seesawed from one end to the other of the field without either side having much of an advantage. The Sons of England had an excellent chance to register on a foul, but the Veterans' goalie was ready and waiting and cleverly diverted the shot.

In the second half the G.W.V.A. seemed to have slightly the edge on the going, although the Sons were keeping up a good strong pace. Neither side seemed able to penetrate the goals. Clarkson, of the Veterans, made a couple of good shots which missed by a narrow margin. Although there was no decision, the spectators found lots to interest them in the play.

The game was refereed by Mr. Oliver, whose decisions were fair and impartial.

The teams were:

G.W.V.A.—Shrimpton; Rickinson and Breadner; J. Allen, F. Wright and J. Miller; Clarkson, A. Muir, Brewster, G. Allan and Caskie.

S.O.E.—Hetherington; Carmichael and Munro; Tupman, Mesher and Harper; Walters, Bloom, Small, Ruggles and Davis; reserve, Watt.

Baseball Practice

The Conservative Baseball Club will practice on the Stadium grounds next Tuesday and Friday at 6 p.m.

PROGRESS ON NEW DRYDOCK

Acquisition of Power Line This Week Will Give Construction Impetus—Employment Will Be Gradual

Construction work on the drydock at this time consists largely of the building of a cofferdam off the mouth of Constance Cove. The trestle shown in the accompanying illustration is the initial stage in the cofferdam work, and in its place eventually will be a solid mass of rock and clay. The water will then be pumped from within the enclosure thus made, leaving a perfectly dry location, essential to the construction of the dock.

Constance Cove, the actual drydock site, scarcely shows more than its edge in this picture. The narrowing stretch on the extreme left is the entrance to the Cove, at that point about 200 feet wide, and running inland for some distance. The dredge is engaged in its operations within the cove itself, and appears in the second illustration.

The nature of the work makes construction necessarily slow. At the present time about 120 men are employed on the various jobs under way, and this number will be increased this week. The power line put in by the B.C. Electric from their Jordan River plant will be in operation within a few days, permitting the use of steam shovels and air drills, and calling for the employment of men to man them. Hitherto hand drilling only has been carried on.

It is estimated that at no time will any very great number of men be required for the job. In six weeks some 250 may be on the payroll, and when the task is in full blast between 400 and 500 only will be needed. The tales that thousands would be employed on the work have been declared fictitious by the engineers in charge.

TALTHYBIUS SAILED OUTWARD YESTERDAY

Fast Passage of Tyndareus to Seattle Occasioned Reunion of Three Veteran Shipmasters of Holt Line

The Talthybius, of the Blue Funnel Fleet, reached here from Seattle yesterday morning and passed out to sea after taking on passengers and mails at this port.

At Seattle, the Talthybius and the Tyndareus were berthed at the same dock, and three veteran shipmasters of the Holt Line took advantage of the opportunity to have an informal reunion. Captain Francis, of the latter ship, following the custom of yearly reliefs in the North Pacific service, was relieved of his command at the Sound port, being succeeded by Captain C. A. Wilson, and will leave in a few days for his home in England for a vacation. Captain Wilson will take the Tyndareus out on her next voyage.

The third mariner of the trio was Captain H. W. Wilkinson, another veteran of the Holt service, in command of the Talthybius. The arrival of the Tyndareus brought about the unique incident of two of the largest types of liners in the operation of the company berthing at the same dock. The speed made by the Tyndareus, which arrived on Friday, made the meeting possible, as had she arrived on schedule she would have docked after the sailing of the Talthybius.

It has been several years since Captains Wilkinson, Franela and Wilson, three of the hardiest as well as most experienced shipmasters in the British service, had met.

MONTEAGLE ARRIVES HERE THIS MORNING

The C.P.O.S. liner Monteagle will make port here this morning at an early hour. The Monteagle reported through the Estevan wireless station yesterday that she would arrive at William Head at nine last night and would pass in the dock after passing the medical inspection at daylight.

Aboard the vessel is a valuable silk cargo worth in the neighborhood of $3,000,000, and large lots of freight. Passengers include 550 Chinese in the steerage, most of them routed through to the Atlantic seaboard, to Cuba and Tampico. About one hundred will scatter throughout British Columbia.

COULD NOT TRAVEL AT EXPRESS PACE

NEW YORK, April 30.—The motor cruiser Gar II., Jr., of Detroit, racing against passenger train time from Miami, Florida, to New York completed the last leg of her voyage here today. Her actual running time for 1,260 miles was announced by her commander, Gar Wood, as 47 hours and 23 minutes.

The running time of the Havana Special over the Atlantic Coast line which Gar Wood tried to better was 42 hours for 1,480 miles. This time included all regular stops and a wait of one hour at Washington.

CONFER ON CARGO RATES TO INDIA

VANCOUVER, April 30.—A meeting of representatives of the Canadian Robert Dollar Company, the Admiral Line, and the C.G.M.M. Ltd., will be held on Monday to establish a regular base of freight rates beyond Singapore. These steamship lines are the ones operating to India out of Vancouver.

It is reported that the U.S. Steel Co. has purchased the steamers Robin Goodfellow, Robin Adair, Robin Gray and Robin Hood and will operate them on the Vancouver run from New York, in addition to the Isthmian Line.

CANADIAN WINNER COMING TOMORROW

Will be Drydocked and Overhauled by Victoria Machinery Depot Before Unloading at Vancouver

The Canadian Winner will be here on Monday for minor repairs and overhauling preparatory to her second sailing in the C.G.M.M. service to Australia. It had been expected at first that the vessel would be again sent to sea without going into drydock, but present arrangements call for the arrival of the ship at Esquimalt early tomorrow morning. She will be floated into the dock at 6 a.m., and the Victoria Machinery Depot will attend to the work.

The Winner comes here from Seattle, where she has been unloading the greater part of her cargo. The balance of her freight will remain aboard the vessel until she proceeds to Vancouver after drydocking. The job will be rushed through at a fast pace in order that the ship may get away with the rest of her cargo.

The task of refitting the Princess Victoria with three new funnels has been completed by the Victoria Machinery Depot. The fast three-stacker has been alongside the plant wharf for several weeks, and the making and installation of the stacks has now been finished. The Victoria will be taken to the C.P.R. wharf tomorrow, where the interior finishing will be carried out.

The contract for the making of the winches to be installed in the new Canadian Pacific boat under construction at the Wallace Shipyard in North Vancouver has been secured by the Victoria Machinery Depot from the builders.

The Canadian Government Fishery patrol boat Thiepval will be hauled out on the ways on Wednesday for annual overhaul.

WAGES ADJUSTED IN PORT ARTHUR YARDS

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., April 30.—Employees of the Port Arthur Shipbuilding Company's plant have accepted a reduction of 17 per cent in wages, effective May 1. The working hours, however, have been increased from 48 hours per week to 55, which means an actual reduction in wages of helpers of $1.10 a week and of skilled mechanics approximately $1.65. A bonus of 2½ cents an hour is also granted to all shopmen employed on repair jobs, and five cents an hour to all men of the plants actually employed on the vessels under repair.

HAMBURG-AMERICAN DIVIDEND DECLARED

BERLIN, April 30.—At a meeting of the Hamburg-American Line at Hamburg yesterday, a dividend of 8 per cent each for the years 1919 and 1920 was declared.

According to The Vossische Zeitung the directors declined to re-elect Hugo Stinnes a member of the board, because Stinnes took his first postwar opportunity to start competitive service to South America.

LIGHTSHIP CREW LANDED IN SAFETY

SEATTLE, April 30.—Five men from the relief lightship at Umatilla Reef, off the Washington Coast, who went adrift in an open boat during the gale Thursday night, landed safely that night at Ozette, an Indian village south of Cape Flattery, and returned to the lightship at 8 o'clock this morning.

TWO MORE KNOTS OF CABLE TO PAY OUT

Darkness interfered with the completion of the job of laying the new submarine cable of the B. C. Telephone Company between Point Grey and Nanaimo yesterday. At dusk last night, with only two more knots to pay out, the cable barge Iwalani and the C. P. P. tug Dola anchored off Gabriola Island, outside Nanaimo.

The start was made at 4 o'clock yesterday morning from the Mainland, and the work prosecuted in the face of the most unfavorable weather conditions. Rain and wind hampered the operations throughout the whole day, and the forty men engaged in the job managed to get as far as they did only by herculean efforts. The crew was in continuous telephonic communication with Vancouver throughout. The cable is thirty knots in length.

GIRL GUIDE NOTES

The weekly Girl Guide O. T. C. is drawing to a close for the season. The classes held the last two Thursdays have been exceptionally interesting. On the 21st Miss H. M. Wright gave a talk on physical exercises, demonstrating what to do and what not to do. Last Thursday Mrs. McNeill gave a thoroughly practical instruction on the care of infants, which proved so interesting that by general request she has kindly consented to continue it next Thursday, carrying it on to the care of children of about two years. This will probably be the last meeting for a time.

Last Friday evening Mrs. McNeill attended the drill of No. 1 and No. 2 companies, and taught the Guides country dancing, which was very much enjoyed. No. 2 Company had a very full attendance of over four patrols.

No. 4 (Gonzales) Company has been going ahead lately, as recruits are joining every week. A patrol of this company attended St. Mary's Church last Sunday morning on the occasion of the patriotic service for St. George's Day.

The revived No. 5 (Florence Nightingale) Company, at Foul Bay, is meeting with an encouraging response. Mrs. Bailey has already sufficient recruits to overfill two patrols. All are working hard to pass their Tenderfoot tests, and the first enrolment will be the occasion of a special ceremony.

Guide officers attended the patriotic service at the Metropolitan Church last Sunday by special invitation.

MARINE STRIKE BEGINS TODAY

Government Mediation Still Is Hope of Workers—Commission Hangs Fire—Benson Firm for Reduction

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Just one concrete result came today out of conferences here looking to a settlement of the wage dispute between the American Shipowners, the Shipping Board and the Marine Workers. That was an order by Chairman Benson to all operators of Government merchant craft to reduce wages 15 per cent, effective at midnight tonight. Apparently none of those participating in the conferences were prepared to say what would be the full effect of the order. William S. Brown, president of the Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association, said the engineers had been instructed not to sign articles calling for wage cuts, while Andrew Furuseth, president of the International Seamen's Union, stated the members of his union had voted against signing such articles. Chairman Benson's order came while President Harding and his secretaries of Labor and Commerce were consulting on the advisability of appointment of a commission of three to mediate the controversy.

The suggestion that such a commission be named was made by the union representatives, who agreed to abide by any award it would make.

Benson Opposes Commission

Both Mr. Furuseth and Mr. Brown were hopeful tonight that the commission would be appointed and a suspension of work by the marine employees averted. On the other hand Shipping Board officials declared Chairman Benson was opposed to mediation by a commission. His position from the first has been that at least a 15 per cent wage reduction was necessary, and that the responsibility rested with the owners and the men to come to an agreement.

At the White House it was said that the President did not intend to appoint any commission, but that such a body might be named by Secretaries Davis and Hoover, in whose hands, it was stated, the whole matter had been placed. Meantime, however, Secretary Davis had left for Philadelphia, and did not expect to return until tomorrow. Commerce Department officials said Secretary Hoover probably would take no action with respect to the appointment of a commission in the absence of Mr. Davis.

Only Government Ships

The cut will apply only to Government employees on ships. The shipowners have contended for an even larger cut, and were expected by Shipping Board officials to follow the board's example. It was stated that even if the men refused to sign up at the new scale there would not be any immediate general tying up of shipping in the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf Coasts, because many vessels are at sea and the men must serve until they are brought to port. The service, however, will be at the existing wage scales.

Shipping Board officers said they had laid plans to keep the Government fleet in operation in the event of a walkout. It was stated that there were some 30,000 seafaring men idle and that little difficulty in manning the ships was anticipated.

Wheat Trade in France

PARIS, April 30.—Limited freedom of commerce in wheat would be restored by a bill adopted by the Chamber of Deputies here yesterday. The bill requires the Government to buy the remainder of the wheat crop at 100 francs per quintal if it is not sold commercially.

GRIPPING DRAMA ON COLUMBIA'S SCREEN

"The Window Opposite" With Particularly Strong Cast Will be Shown Monday for Three Days

"The Window Opposite," Ivan Film Productions' new, gripping drama, is the feature at the Columbia Theatre for the first three days of this week. The strength of the cast that interprets the leading parts in the production, which includes Leah Baird, James Morrison, Violet Palmer, Ed. Mackay and Ben Hendricks, aroused much favorable comment from the New York press in its reviews of the attraction, when it was shown at Broadway's biggest showhouse, the New York Theatre. Unquestionably the audiences seeing "The Window Opposite" at the Columbia Theatre will give hearty approval.

"SCRAMBLED WIVES" WILL BE AT ROYAL

Miss Marguerite Clark, the Petite Star, Returns to Screen and Appears at Royal Victoria on Tuesday

Miss Marguerite Clark has selected for her first independent film production the comedy, "Scrambled Wives," one of the Broadway successes of last season. In this vehicle, which is released by Associated First National Pictures, Inc., she comes to the Royal Victoria Theatre, opening her engagement Tuesday. Miss Clark plays the part of Mary Lucila Smith, a young girl who thinks she has a "dark and terrible past" to hide. The secret in her life is that as a result of a perfectly innocent boarding school escapade, she had been rushed into a marriage with a boy whom she scarcely knew. Luckily she was rescued from this embarrassing situation almost before the ceremony was completed. The marriage was quietly annulled, and Mary Lucile packed off to Europe to forget her mad prank. Coming back, she falls in love with resigned. The Colonel thanked him and told him he would have done the same thing in his place. Then Hart went back to marry the girl presumably.

That's the story in a nutshell of "O'Malley of the Mounted," by Wm. S. Hart, adapted and directed by Lambert Hillyer, which will be shown at the Dominion Theatre all week.

It is a story of human character, of great daring, of love and sturdy manhood and many thrilling moments. It is a story to make the spectator grip the arms of his chair and wait with bated breath the outcome. Eva Novak heads a splendid supporting company.

"OUT OF THE SNOWS" IS MOUNTED POLICE FILM

Great Difficulties Were Overcome in Production of Story of Northwest Showing on Variety's Screen Tomorrow

When Ralph Ince decided to play the leading role of Constable Bob Holliday in the new National Picture, "Out of the Snows," which comes to the Variety Theatre all this week, he was confronted with the difficulty of obtaining a correct uniform for the part. As a member of the Northwest Mounted Police he needed a special uniform, and for the sake of the picture it had to be a true duplicate of the uniforms worn by the members of the mounted police.

From Thomas McGrand, who was a corporal in the R. N. W. M. P. during the rebellion of '85 in Canada, and from Colonel Wm. Donaldson, official with the Canadian Northwest Pacific, he obtained some photographs of the uniform, and the two men described the coloring to him.

Mr. Ince had the costume completed and submitted it to these two gentlemen for inspection. After close examination they both said they believed he could pass without difficulty as a sworn member of the famous R. N. W. M. P.

The story of "Out of the Snows" is set in the romantic period of the latter eighties, after the Rebellion, and has to do with the great work of the mounted police in restoring law and order to the restless and lawless elements on the edges of civilization in Canada.

ALLEGED FUN

Larry Semon gave his supporting cast the hardest workout of their film careers in the whirlwind finish of his latest comedy, "The Bakery." This picture is now being completed at Vitagraph's Western studios. Milled about in a myriad of cakes, plunged three stories into vats of dough and thence into kegs of black paint, the troupe had a mad time of it following Larry through the mirth-provoking sequences. When the scenes were finished the clothes of all the players had to be cut off of them with knives and scissors. "The Bakery" is designed to be on a par with Larry Semon's fun and action classic, "The Grocery Clerk."

NEW YORK'S LATEST SUCCESS COMES HERE

Revival of Erminie With All Originals in Cast Will be Produced Under Auspices of Victoria Dramatic Society

The very name "Erminie" brings back to the older generation of playgoer one long line of delightful memories upon which he never tires to dwell. Produced at the Comedy Theatre, London, in 1885, with Florence ("Jack") St. John in the title role, singing as only "Jack" could the charming music of Jacobowski, the opera started on a career of success which still continues to this very day.

So convinced were the big theatrical magnates of New York that "Erminie" contained all the very essence of popular comic opera that they decided to reproduce it on Broadway—not only that, but they scoured the earth to get as many of the original American cast as possible—Madge Lessing, De Wolf Hopper, Frances Wilson, to mention only a few of them. As is usual in such cases, the carping critic was not lacking to throw cold water on the project—"the opera was out of date," "the music too simple," "revue is the only stuff that pays," etc., etc. But, oh, how foolish those critics are looking today! From the very opening performance "Erminie" again walked straight into the hearts of the public and recorded one of the greatest revival successes ever known.

And so it will always be, because in "Erminie" the public has got what it really wants, good clean comedy set to tuneful and, above all, simple music. There is no need to be a student of music or an expert in "jazz," so syncopated that it needs a special education to follow it, to understand the charming illt that runs through the whole score. The comedy needs no equivocal "bedroom" scenes to keep the audience in fits of laughter, and while the chorus are as unlike the modern "revue" girls as can well be imagined, they make one of the prettiest pictures ever put upon the stage.

The Victoria Dramatic Society thought that they could pay the public of their native city no more fitting compliment than to produce for their entertainment a genuine New York success at a time when it was even then drawing crowded houses on Broadway, and "Erminie" will be produced here shortly.

WM. S. HART PLAYS BANDIT IN NEW FILM

In O'Malley of the Mounted," Rides Into Bank and Robs Cashier to Prove Himself Bad

William S. Hart rode into a bank in a small town the other day and took $5,000 from the cashier, making his escape to the hills with little difficulty! He committed this crime to ingratiate himself with "The Hill Gang" which had been menacing the town for some time, in order to catch a fugitive from justice who was under the protection of the bandits. He was exposed later and barely escaped with his life, owing to the help of the very man he had come to capture, who befriended him because he, in turn, had befriended the fugitive's sister.

Being a member of the Canadian Mounted Police, Hart had to take his man. But on this side the border he found he could not bring himself to repay kindness by placing the youthful slayer's neck in the noose, so he left him and going to headquarters,

"POINT OF VIEW" IS STORY OF SACRIFICES

"It all depends on where you sit," is an old saying which aptly describes Elaine Hammerstein's latest Selznick picture, "The Point of View," which is announced as the headline attraction at Pantages Theatre tomorrow and Tuesday.

Miss Hammerstein is seen in this production as the daughter of a once wealthy father. The girl is the only practical member of a family who have never had to provide for themselves and who consequently are completely lost when adversity strikes them. Hitherto the Thorncroft family have always looked down upon anyone not born of the blood, but their point of view is changed by a big-hearted young Westerner, who capably demonstrates to them that when a friend is needed it is red blood that counts far more than blue.

"The Point of View" is one of those "common sense" pictures that avoid all extremes of theatricalism and puts over its point by the real true-to-life situations it depicts. The story is by Edith Ellis, and Alan Crosland directed the picture.

Rockliffe Fellows, Arthur Housman, Hugh Huntley, Cornish Beck and Warren Cook are among those who support Miss Hammerstein in this fine screen play.

Elaine Hammerstein shattered the time-honored maxim that a woman cannot be beautiful and really emotional at the same time. In "The Point of View" she has a role that calls for every shade of feeling ranging from lighter moments to the dismay of a misunderstood wife whose motives for marrying are questioned by the husband she loves. The story is absorbing, and the suspense has been skilfully handled by the director.

Close attention to detail which has characterized previous Selznick productions makes this one an unusually pleasing picture. Rockliffe Fellows, hearty and refreshing as ever, plays the blundering Western millionaire, whose good intentions bring him into a swirl of domestic complications in Eastern society.

ORGAN RECITAL

Interesting Programme to Be Given at St. Paul's Church, Esquimalt, on May 5

An interesting programme of organ and vocal numbers has been arranged for the recital to be given at St. Paul's Naval and Garrison Church, Esquimalt, Thursday, May 5, at 8:15 p.m.

Compositions by Guilmant, Lemare, Gounod, Rachmaninoff, etc., will be played, including the famous "Prelude in C-sharp Minor" of the latter composer.

The assisting vocalists for the occasion are Mrs. J. V. Mesten, who is well known and deservedly popular with Victoria audiences, and Mr. S. T. White, baritone.

The three-manuel organ in St. Paul's Church is a very fine example of a typical church organ, possessing a breadth and dignity of tone associated with the instruments usually met with in the parish churches and smaller cathedrals of the Old Land.

The organ numbers will be played by T. R. Myers, the church organist.

WHO PUTS SENSE IN CENSORSHIP?

Well-Known Authority Says That Producers, Backed by Public, Are Responsible for Any Improvements Made

"Is there any sense in censorship?" inquiries Jesse L. Lasky, vice-president in charge of production of Paramount pictures, in the current issue of The Pictorial Review.

His reply is not an academic discussion, but rather a citation of instances from the only four states that have tried to blue pencil the films.

Some of the amusing conflicts of opinion in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Kansas and Illinois are thus described by Mr. Lasky:

"One of the finest gems in the crown of the censors was flashed in Pennsylvania. It is a rich jewel indeed. Pennsylvania's estimable board of censors decreed that no kiss on the film should exceed eight feet. Do you know what that means? It means that no two people may be shown on the screen kissing for longer than five seconds! How they arrived at the decision that eight feet of film was enough for a kiss, I do not attempt to guess. I only know the facts. No son can kiss his mother or any wife her husband for more than five seconds in Pennsylvania. Heaven knows why. I don't. Neither am I psychologist enough to tell why in Pennsylvania it is immoral to intimate the coming of motherhood in any manner whatsoever. The censors there have barred pictures of women knitting garments for babies that were to come; they have eliminated the showing of a cradle before a baby came to fill it. Can stupidity go further? I hope not.

Appeals to Court

"One producer complained of these arbitrary and meaningless rulings and asked for a reason. He was told it was because the children believed that storks brought the babies and that they did not want to disabuse any child's mind. So he went back to his studio and made a picture in which a stork hovered over the scene. And they cut that out, too, for some reason known only to themselves. But the harassed producer was not satisfied and went to court, with the result that the mandate of these ridiculous censors was reversed.

"And censors, like physicians, don't always agree among themselves. In Kansas, for instance, they will not permit the showing of 'The Birth of a Nation.' Pennsylvania passed it when it was first produced and Ohio admitted it after many months of deliberation. The Pennsylvania censors attempted to prevent the showing of 'The Miracle Man,' but were unsuccessful. Incidentally 'The Miracle Man' has been hailed as one of the most uplifting motion pictures ever produced.

"In Camille, Dumas' immortal drama, Pennsylvania censors wanted to have Camille married to Armand, but the courts said it couldn't be done. The merry censors said 'The Easiest Way' was an immoral title, and the courts again overruled them. They saved the soul of Pennsylvania by cutting out of one picture the immoral title, 'If we only had a little one of our own,' spoken by a perfectly respectable married woman to her own husband, and they prevented the showing upon the screen in 'The Eternal Magdalen,' the Biblical quotations, 'He that is without sin among you, let him cast the first stone,' and 'Neither do I condemn thee; go, and sin no more.' These lines were immoral, the censors said. The censors said, mind you, and yet these words of the Master's are repeated in every church in Christendom. Isn't it pathetic? But isn't it terrible, too?

Personal Liberty

"Ohio and Pennsylvania do agree on one thing—that it is wrong to show in the news weeklies scenes illustrating clashes between labor and capital. A year ago, while the newspapers were full of articles about the coal and steel strikes, with pictures of the rioting, Ohio barred scenes of the coal strike riots and Pennsylvania would not allow theatres to show scenes of the trouble in the steel-yards. If that isn't interfering with personal liberty, what is?

"But these states evidently believe that the public should be kept in ignorance of labor troubles. Whether it is because the politicians object or not, I do not know. Ohio censors cut scenes out of a picture that suggested that managers of corporations sometimes use violence in strikes.

"Pennsylvania barred 'Mary's Ankle,' 'Dangerous Hours,' 'The Palliser Case,' 'The Woman in the Suitcase' and 'The Cup of Fury,' but Ohio said they were all right. Ohio censors will not permit pictures of girls in one-piece bathing suits, but the august censors in Pennsylvania say that it is quite right to do so.

"Pennsylvania passed 'The Cheat,' which ran for many months, but when a new print of this picture was sent to Pennsylvania the board rejected it. When the board learned that 'The Cheat' had been passed once, it changed its mind and allowed the picture to be shown again. Can you beat that for wobbly indecision?

"Perhaps these inconsistencies and stupidities could be forgiven if these censors had in any way improved the tone of the motion pictures they censored. But they have not. Far from it, indeed. Censorship has been an acknowledged failure. The great improvement in motion pictures in the last five years has been brought about, not by irresponsible censors, but primarily by responsible producers who have had the support of the public in the production of fine photoplay."

"BLUFF KING HAL" AND HIS TIMES FILMED

Magnitude of "Deception" Depicting Court Life During Reign of Henry VIII., Shown By Latest Statistics

The following statistics have been gathered as showing the magnitude of "Deception," depicting the times of Henry VIII., the European picture directed by Ernest Lubitsch, director of "Passion," which is soon to be released as a Paramount picture:

Seven months in the making.
200 carpenters.
400 stucco workers.
Three months spent in building sets alone.
12,000 square yards of canvas.
14,000 sacks of plaster.
200,000 pounds of iron.
135,000 pieces of walling stone.
84,000 roof tiles.
12,000 square yards of paving stone.

From these statistics some idea can be gained of the magnitude of "Deception," which is said to be the most stupendous production that has ever come from European shores. Everything in connection with the picture is written in big figures and, in addition to the dramatic appeal of a story of a woman's love behind a throne, the picture promises a lasting revelation in spectacular settings and thrills.

The sets for "Deception," which required the tremendous amount of time, labor and material outlined above, are said to represent only a part of the outlay in the making of this production. For months before work was commenced the art director for the picture devoted himself to research work studying the styles of architecture, ornamentation and arrangement of British streets of the 16th century which figure prominently in the picture.

Similar study was given to the more aristocratic surroundings of the Royal Court Yard and Westminster Abbey. In the tilt at arms in the courtyard one actually sees the stately outlines of the royal palace rising before the audience on the screen.

The selection of the drawings marked the initiation of construction work which took three months, the picture requiring seven months in all to make. Director Ernest Lubitsch personally supervised the making of every scene and directed the acting of the continental stars, Henry Porten, who takes the leading role of Anne Boleyn, and Emil Jennings as King Henry VIII.

Among massive scenes of motion picture because the tournament scene in "Deception" is unapproached for this one set alone 500 horses in armor mounted by challenging knights, and 7,000 extras were required. The scene is typical of the massiveness of the entire production which not only offers the most pretentious spectacle ever presented to the American screen but also sets a definite standard in artistic hugeness of production that is apt to remain unchallenged for a long period.

PRESENT PLAY BY SPECIAL REQUEST

"Johnny Get Your Gun" to Be Presented by Mildred Page Players on Wednesday With Mr. Aldenn in Title Role

"Johnny Get Your Gun" has long been requested by the regular patrons of the Princess Theatre, and at last the management has secured the play and it is now in rehearsal, and will be produced on Wednesday night with Mr. Aldenn in the title role.

There is a splendid production being prepared and a larger cast than usual will appear in this ripping comedy drama. The comedy is real comedy, and there are some very exciting moments when Mr. Aldenn, as the cowboy brother of dainty "Miss Janet Burnham," comes straight from a moving picture studio to rescue his little sister from a fortune-hunting Duke. There are many complications, and plots within plots, but at the last it all comes out with the popular happy ending.

At the Wednesday night performance another large framed portrait of Miss Page will be presented the one guessing nearest the correct number of words spoken by Miss Page in "Rich Man, Poor Man," last week.

"Johnny Get Your Gun" begins on Wednesday and continues the balance of the week, and comes as a direct response to dozens of requests for the same, and Mr. Aldenn as "Johnny" is going to again prove his versatility; "Johnny" being a direct contrast to the beautiful old man character he played last week.

"Johnny Get Your Gun," four days, beginning Wednesday night, at the Princess.

MME. ROTHWELL IS ORCHESTRA'S SOLOIST

Internationally Known Dramatic Soprano Appears Here on Friday With Lost Angeles Philharmonic Aggregation

Madame Elizabeth Rothwell, internationally known dramatic soprano, is the soloist with the Philharmonic Orchestra of Los Angeles, now on its annual Spring tour of five weeks. Owing to the heavy bookings of this famous organization only thirty-five of the larger Western cities can be visited this year. The local concert will be given Friday, May 6, at the Royal Victoria Theatre.

This is Madame Rothwell's first appearance here. The compelling power of this great artist has won her unqualified recognition in Europe and America. The operatic annals of European music centres mention her name prominently as an artist who combines rare beauty of voice with eloquent interpretative talent. Thanks to her operatic experience Mme. Rothwell inspires her concert appearance with a dramatic element seldom found in the concert hall. Used to cope with the great climaxes of large orchestras, her voice has attained a range and a volume which rises easily above the tonal wealth produced by the seventy-five artist players of this remarkable organization. Incidentally, Conductor Rothwell, the husband of the soloist, is noted for the excellency of his accompaniments, which serve as a well-attuned harmonious background of the solo. Rudolph Ganz, the famous pianist, when playing with the orchestra, exclaimed that he had never found better support either by a conductor or orchestra.

Though a well known figure in the musical life of New York or the Southwest, Madame Rothwell in each instance has attracted capacity houses through her exquisite singing and her magnetic personality.

As there are women who wear dresses which would suit any of her fair sisters better than herself, so there are artists who often choose beautiful selections which neither fit their voices nor their temperament. Not so Mme. Rothwell, who by the way masters vocal works in four languages, English, French, Italian and German. This linguistic capacity enables her to choose from the entire vocal literature, with the result that her programme numbers fit her type of expression as a dramatic role a great actress.

Madame Rothwell sums up the secret of her wonderful art, that "Singing is the language of the soul." And it is in this instance that the language is conveyed in rich, golden tones of bell-like quality.

CIVIC GOLF LINKS AT BEACON HILL

Proposal Made by Mr. J. C. Pendray to Incoming Executive of Island Development League Friday Night

The Municipal Golf Links idea is not yet a perished ideal. Previous to the meeting of the Victoria and Island Development Association, held Friday night at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, Mr. J. C. Pendray proposed to recommend to the incoming executive that they push the matter; he had evidently given the idea some consideration, and had gone so far as to approach the City Engineer with the purpose of discovering if there would be sufficient room for a nine-hole course in that section of Beacon Hill Park bounded on the east and north by Heywood Avenue, and on the west and south by the road running through the park which is a continuation of Rupert Street. The area, which is now occupied by the deer and by the single goat, which is the property of the park commissioners, is embraced in the scheme, if permission can be gained from the city to appropriate the ground for the purposes of a link. The City Engineer had acknowledged that the proposed territory was quite sufficient for a nine-hole course. Mr. Pendray did not propose to encroach on the children's playground. The park was large and there was abundant room for this if it were moved. The matter, however, was not brought up, it being decided to leave it over to another meeting.

Mr. Pendray also recommended to the incoming executive that they use their influence to get through the by-law in Saanich for water for Gordon Head. The city had made a very liberal offer to Saanich, and both would benefit very materially by its acceptance, and the city eventually would have a big customer for their water.

C. P. R. Co-operation

Mr. J. G. Thomson, secretary of the Development Association, gave a comprehensive summary of the year's work in his annual report, at the very beginning referring with much appreciation to the splendid co-operation which the organization had secured from the Canadian Pacific Railway, which represented "not only extensive and very valuable publicity for the development of our tourist patronage, but gives us representation in the industrial opportunity literature issued by the Industrial Department of that company, setting forth the industrial opportunities Victoria and the Island have to offer. This representation was secured by your commissioner through representatives of the Industrial Department of the company, and has already shown its value by creating inquiries as to the establishment of industries on the Island, some of which will materialize when business conditions improve. An extension of the co-operation of the railways has been secured from the Canadian National Railways and some of the leading United States transcontinental lines having a primary interest in the Pacific Northwest, through which channels we will secure very widespread publicity of a nature that the limited finances of this Association would not permit.

Tourist Travel

"Our special report showed that whereas the annual report for 1919 gave the number of tourist visitors to our shores as 10,000, the estimate for the season of 1920, based on a conservative percentage of the number of passengers carried between Vancouver and Victoria, and Seattle and Victoria by C.P.R. boats, is 40,000 as having stopped at Victoria, and although many of these tourists made short stays here, a substantial percentage remained for some time.

"The automobile tourist travel during the season of 1920 was a disappointment, as the movement was retarded by the gasoline shortage in the Pacific States, but even with that drawback 1,392 machines were recorded by the Customs of Victoria. In addition, it is estimated that 500 autos reached here from Vancouver, and which are not checked by Customs.

"Our Information Bureau service has been commented on by visitors as of particular value to the stranger and as an example to other cities catering to tourist patronage.

"A better class of literature was issued during the season of 1920 than ever before and with the co-operation of the railways a wider distribution secured for it. Our Summer newspaper and periodical advertising was largely confined to California, Oregon, Washington and Idaho, and excellent results were obtained.

For the occasion of the Hudson's Bay celebration, members of your Association were called on to take important parts, and all outside publicity was prepared and distributed by your association.

In the important event of the visit of the Imperial Press Conference party, your commissioner was called upon to act on the committee of entertainment and conduct the necessary correspondence, and through the cordial co-operation of Mr. R. P. Butchart and of Mr. Hugh Savage, Mayor Thomas Pitt and Kenneth Duncan, M.P.P., of Duncan, and the Reeve of North Cowichan, the entertainment provided, as expressed by members of the party, was decidedly original and more thoroughly enjoyed than any event in their trip through Canada.

A special pamphlet was prepared by your commissioner on the agricultural opportunities of the Island for distribution in Great Britain, and through the kindness of Mr. Thomas Walker, a large supply of these was taken personally by him to London, and distribution arranged for, the results of which have been evidenced by many inquiries that can be directly traced to the publication.

Co-operating with some of our prominent insurance men towards securing the Life Underwriters' Association convention for next August, your commissioner circularized all members of the association in Canada, and furnished them with our descriptive literature, which a ted in influencing their decision for this city as the meeting place and at which it is expected about 500 will attend.

Newspaper Convention

Your commissioner has worked on the proposition of bringing the Weekly Canadian Newspaper Association to this city in June, with the result that about 350 members and their wives, from Ontario and other provinces, will visit this city for two days. This should develop a valuable medium for publicity.

Your association carried out an extensive newspaper advertising campaign last Fall and Winter in the Prairie Provinces, and instead of confining it strictly to Winter tourist solicitation, incorporated an appeal to those who might be attracted to the opportunities in small acreage devoted to small fruit growing, poultry raising and dairying, in an ideal climate, with the result that fifty per cent of a very large inquiry received asked for such information. It will be substantiated by many of our prominent realty dealers that the bulk of their sales last Winter was acreage in Saanich. A producing element of such settlers in our hinterland will represent an important asset to Victoria. In addition to Saanich many were attracted to the Cowichan district and some to Metchosin. It is the opinion of Mr. Blair, secretary of the Dominion Immigration Department at Ottawa, that the settlement of Vancouver Island should be built up from the Prairie Provinces, as the Prairie farmers can more readily adapt themselves to our Island conditions and become producers. It is therefore suggested that we extend our advertising on the Prairies.

Through the generosity of your president, the City of Victoria was given some excellent publicity on the Prairies through the distribution of 20,000 calendars depicting views of this city's attractions and prepared and distributed by the B. A. Paint Company at no cost to this association. Following up this valuable publicity, your association has secured the co-operation of your president in producing and issuing 50,000 calendars for distribution this Fall through the hands of the B. A. Paint Company's sales force.

Valuable Publicity

Your commissioner, as a result of his trip to the East and conferences with the passenger traffic heads of the Canadian Pacific, Canadian National, and certain of the American transcontinental railways, is in a position to assure you that Victoria and the Island this year will receive a vast amount of valuable publicity that should develop an extensive travel to our shores in the future.

The Canadian Pacific is issuing a special folder on the Island. The commissioner has had the opportunity of checking it over and making necessary corrections, and has furnished the photographs for the illustrations.

The passenger traffic manager, Canadian National Railways, is authorising much more extended publicity on Victoria and the Island in his company's literature.

Both the C.P.R. and C.N.R. are doing a great deal of newspaper advertising this season to hold the travel against a possible European movement, and Vancouver Island will be strongly featured.

The C.P.R. is extending the number of its Vancouver Island tours and is making them effective from May 1 to October 31, instead of from June 1 to September 30, as last year.

The passenger traffic manager of the C.P.R. advised your commissioner to confine the association's publicity propaganda to the Pacific States, and the C.P.R. would do the necessary publicity for Victoria and the Island in the East.

It is the opinion of the vice-president and the passenger traffic manager of the C.P.R., and of the president, and the general manager of Western lines of the Canadian National Railways that if Victoria would concentrate on developing the city as a tourist resort, with the necessary attractions to amuse and hold the visitor, it could be made one of the chief tourist centres of the continent with an enormous financial asset, and ultimately your population will largely increase.

Industrial Development

Your commissioner has given much time to industrial development and has had many conferences with representatives of certain interests contemplating the establishment at Victoria and on the Island of the following industries:

A box factory for the export trade.
A woodenware factory.
A wood pulp plant.
A milk condensory.
A woolen manufactory.
A tannery.

Your commissioner is also conducting correspondence at the present time that it is hoped will ultimately result in the establishment here of a cotton textile industry, and has recently held an interview with a gentleman who is endeavoring to invite interest in England to back the establishment of a silk industry, and who has received some encouragement from the Provincial Industrial Commissioner.

Present business conditions, however, do not warrant an early start of any of these undertakings, but assurances from the interests mentioned are that the projects will be carried on when financial and general conditions are more encouraging.

Your commissioner, on his trip to Eastern centres, called upon the heads of the leading tour companies and representatives of automobile clubs, and can report that from present indications there will be a heavy travel to the North Pacific Coast this season, both by rail and motor. In fact, it is expected that the motor travel to this Island will show an increase of 100 per cent this season over last.

Amusement Centre

One of the most urgent needs of our city to promote convention patronage and hold the Winter tourist is a pavilion suitable as a convention hall, and converted during the

Drawn by E. Harris, 3027 Fifth Street, Victoria, B.C. Age 13 years.

April, 1921.

"Thus, in the train of Spring, arrive
Sweet flowers; what living eye hath viewed
Their myriads?—endlessly renewed,
Wherever strikes the sun's glad rays,
Where'er the subtle waters stray,
Wherever sportive zephyrs bend,
Their course, or genial showers descend.
Mortals, rejoice! the very angels quit
Their mansions unsusceptible of change,
Amid your pleasant bowers to sit,
And through your sweet vicissitudes to range!

" 13—3. Tufted Saxifrage (Saxifraga coespitosa).
" 13—4. Field Chickweed (Cerastium arvensis), found by Betty Cornwall at William Head.
" 18—5. Zygadene (Zygadenus venenosus); found by Emily Wood at Beacon Hill.
" 18—6. Field Speedwell (Veronica arvensis), found by Eva Moody in a meadow at Lake Hill.
" 14—7. Small-flowered Buttercup (Ranunculus Bongardi), found by Irene Harris growing by side of road on Saturna Island.
" 78—8. Small Purple Clover (Trifolium albopurpureum), found by Nora McCullough in Beacon Hil Park.

Note.—Barbara Cox found a white Shooting Star (Dodecatheon latifolium) at William Head.

The Pink Wake Robin (Trillium ovatum) sent by Lilian Randerson from Alberni was a white one, beginning to wither.

The Vetch sent by Wilfrid Sawyer has been recorded before. It is Vicia augustifolia. We will be glad to hear from him again.

Will the contributor who sent a Lady's Slipper (Calypso bulbosa) with two flowers on one stem excuse the editor for mislaying her note and forgetting her name? We hope she will send other specimens.

The specimens sent by Betty Cornwall and Irene and Dorthy Harris were very nicely pressed and mounted. Betty gathered one flower too young, as did several other children.

The First Performance

THE monkey, Toby, was the pet and mascot of a theatrical company and had been given to the star actress by a friend from the Philippines. He lived for the most part in a cage at the back of the theatre, and was often allowed to run around in the yard while tied by a long rope.

One afternoon when all the players were busy on the stage and no one around, Toby chewed his rope in two and went into the building. The door of his mistress's dressing-room being open, he promptly walked in and made himself at home.

The first thing he did was to climb on to the dressing table and smooth his hair with one of the brushes. Then he poured a whole bottle of perfume on his head and rubbed it in with one of his mistress's silk gloves. He ate her cold cream and began to chew the end of her lip-stick, but he did not like the taste very well, so he rubbed it over his face and threw it away. After nosing around a little, he found a half-filled box of chocolates, and, finding them more to his taste, he soon had them all gobbled up.

Monkeys like nice clothes as well as actresses, so Toby proceeded to try on everything he could lay his hands on. He soon had the floor covered with all kinds of clothes, and I'm sure that if his mistress had come in then she would have fainted at the cruel way in which her pretty things were being treated. After awhile, Toby picked out a complete costume for himself. He put on a blue silk dress upside down, with his legs through the sleeves and tied a bright orange scarf around his waist to keep the dress up, and on top of that he put on a pink georgette blouse, which really looked very funny, because his hair showed underneath and stuck through in a dozen or more places. Toby put a white fox fur around his neck and a black "tam" on the back of his head; then he dabbed powder on his face just as he had seen his mistress do. Toby grinned into the mirror and danced about in front of it, thinking himself very clever indeed; then he walked out of the room as dignified as any actor he had ever seen.

The players were in the middle of a solemn scene and the audience was watching and listening intently, when all of a sudden a big monkey, dressed in a most grotesque manner, came out on to the stage and began to mimic the leading man in his part! The audience shrieked with laughter, some people even thinking it was a part of the show. They made so much noise that the actors had to stop talking, as no one could hear them. Toby reached up and took a lighted cigarette from a table and put the wrong end of it into his mouth. Finding it hot, he spat it out, and, making loud noises, he ran off the stage, scattering clothes as he went. The audience clapped and applauded so much that Toby was brought on again, and this time before he left the stage he doffed his hat and made his bow like a professional actor.

Toby's mistress did not punish him for his mischief because he had helped to advertise the show, and from that day on the monkey was sent on to the stage at the end of every act in a costume of his own, and was allowed to go through some of his antics.

MARY HICK.

Hats Men Have Worn

THE wearing of hats has prevailed among civilized men from the earliest times. Six thousand years ago the Egyptians wore hats, and pictures of them are preserved in the pyramids. There, too, are shown the processes of their manufacture. The Assyrian hat, as seen in old carvings, was high and tower-like, worn, it is thought, for the purpose of frightening the neighboring and less warlike races.

Long afterwards travelers, hunters and shepherds in Greece wore soft low-crowned hats not unlike the Mexican sombrero of our own day. Among the Romans, the covering of the head was a sign of freedom. When a slave was freed his head was shaved and a simple cap was given him.

The crested helmet of the knights of the Middle Ages was an example of a fashion in hats that distinguished the high-born from the lowly.

Everyone is familiar with the pictures of the wide-brimmed plumed, and sometimes jeweled, hats worn by the Cavaliers in the Civil Wars and the high-peaked, narrow-brimmed hats of the Roundheads who fought with Oliver Cromwell.

The soft broad-brimmed hat of the Quaker, which he refused to doff, suited well the sad color of his sober costume. The cocked hat of the aristocrats in France gave place for a time to the red cap of the revolutionaries.

Among the oldest of the arts was that of making felt. It was lost for centuries, and the story goes that St. Clement rediscovered it. The good monk, to ease his feet, put rabbit skin in his shoes, and found at the end of his journey it was changed into felt.

The beaver of North America gave its name to the high, smooth hats commonly worn by gentlemen during several generations. When the soft, glossy fur became too expensive, the hatters learned to use silk in its place.

Tweed and other woolen caps have come to us from Scotland, the descendants of the blue bonnets which came over the Border in stormy times. Most young men like them better than the more formal silk hat

The fashion of going bare-headed has prevailed in the Bluecoat and some other English schools. Canadian boys would have more respect for their caps if they remembered the long history of head coverings, nor would they forget to doff them in the presence of ladies and older gentlemen.

His Recommendation

"I HOPE you'll get that job for next year with the electric company," said the football coach to Stewart, the captain of the High School team, who had come down to the station to see him off.

"There are eighteen applicants already," said Stewart. "Four of them were in my class. Their recommendations are just as good as mine. I get my interview with the superintendent tomorrow."

"What kind of job is it?"

"'Young fellow wanted. High School training; chance to work up in the business.' They want somebody who can stick to it."

"Why don't you take in that bank book of yours," said the coach suddenly, "and show the superintendent your record for the past five years? Recommendations are all right, but facts like that in black and white speak louder than words."

"You think it might make a difference?" asked Stewart.

"Try it!" And the coach turned to speak to other members of the team.

When Stewart took out the bank book that afternoon and looked it over, he was not sure that the superintendent of the electric company would care about those rows of figures. He had started the bank book five years ago, because his father had said that every boy who could earn a dollar should save a quarter. At first the sum entered had been small, for that was while he was in the eighth grade, and he had earned most of the money by doing little jobs. But no matter how small the deposit had been, when it was once in the bank it had stayed there. Beginning with his sophomore year in High School, he had made his deposits every week on Saturdays just before noon. It had been easier to save when there was a set time for it; he had looked at it as a sort of game, with the score improving every week.

From that time on the amount had grown surprisingly. As he looked along the columns now he found that he could almost tell what the different figures stood for. Out of football season there had always been a great variety of jobs—tending furnaces, cleaning cars, repairing electric lights, renewing batteries on doorbells, and a hundred unexpected chances to substitute in all sorts of work. By his junior year people had begun to count on him for more difficult jobs, like setting glass, putting on screens, taking off storm windows, putting up awnings and doing work about the garden. He had started a garden himself, and in the Summer he had regular work in the greenhouse and with the lumber company. But what would those bare figures in his bank book mean to the electric company?

Nevertheless, he followed the advice of the coach, and put his bank book into his pocket the next morning when he set out for his interview.

Two days later he received his letter of appointment. "We think that you should know," the letter ran, "that it was your account with the bank that turned the decision in your favor. We believe it gave us proof of your willingness to work hard and steadily and of your ability to stick to a purpose."—Youth's Companion.

BEACON HILL IN MAYTIME

Down through the buttercups gilding the hillside,
Through the wild hyacinths' riot of blue,
Catching fleet glimpses of fleecy clouds floating,
Who comes a-rolling? Why, Brownie, it's you.

Eyes, you have captured the hyacinths' color,
Glint on your hair, is the buttercups' gold;
White of the clouds, is your tiny teeth's gleaming;
Spirit of Springtime, you cannot grow old.

Sweet is your laughter as piping of robins.
"Ah, this is glorious," shout you in glee.
"If you could know just how lovely to roll is,
Mother, you'd wish you were little like me."

FRANCES EBBS-CANAVAN.

The Ways of Wasps

IT will soon be time for the wasps to begin their season's labors, if they have not already done so. Many of our little friends are too much afraid of their stings to go anywhere near the handsome insects. They are worth watching, however, and observers will be glad to read the following article from The Children's Newspaper. We would like to remind boys that there is room in the Dominion Entomological Department for young men who study insect life.

Much has been written about the digger wasps, that sink shafts in the earth, lay their eggs in the recesses, and provision them with paralyzed insects—a larder for the wasp-grubs when they are hatched. But every fresh study deepens our knowledge, and we welcome some new observations by Dr. Raband.

To begin with, the observer watched the digger wasp, ammophila by name, in the act of excavating a burrow in the earth that had accumulated at the mouth of a little drain through a roadside wall with a southern aspect.

He heard a buzz, and there was the insect, working hard with jaws and forelegs, holding firm with the second and third pair of legs, and vibrating its wings without ceasing. At almost regular intervals the tunnel maker stopped, flew off a yard or so with a little earth in its mouth, let this drop, and returned to digging. This routine was repeated over and over again like clockwork; but sometimes the excavated earth was carried out and dropped, a few inches away, without any actual flying.

* * * * *

A particular kind of digger wasp hunts for a particular kind of caterpillar, and only occasionally departs from its rule. Now that inimitable observer, Henri Fabre, showed that the wasp grubs could thrive on food quite different from that with which the mother provisioned the burrow. So it does not seem that it is of any great advantage that the mother wasp should almost always keep to one kind of booty.

The mother wasp paralyzes the caterpillars which she collects, and various suggestions have been made as to the usefulness of this procedure. It may keep the caterpillars fresh for the appetite of the wasp grubs; but it has been shown that when the caterpillars die, as often happens, the wasp grubs are still able to thrive. Perhaps the paralyzing makes it easier for the mother wasp to handle her victims.

The deeper we probe into these secrets the more intricate they seem to become. Easy-going descriptions are almost always wrong, and the changes here indicated as now necessary in the telling of the story of the digger wasps show us how slow we should be to think we have got to the bottom of anything.

Francis Bacon reformed philosophy by founding it on the observation of nature after it had consisted for many centuries of scholastic subtleties.

The Story of Marquis Wheat

EVERYONE knows that the best of our flour comes from the Prairie Provinces, and many lads have heard of Marquis Wheat.

The story of how the ancestors of the golden harvests came to Canada and of how the seed was improved is very interesting. It was told not long ago in Munsey's Magazine. It takes us back eighty years, which is a long time in the history of Canada.

In 1841 a Scotchman who had been working for David Fife, near Peterborough, Ontario, returned to his native country under promise to send to his employer a Scottish bonnet, or Glengarry. As soon as he arrived in Glasgow he bought the bonnet, and while taking a stroll along the Broomielaw, came upon a boat unloading a cargo of fine wheat. He filled the bonnet with a sample of the wheat and sent it to his friend Fife in Canada.

Fife sowed the seed in the Spring of 1842, but cattle broke into his garden, and only three heads came to maturity. Being interested in his friend's gift, Fife saved the wheat, and in 1843 had a pint of seed, which multiplied as the years went by, and by 1870 Red Fife, as this new wheat was called after its color and its owner, became a favorite in Ontario. It was also known as Scotch Fife and as Glasgow wheat—though it was not grown in Scotland, and the experts, when they examined it, pronounced it a Galician variety. Investigation proved that the vessel in the Glasgow docks in 1841 had come with a cargo of wheat from Danzig, the chief outlet for Galician grain.

Red Fife was the staple Canadian wheat in the seventies, but it was slow to ripen, and the early frosts blackened many a first-class field of it. In 1888 a botanist named Saunders crossed it with more than fifty other varieties, but failed to solve the problem. The flour thus produced was too yellow for the market. In 1903, however, his son, Dr. Charles E. Saunders, chanced to hit on an ear of Red Fife that his father had crossed with Hard Calcutta, and in the following year succeeded in growing twelve plants. The yield was less than a pound of seed, but it ripened early, and the grains were plump. He named it Marquis, after the Governor-General of Canada, the Marquis of Lorne.

In 1907 all the seed that could be spared—twenty-three pounds—was sent to the experimental station at Indian Head, Saskatchewan. It lived up to expectations, and two years later 400 samples were distributed to Canadian farmers. Their reports were enthusiastic. The early wheat, so long sought, had been found. Since then its fame has spread widely, and Marquis wheat is now grown not only in Canada, but in Minnesota and the Dakotas, where rust has hitherto played havoc, and where early harvests prevent losses through frost.

The Marquis of Lorne, afterwards the Duke of Argyle, was Governor-General of Canada from 1878 to 1883, thirty years before Dr. Charles E. Saunders perfected the wheat which he is said to have named after him.

Perhaps some of the young people who have lived on the prairies will write and tell the readers of this page what they know about Marquis Wheat.

Puss and the Toads

A NIECE of Lord Kelvin recently sent to The London Spectator a curious story of an Angora cat which was a favorite of the great scientist. She says:

"We had a beautiful tabby Angora that was a great pet with us. One Summer we got a couple of toads to watch their habits. Her ladyship, seeing them sprawling and naked, jumped up to investigate. When she found them also cold, her sympathy was unbounded. She curled herself round them and drew them into her soft, fluffy fur with gentle paws as if they had been young kittens; but we noticed that although she laid her chin on them and showed every sign of devotion, she never attempted to lick them. When we returned them to their damp box in the cold cellar, she remonstrated and tried to pull them out with her paws. She did not use her mouth, as she would have done with a kitten, and she was so distressed that we had forcibly to remove her. First thing the next morning when she was let out of her sleeping quarters, she returned to the cellar door and demanded entrance. Mewing pitifully, she haunted the place all day and neglected her food. We had to avoid letting her see the toads at all, as it always started her fretting anew.

This cat had limited but very strong affections. To my uncle, Lord Kelvin, she showed great devotion. She never failed to appear as soon as he came, and she sat with her paws on his foot gazing up at him with a look of absurd adoration. She always brought her kittens to him, even when they were very young, and she was not satisfied until he had examined and admired them. Once she went to fetch one that was old enough to have a will of its own. It took time to bring it, and meanwhile he had gone. Great were her lamentations when she deposited the kitten at his chair, and, looking up, found it empty."

In the same paper was the following story of the intelligence of another cat:

"Not long ago a customer in a grocer's shop in Bloomsbury was waiting to be served. All of a sudden the grocer's cat began to mew appealingly. 'All right,' said the grocer, 'I know what you want,' and he threw the cat a penny. The cat stopped mewing, and, dragging the penny across the floor, got it gradually out into the street, where she virtually made her own purchase from the cat's meat man.

A Glimpse of a Poet's Boyhood--William Wordsworth

NEARLY 250 years have gone by since William and Dora Wordsworth played in the garden of the big house by the river at Cockermouth, in the Lake Country, where he was born. Outside they gathered the primroses and other Spring flowers. Near by was the castle where Queen Mary of Scotland took refuge when she was defeated at Langside. To it the children often strayed with their elder brother, Richard. They chased the butterflies on the hill, listened to the birds and gathered the flowers that grew near the walls. They even ventured to explore the dark dungeon with fearful steps and beating hearts.

Their father was a well-to-do lawyer, and the children, of whom there were five, lived as free and happy a life as hundreds of country children do on our own beautiful Island. They fared simply, as English children did in those days, and were friends with the lambs and dogs and the shepherds of the neighborhood. The little boy loved to bathe in the little river that, coming down from the rocky hills where the eagles built their nests, ran singing by.

When William was eight years old, he was sent to school at Hawkshead, a large village near the centre of the Lake District, the loveliest part of England. He boarded with a kind old woman, Ann Tyson, in a house near the school, one of the old grammar schools founded in the days of Queen Elizabeth. There were many good masters, and in the eight years he spent there, William fitted himself for Cambridge University.

The Hawkshead boys had a good time. They played all the games suited to their years. In Summer they swam and rowed on the lake near by and skated over its smooth surface in hard Winters. In Autumn they gathered nuts in the hazel groves, and, as they grew older, the lads were guests at the gay parties of the townspeople.

But all the work and all the fun of school did not keep William from loving the beauties of the world outside. The poet's eye and the poet's heart saw and felt the loveliness around him, and he has painted it for us in words whose beauty is as fresh as when he sent them forth from the vales and dells, the streams and mountains, the lakes and groves among which he loved to wander.

Many of these pictures are to be found in your schoolbooks, but as you grow older, you will not be satisfied with these, but will want a copy of Wordsworth's Poems for your very own.

THE LITTLE LARK

I hear a pretty bird, but hark!
I canot see it anywhere.
Oh! it is a little lark,
Singing in the morning air.
Little lark, do tell me why
You are singing in the sky?

Other little birds at rest
Have not yet begun to sing;
Every one is in its nest,
With its head beneath its wing.
Little lark, then tell me why
You're so early in the sky?

You look no bigger than a bee,
In the middle of the blue;
Up above the poplar tree,
I can hardly look at you.
Little lark, do tell me why
You are mounted up so high?

'Tis to watch the silver star,
Sinking lowly in the skies,
And beyond the mountain far,
See the glorious sun arise.
Little lady, this is why
I am mounted up so high.

'Tis to sing a merry song
To the pleasant morning light;
Why stay in my nest so long,
When the sun is shining bright?
Little lady, this is why
I sing so early in the sky.

To the little birds below
I do sing a merry tune,
And I let the ploughman know
He must come to labor soon.
Little lady, this is why
I am singing in the sky.

—Jane and Ann Taylor.

Have any of our readers living near Victoria heard the skylark? If so, will he or she write and tell us when and where?

They Came Round Again

AMONG the many stories of the great United States President, Lincoln, this is one that boys will appreciate. It was published in The Christian Register, Boston:

In his boyhood Lincoln attended a backwoods school. They used to begin the day in that school by standing up in a row and reading a chapter of the Bible, verse and verse about. There was a little boy standing next Lincoln who could not read well. They read Daniel iii., and by ill-luck that little boy got the first of the verses in which the names "Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego" occur. His perturbation was extreme, but, pulling himself together with a convulsive effort, he cleared that verse somehow, and all seemed to be well. Looking at him, however, after a moment, Lincoln saw that he was in tears and whispered, "What are you crying for?"

"Nothing," said the little boy, "only I can see those three miserable cusses coming 'round to me again."

Empress Eugenie's Escape From France

London Times.

BY the kindness of Sir Frederic Ponsonby, we are able to publish the following letter which his father, the late Sir Henry Ponsonby, received in September, 1870, from Sir John Montagu Burgoyne, whose death was recently announced. It gives for the first time, in Sir John Burgoyne's own words, the details of how he assisted in the escape of the Empress Eugenie to England:

"Windsor House, Ryde,
"Sept. 15 (?), 1870.

"My dear Ponsonby,—I am very glad to give you a short account of the extraordinary circumstances of my bringing H.I.M. the Empress over in the Gazelle. I am especially anxious that it should be known that all that occurred was by the most pure accident, as I fear an impression has got abroad that I was in Deauville Harbor "waiting events."

"Lady Burgoyne had been abroad for some months, and I went in the yacht to Trouville (Deauville Harbor) to meet her on August 24. We were detained there by bad weather and headwinds longer than we expected, and so much did we wish to get away that on two occasions I was ready for sea, and had the pilot on board, but by his advice did not go to sea. I mention these details to prove that I am not mixed up in foreign complications.

"On Tuesday, September 6, at about 2 p.m., two strangers came on board and asked to be allowed to see an English yacht. I happened to be on board, and myself showed them over the yacht. One of them suddenly asked to be allowed to say a few words in private; he then informed me that the Empress was concealed in Deauville, wishing to be conveyed to England, and asked me if I would undertake to take her over on the yacht; after consulting with Lady Burgoyne, considering the scanty accommodation on board, I at once agreed to her request, and it was considered advisable that Lady Burgoyne should remain on board, as her landing might create suspicion.

"It was arranged between the two gentlemen (Dr. Evans, of the Rue de la Paix, and his nephew) and myself that I was to meet them at a certain place on the quay at 11 p.m. that night to settle at what time her Majesty was to come on board. We met and settled the hour for five minutes past twelve (midnight). Oddly enough, at 11:30 p.m. I had the honor of a visit from a young Russian gentleman, to whom I had only been introduced formally, who brought "a friend of his from Paris who was anxious to see a yacht." I had the pleasure of showing them all over the vessel, except Lady Burgoyne's cabin, and have little doubt that he was a spy, who suspected something. I carefully watched these two persons safely over the railway bridge back into Trouville, and while I was doing so, Dr. Evans, the Empress and Mme. le Breton came up, and I immediately took them on board. The Empress was very much agitated and sobbed bitterly, and on my saying to her, going over the side, 'N'ayez pas peur, madame," she replied in English, 'I am safe with an English gentleman." I then introduced her to my wife, who told her the last three days' news, and read the papers to her.

"At 7 o'clock we left the harbor and had very heavy weather, with a nasty sea running, but the Gazelle is a very fine sea boat and behaved splendidly, but I fear the Empress must have suffered frightful discomfort, although we did all in our power to make her comfortable. I landed with the Empress at Ryde a little before 7 o'clock on the 8th, and she left at midday, via Portsmouth, for Hastings to join her son. If her Majesty the Queen should speak to you about this occurrence, I shall deem it an immense favor if you will thoroughly explain that my part in it was entirely an accident, and that previous to 2 p.m. on the 6th I do not think I ever heard the Empress's name mentioned while I was in France. The Empress had no luggage of any sort or kind, and what she had to undergo in her journey from Paris to Deauville had far better never be known. M. de Lesseps had nothing whatever to do with her escape. I believe Prince Metternich planned it, and Dr. Evans carried it out most skilfully.

"Believe me, yours very truly,
"Montagu Burgoyne."

The Eagle and the Salmon

A STORY, told first in The Boston Globe, has been republished in Eastern papers. It would be interesting to learn if the feats of the bald-headed eagle as a salmon fisher have been observed by Victoria sailors passing along the coast of Vancouver Island. In this case, however, the salmon was the victor. This is the story:

The schooner Roosevelt was on her way to Seattle from the fishing banks in Hecate Strait. Shortly after passing Seymour Narrows, members of the crew said they noticed a bald eagle flying close to the water, near the vessel. As they watched the big bird skimming near the surface, a Spring salmon, estimated to weigh about twenty pounds, leaped clear of the swift-moving current. As quick as a flash the eagle drove its sharp talons into the fish's back.

There was a great splash as the big salmon dived, taking the eagle beneath the surface. Everyone rushed to the rail to watch the struggle. Three times the fish and the bird disappeared in the water while the schooner steered a course close behind them.

Finally the eagle loosened its hold and flopped over on the surface of the water exhausted. It had fought a game fight, but had lost its prey. The crew pulled the bird aboard with a bait hook. The eagle was nearly drowned, but it soon recovered and showed fight.

While the battle between the bird and the fish was in progress, two other eagles flew round the vicinity, screaming loudly.

The ancients popularly believed the kingfisher had the power of calming the sea by building its nest on floating seaweed.

Adab, in Babylonia, discovered by the University of Chicago excavating expedition in 1904, is considered the oldest city in the world.

WHEN I WAS A KING

BY LT.-COL. C. L. FLICK, C.M.G., C.B.E., B. C. HORSE

"The Avenging of Jones Sahib"

THERE is a diplomacy of the desert as well as of camp or court. Desert diplomacy is carried out much the same today as when old Abraham cajoled, threatened and bribed his way from Ur of the Chaldees to Canaan.

The Turk had been soundly thrashed by the British; the little that he had left behind him in his many retreats and flights had been looted by the Bedouins of the desert—the Muntafik, the Anaize, the Beni Lam and the Shammar tribesmen. At the date of which I write few, if any, of the British had penetrated as far into the country of the Muntafik as the walled city of Shattra, or, to speak more correctly, the city that had once upon a time been walled.

The King of Shattra was one, Jasus, which, being interpreted, means a traitor, or spy. Jasus was not of the downright, spitfire, three-shots-and-gallop-away type of Arab chieftain. His methods, when it came to putting a rival out of the world, were more akin to those of the Borgia. He had an implicit belief in poisoned coffee or milk, or, at a pinch, the swift thrust of a dagger, preferably from the rear. So when the intelligence officer reported that an embassy from King Jasus demanded admittance at the main gate, the satrap of the great king looked at his counsellors and the counsellors looked at the satrap. The Grand Vizier was the first to break silence; he advocated that the embassy be admitted, with due safeguards as to the dagger and bowl business. The embryo satrap, however, was of the opinion that it little accorded with the dignity of a ruler to show either fear or favor in the matter of a mere reception—but then the embryo satrap was not likely to be the objective of either bowl or dagger, which perhaps accounted for the nonchalance of his mien and utterance.

Ready for Reception

After mature consideration, it was decided to hear the embassy, and orders were given that had the effect, or we hoped it had, of making a display of force which should impress the strangers. The courtyard at headquarters was swept and sprinkled with water. Seats and impromptu divans were placed beneath the five date palms which waved their feathery splendor in the centre of the court. The satrap and his entourage arrayed themselves in the second best uniform, and belt and buckle shone resplendent in what little sun was permitted to penetrate into the court of audience. A stalwart guard of burly Sikh sowars formed round three sides of the courtyard. The burnished butts and points of their lances glanced as brightly as the fierce eyes beneath immaculate turbans. At the courtyard gate was a platoon of the Devon Regiment, businesslike and trim, bayonets fixed and 120 rounds of ammunition on each man.

The chief cook and the chief baker marshalled their underlings in spotless white garments, and the sweepers and water carriers squatted upon the roof of a go-down, for they were not as other men—being unclean in the eyes of Arab, Hindoo and Briton—even the lordly satrap drew aside and frowned when such menial passed him in court, passage or chamber.

At the main gate matters were ordered in keeping with the occasion. The embassy were purposely kept waiting—the longer the wait the greater the dignity of he who grants an audience. So the embassy were regaled on coffee, chupatties, melons and cigarettes, the while a main guard of the Devons wondered what all the fuss was about—and wished themselves in Bideford, Combe Martin or Clovelly—they wished the embassy in a hotter place than Mesopotamia, if glance and frown were any criterion.

The Arrival

But the time has come. The embassy strides through the serai into the bazaar, striving to look as if they came as conquerors rather than those vanquished suing for favor. And the townsfolk, although akin, treated them with that haughty indifference which Easterners know so well how to assume: scarce an eye was lifted, no bargain was shortened, knots of gossipers barely made way for men to whom they had cringed and fawned six months before. The Devon guard at the entrance to the courtyard spring to "attention" as the embassy shows ragged and scowling at the end of the mud-walled street. The officer in charge of the platoon halts the strangers fifty feet from the gate and demands their errand. The embassy has no English, and the platoon leader just enough of Arabic to ejaculate, upon occasion, "Peace be with you." It is all part and parcel of the play, a play in real life, with, perhaps, death and blood for those seated in the stalls. The embassy is embarrassed and its leader stammers a few sentences in Arabic, which he might as well have addressed to the bricks of the archway for all the effect they have on the British subaltern. But see, one comes—he is of Arab race, and his stride has all the grace and dignity of the free desert. At the sight of their fellow the faces of the embassy light up and the Arabic gutturals slip thick and fast from the leader; to be answered in curt monosyllables from the interpreter. For the servants of kings and satraps are often more haughty and unapproachable than their masters.

The Audience

However, the path of the embassy is now made smooth, and it is ushered into the court of audience with due dignity and great ceremony. Inside the outer ring of turbanned Sikhs are gathered the wit and wisdom of the satrap's court, who rise and make slight inclination to the lowly salaam of the conquered. The embassy are seated, each in his degree, and cigarettes are offered from the silver case of the intelligence officer, who welcomes each individual of the embassy in one level monotone. All are seated, and the Sikh sowars are standing with sloped lances when the Grand Vizier enters the courtyard from the principal lower room. Behind him comes the satrap. Instantly there is a crash from the lance butts as the Sikhs spring to attention. All rise to greet the representative of the great king. The courtiers stand stiffly at the salute, and the embassy salaam to the very ground—for the arbiter of their fate is among them. At least, the embassy thinks so, for it is beyond their understanding that their fate has been woven hours beforehand in distant London Town.

There is a pause after the satrap has taken his seat, a pause during which the court of the satrap whisper; in which the Grand Vizier states the policy of the great king in an undertone to the seemingly all-wise satrap.

The Grand Vizier takes the floor, so, to speak, in well turned Eastern periods, welcomes the embassy, and asks them to state their business. The Grand Vizier is a good but not perfect student of the tongue of Mohammed; his words have to be eked out by short explanations from the interpreter. He finishes. There is a short pause. The leader of the embassy rises to his feet, and, with a salaam to the satrap, expounds his embassy.

Ambassador of Peace

From his words it would appear that the Turk is an enemy to all mankind, as well as to the Briton in particular; it is the wish of his master, Jasus, that peace should reign in the desert borders, to which end his master is willing to accept a political officer, to be resident within the town of Shattra, with whom Jasus will confer on all matters political within and without his tribe. The address of the Bedouin is dignified if short, to the point, if lacking words. The Grand Vizier takes up the tale and tells of a British officer who was murdered in cold blood by order of Jasus. Has Jasus no reparation to offer? It is to be remembered that the arm of the great king is long and strong; his justice stern and quick; the blood of the murdered one calls for blood. What has Jasus to offer?

There is swift whispering among those of the embassy; then again the leader speaks. It is the Turk who ordered the slaying and a Turk shall be rendered to the justice of the great king—even if Jasus has to send his horsemen to the Golden Horn to fetch one.

The Grand Vizier laughs shortly, and inclines to the satrap with a low muttered question. The satrap, like Jove, nods, and is obeyed. A low order reaches the Sikhs, and four of their number disappear into the blackness of a low archway, to shortly reappear, having in their midst a Bedouin heavily manacled as to wrists and ankles. At the sight of the prisoner the embassy, with one accord, leap to their feet and glance towards the gateway of the courtyard. There is no hope in that direction, for the Devon platoon have silently filled that wide shadowy space and their levelled bayonets gleam significantly.

A Crisis

The prisoner moves forward with his escort until he is to the left of the satrap and in front of the embassy.

The Grand Vizier questions him:

"Who slew Jonas Sahib?"

The prisoner points with index finger straight to the leader of the embassy, and ejaculates, slowly.

"That man's brother, Sahib."

"It is false! he lies!" yells the leader of the embassy, groping in his robe for hidden knife. His hand is rougly grasped by one of his companions, who, muttering a few words, indicates the men of Devon in the shadow of the archway.

The Grand Vizier utters curt command in Arabic, and the tumult within the embassy is stilled. Then the Grand Vizier continues:

"You have eaten the salt of the great king and are safe from harm within the shadow of this presence."

Then the satrap takes his cue, his words being rapidly translated by the interpreter, thus:

"Your kin murdered Jones Sahib: the tribe of Jones is strong and powerful within our land and they demand blood for blood."

"Go from hence, to your master; tell him that the avenger cometh."

"Go, in peace."

As if by magic the Sikhs interpose between court, satrap and embassy; they form a line to the gateway, and their line is continued by the men of Devon, who glance fiercely upon the leader; for was not Jones Sahib a Devonian?

Back through the mud-walled street, back through the crowded bazaar which is even less friendly that at their coming, back past the serai and through the main gate, till they are in the open desert, stride the scorned embassy of Jasus. Their feet are in the stirrups, their hands grasp the reins, and then, and not till then, does the leader deliver himself of mortal defiance on the part of his master. He wheels his stallion on its hind legs, then, with a score of bounds, he is at the main gate hurling maledictions and curses at the Devon men on guard—who laugh gaily, thinking it all part of a well-conned farce—when it is tragedy stern and bitter. Again he wheels his stallion and gallops after his companions, to soon vanish in a cloud of desert dust. The dust cloud has barely disappeared when a guard from a Punjab regiment relieves the Devons at the main gate.

"What the 'ell is up?" says a stalwart corporal. "Are they going to give us a half holiday?"

"I'll bet," says his sergeant, "that we are after those blighters that have just gone out."

"Then, why the 'ell did we let them go?"

Why, indeed? To redeem the word of the great king, who had granted safe conduct.

On the Trail

Over the bridge of boats clatter the Sikh lancers, five hundred strong. Behind them comes the rolling thunder of the artillery; six wicked, modern guns, with bronzed gunners and "salted" horses. A long space in the rear march the white infantry, helmeted, spine-padded over their grey-back shirts, their nether limbs encased in the shortest of short "shorts." Behind the Devons march the Gurkhas, short, sturdy, and chattering like a lot of uncaged monkeys—one, two, three companies. In rear of the "Gherks" come string after string of mules and camels of the second line transport. Behind the long-drawn-out transport marches the fourth Gurkhas company. Through the dust-cloud can be seen the sparkling lance points of a squadron of cavalry, who, dismounted, wait on the far side of the bridge-of-boats until it is time for them to assume the duties of rear guard. It is the avenger of Jones Sahib—and, as is befitting, many of his clan march in the ranks of the white battalion.

The river traffic is perforce stopped to allow the passage of the troops. The Arabs in charge of the bridge and those on the river craft, laugh and gesticulate, as they prophesy a warm time for Jasus and his mud-walled town. For it has leaked out, as do all tidings in the East, that the great king will keep no terms with murderers, be they who they will, powerful or weak; and that the local mobile column is hard on the track of the returning embassy.

* * *

The sun is westering fast and the desert blue begins to deepen, and the mirage has gone for the day. All is silent and nothing is to be seen on the plain or in the sky. Stay! A speck is in the sky. It comes nearer and nearer, sweeping in wide circles on outspread motionless pinions. It is a vulture and it sees—what? I'll tell you. Like pigmies, far down below his airy realm, the vulture sees the mobile column about to halt for the night. All around the column are dark specks, which are videttes, who will fall back ere long. Beyond the videttes among distant sand-dunes are skulking horsemen who own Jasus master.

The column are engaged making ready for a desert bivouac. The infantry are busily digging trenches which will form, when completed, three squares, one large, two very much smaller. The two smaller squares impinge on the larger at its northeast and southwest corners, so that a diagonal line drawn from northeast to southwest through the larger square will bisect all three. The small squares accommodate the infantry and command and enfilade the larger square on all sides. The larger square is for the mules, camels and the horses of the cavalry and artillery. The sowars and artillerymen will line the trenches of the larger square after provision has been made for horse, camel and mule guards. Directly the squares are completed—the parapet is inwards—the quadrupeds are led inside to appointed places and the guns man-handled in. The camels and mules lie down as soon as they are fed, a little grooming goes a long way with such cattle. The troop horses are well groomed, watered and fed. Then one by one they also lie down, each tethered to the very desert itself. It is this way. The free end of the head-rope is worked into a "turks-head" knot, then a hole in front of each horse is bored or cut into the desert, to the size, or nearby, of the "Turk's head." The "Turk's head" is inserted in the hole and the excavated earth is packed tightly back again, and horse or mule is safely tethered for the night. It saves the weight of iron or wooden picketing pegs. The night is falling fast as the videttes gallop in; soon the last flickering fire has been trampled out and the men, wrapped in greatcoats snuggle down to mother earth, head to parapet. And that is about as much as the vulture can see, so he circles away to his mates to proclaim that, on the morrow, the white man will provide a feast, full and bountiful.

Picture of a Camp

The snort of a mule, the whinnying neigh of a horse, the gurgling, bubbling maledictions of the camels—the nightmare shout or cry from some sleeping warrior—the blasphemous undertone of a stable guard as he frees a rope or adjusts a headstall. Those are all the sounds that one may hear from the sleeping British camp. No sentinels march around, but for all that, vigilant eyes peer forth from the camp to each and every point of the compass. It is not the first camp that has been pitched at that spot. Within hail of the sleeping Devons lies the barren site of the ancient City of Shirpurla. A city that flourished and carried on war five thousand years ago. Parthian, Assyrian, Babylonian, Greek, Arab, Turk and Briton have either attacked the ancient city or passed over its ruins. Perhaps spirits of long dead Partians, Greeks or Romans watch, with soldierly pride, a camp that is alert, orderly and secure. Ghostly centurions may still be keeping watch near the spot where they fell in battle—even now, now close upon the witching hour, I seem to see ghostly forms steal from among the ruins of the long-dead city, but 'tis only a dream—yet no—a keen eyed sentry of the Sikh cavalry crawls along, beneath the shelter of the parapet, to the spot where his havildar sleeps. Almost at the same time there is a rustle among the Devons guarding the north face of the camp, where is a glimmer of bayonets, as rifles are lightly touched. Those ghostly Romans are flesh and blood from the tribe of Jasus.

For an hour the stillness of the desert night continues; and the moon sets—and the darkness becomes profound.

A Tense Moment

A flash cuts the darkness on the eastern face of the camp and a heavy Martini bullet sings slowly over the sleeping camp. After quite a long interval, comes another flash and bullet from the same point. Then a shorter interval, and from the western darkness crashes and flashes a volley from a score or more of rifles, to be followed by intermittent sniping fire calculated to get on the nerves of any but old desert fighters. In one of the Devon squares there is a rattle of rifle bolts and sound of charges being thrust home. It is the men of a new draft, whose nerves are raw and whose fingers are even as thumbs. Swiftly arises an officer, who, with caustic tongue, bids the new draft unload and go to sleep. As the reprimand rasps forth, there is a chuckle of laughter from the older soldiers, with which is mixed sage advice tending to allay fears of a midnight charge of Arabs. Suddenly the spasmodic fire from the western darkness dies away and there is a lull, to be broken, after an interval, by volleys and sniping from the Eastern darkness. There is a cry of pain, which instantly awakens the medical officer and his orderly—and slowly a report circulates that "Jimmy has been hit." There is a glimmer of light from a very carefully shaded lantern—a glimmer that awakens the hostile riflemen to successive bursts of firing, and gusts of bullets fly over the camp—some into it, as squeals of pain from protesting camels, mules and horses proclaim. Poor brutes, their wounds cannot be looked after until daylight comes. And daylight comes at last.

The casualties are one man hit and half a dozen of the transport animals wounded—two of which have to be killed and their loads apportioned among the remainder. The dumb brutes have barely been put out of their pain when—one, two, three, four, five specks are seen high up in the blue sky—it is the vulture scout of yesterev'en, who has brought four of his kind to share the feast. As we move slowly out of our bivouac, the feathered scavengers circle lower and lower, on motionless pinions, until they alight full upon the carcasses of the dead quadrupeds. Hardly have the five begun their feast than from north and east, and west and south, come others to share in the horrors of war.

Action

The column has moved on until the minarets and domes of Shattra can be seen sparkling and glinting in the early morning sun. The column deploys for action, while the transport huddles together under the protection of Gurkhas and cavalry.

From among the sand-dunes, 2,000 yards distant, gallop 200 or more desert horsemen, straight for the right flank of the outflung cavalry. In an instant the artillery have taken their opportunity and shell after shell goes hurtling among them, bringing horse and rider to the ground never more to rise.

There is much confusion among the foe, and before many in the 200 can grasp the situation, our cavalry have massed and are bounding to the charge—lance in rest and beard and turban mingling with horse's mane. The foe turns ere the charge gets home; but it is too late; the Sikhs are among them, and the first horse-driven thrusts take deadly toll of the fleeing tribesmen of Jasus. Shrills a trumpet and the Sikhs reform. The artillery opens again. Then from our rear comes a sputtering of rifle fire and the growl of a machine gun. Jasus, with 2,000 horsemen, thunders on the rearguard. Swiftly the Devons form a loose square, and have hardly done so ere the rearguard of cavalry gallops to the flanks. Then from the disciplined infantry breaks out a steady fusilade that stops the charge of the tribesmen, who wheel and wither before the storm of lead. The cavalry have rallied and the artillery have faced about—but the tribesmen have had enough and gallop fanwise into the desert, pursued by bursting shrapnel. There is a little knot of wounded around the dressing station. Some of the worst cases have already been placed upon camels—to get what relief they may in the garden-seat contraption that each "medical camel" carries in duplicate. The cavalry are already within a few yards of the town gate, when, from the dark archway thereof, comes a procession of townsmen, who cringe and fawn upon the dusky sowars—abject to the white leaders.

The Atonement

There is a "khor" just without the town, that is, a river bed, with but little water in it. Towards the khor scout the cavalry and the column follows. The townsfolk surround the satrap and his staff and promise unconditional submission, which is received haughtily by he who can enforce it.

The artillery train their guns on the town, and that fact is duly pointed out to the townsmen, who readily appreciate its meaning. Then comes the triumphal entry.

The political officer rides first, escorted by a squadron of lancers. Next a strong company of infantry, who promptly garrison the old Turkish fort and the three gates. Then comes the satrap of the great king alone, save for the Grand Vizier and three or four staff officers—with interpreters, of course. We ride through the serai, within the gate, and so into the crowded bazaar. Word has gone forward that lives and property are safe so long as the troops are obeyed promptly. Word has also gone forward that the artillery is trained on the town, an item of information that is more effectual than mere promises.

Every head is bent in obeisance, every gesture of a staff officer is promptly obeyed. The Eastern well knows that when Jove nods lightnings are apt to fall. And so into the Turkish fort which commands the main street and bazaar. So far we have had no word of, or from, King Jasus, so a reward is offered for that enterprising chieftain—dead or alive.

The evening shadows are falling. The satrap and his warrior chiefs are seated in the courtyard of the fort discussing a belated meal, when, from a nearby housetop is thrown an object swathed in an old cotton robe. A few of the guard run out with ready rifles. One of their number takes up the swathed object and unrolls the cloth. It is the severed head of Jasus of Shattra—Jones Sahib is avenged.

WARNINGS FOR ENGINEERS

On one of the chief British railways nearly all the locomotives are fitted with an automatic device to warn the driver when the "home," or "distant," signals are against him. A crank is placed between the two sets of rails, and when the signals are not down, it comes into contact with a lever on the engine, sounding the whistle and opening a small cock on the train pipe, thus putting on the brake. This mechanism is expected to raise still higher the standard of safety achieved in British railway operation. There is a common saying that "the safest place in the world is inside a British express passenger train."

The farthingale skirt was introduced in England in the reign of Queen Elizabeth.

Battle of Amiens—Story of Engagement

By Nevill A. D. Armstrong, Chief Reconnaissance Officer, Canadian Corps

ON the 11th the corps advanced headquarters pushed a little further forward to some caves at Demuin. As this was now a very long way behind the front line, it was considered advisable, so far as I was concerned, to attach me for rations to the Canadian Corps Survey Section, which included flash spotters, field surveys, maps, observers; all these came under the heading of the Canadian Corps Survey Section.

The observers of this section are employed in trench warfare as corps observers, and occupy O.P.'s well behind the line, with long range telescopes, and endeavor to obtain an extensive view of the enemy's back country and movements.

On my arrival with two horses, the section was just establishing its headquarters in a valley south of the village of Caix, and some members of the unit fled at night into a large and deep cave in a chalk quarry to be away from the bombs and shells. I lived in a tent which had evidently been pitched on some old horse lines, because the stench of ammonia was always abundantly present, together with millions of flies and numerous dead and putrefying cavalry horses on every side.

It was an ideal spot so far as stench went, and later, when the men's tents and everyone else moved into the quarry, the heat, flies and discomfort was very apparent. By this time I had a tent, and moved away from the filth and pitched camp in a small wood just across the valley from the quarry. It was comparatively cool here and clean, and there is no reason why the section could not have all located themselves out of view in this place.

It was only a couple of minutes' walk from the C.C.H.A., with whom we were supposed to keep in touch, and who were themselves quartered in a splendid camp in an adjoining wood.

The first and second nights, but particularly the first night, the Bosche bombing planes came over in relays all night. There were at this time no searchlights or A.A. guns or anything of the sort, and the Hun spotted this in a minute. He came down low, and it appeared that a scout plane went ahead dropping white lights, and the bombing plane came along behind and threw his load overboard.

They showered bombs all round us and fairly shook us up, and then opened up with machine guns. They couldn't possibly see our tents or anything else of that nature, but my tent was near the main road to Caix, and some of the bullets went close over my head, so that I think he was taking a chance shot at the road, hoping to either kill or put the "wind-up" to any transport or troops.

He dropped a succession of bombs along some high ground immediately in front of us, and although quite a number of infantry were sleeping there in their "open air graves," not a single man was hit.

He came back the next night and repeated the dose, and this time dropped a bomb on a dugout, killing seven men and wounding quite a lot. Most of our men had gone to ground by this time, as well as a lot of men belonging to other units, and I was told that the cellar was full.

There is no doubt that bombs have a greater effect on the nerves than anything else.

On the third night, he started to come over again, but to our pleasure three very strong searchlights suddenly appeared on the scene, together with A.A. guns, and every unit in the neighborhood had mounted a machine gun of some sort and blazed away. The lights made the first one alter his course, and the second one was picked up quickly by the searchlights, showing as plain as daylight in the rays and appearing of white color (effect of light). This chap was given a proper run for his money; everything in the shape of a firearm opened up, and shouts of delight and encouragement to the A.A. guns, who were pitching a few shells fairly close and warming up his tail. Whenever a shell burst close, it occasioned much joy. Both these planes sheered off northwards, and we were told that our guns and searchlights drove the Bosches over to the Australians, where the latter got their own assortment as well as ours; but this is probably a yarn.

On the night of the 23rd, a Hun came over and machine gunned the wood and valley I was in; with the exception of this, we were not bothered very much after the searchlights were established, although the Hun was very busy further back and around front area, where one day, in one of our transport lines, I counted nineteen dead horses in front of the dugouts occupied by our 4th Division headquarters. He also dropped a few unpleasantly close to our Advanced Corps Headquarters.

The two horses were now very useful, as it appeared impossible to get any side cars or motor car transportation from the survey section.

The headquarters were too far back to intercept any prisoners and obtain any documents, so I hurriedly visited all divisional headquarters to find out location of brigades and obtain approximate position of front line.

It was impossible to obtain any help from the C.C.S.S., so, instead of taking the groom who came up with the horses, I now was able to use one of my own N.C.O.'s—from my school, of whom I had two with me, most capable men in every way, with considerable experience and technical knowledge of the work in hand, because we were at the same time making a careful search for any new kind of horror in the shape of S.A.A. or firearms which the Hun might be using, and it was only an expert who, in some cases, could detect this ammunition.

I was unable to use my other N.C.O. continuously, owing to lack of transportation; on account of the rapid advance it was impossible to carry out the work efficiently on foot.

Until the advance slowed down, it was most difficult keeping in touch with brigades, and although I went to them for information and to keep a lookout for prisoners, I found they were mostly anxious to obtain news from me of what was happening to divisions on right and left, also a general idea of how things were progressing with the French and Australians; in fact, to give them some news of the fight other than what was happening on their own front. In fact, when other important work was completed, I did a little brigade liasion, and was able to be of some service in this connection.

In the earlier stages of an attack it is difficult for Corps "I" to send out summaries of intelligence, and to supplement this an officer from corps staff to do general liasion work amongst divisions and brigades, particularly the latter, would be much appreciated. In fact, it would be useful whether summaries were sent out or not.

I found it of little use waiting round brigade or division headquarters on chance of picking up information regarding idendification; it was better to get out near some roadway or track leading from about a central point in the line and intercept prisoners coming in; many got through to divisional and corps cage without being seen or searched en route; some went from the line to corps cage without interrogation.

Having no German speaking other rank with me, all I could do was to examine their shoulder straps and other markings.

On the 13th both my saddle horses were either stolen or broke away from their pickets. This was a calamity. We spent many hours in the terrific heat hunting for these horses, and must have examined 20,000 head; once or twice we thought we had them, but were disappointed. It is pleasant to record for my peace of mind that the horses were eventually found.

I could get through on foot to some of the divisions and keep in touch with the progress of events, and in some cases was able to help with the examination of prisoners.

The corps advanced headquarters suggested moving forward to Warvillers. This seemed somewhat unwise, because it was continually shelled by the Bosche, and would be a most unhealthy place for any headquarters.

However, if the corps moved forward, it was decided that the camp we were in would also move forward, and the location suggested was Vrely, in a cellar. Why villages were suggested no one knows, except perhaps ignorance or laziness, particularly villages close behind the lines; they are always shelled by the Bosche, and our people continue to billet troops in them and continue to pile up unnecessary casualties. There appears to be no earthly reason for allowing troops to go into villages during active operations in fine weather. They are far safer in the open.

I know of many casualties which occurred through hanging about in villages. These casualties were not confined to private soldiers, but from staff officers downwards.

To continue. Our next headquarters were decided to be in the cellar of a chateau at Vrely. This chateau was on the eastern side of the village and directly facing the Hun; it had been fairly badly damaged by shell fire, but not knocked flat, and there were one or two rooms which could be used.

The section I was attached to commandeered all the cellars, and these were soon filled with the mixed gang which composed this unit. One small cellar was set apart for myself and three other officers, dark and dismal, and to encourage us, some 9-inch howitzers arrived in the garden behind the chateau in the afternoon. About dark they were ready to shoot, and kept it up all night, and before long the Hun started up to worry this battery and pitched shells all round the chateau, but never getting a direct hit. The noise made by these heavy howitzers was simply deafening. The cellar was very hot and it was full of flies. It was a hopeless place to choose. Fortunately we had orders the next day to move back again to the other headquarters.

There were many fields of ripe wheat and barley round this neighborhood, which no doubt the Hun was just waiting to garner, but was pushed back too quickly.

I think it was on August 20 that a formation of Hun fighting planes came over the front line and engaged some of our lads. A big fight ensued, and the rattle of machine guns sounded like a miniature barrage. All kinds of stunts took place, and we watched with the greatest interest, hoping to see our men beat the Hun, and we had not long to wait. Soon a Hun detached himself from the fight, and quickly circled downwards. When within about 100 feet or so of the ground he kept circling round and round as though he were unable to make up his mind to land. Some thought he was not hit, and might be having a good look at our billets and guns, etc. Whilst watching this plane, one of our Lewis guns opened fire, also thinking, no doubt, that the Bosche might suddenly rise and slip away, but it was all right. Down he came at last and turned head over heels in the middle of a field. The pilot was wounded and taken over to a dressing station.

In about two minutes after the plane hit the ground it was surrounded by a large crowd of men; two or three cavalry were put on to keep the crowd away until important parts of the mechanism and engines had been removed by the R.A.F. people, but it was impossible to do anything with the souvenir hunters. They were like a pack of hounds in at the death of a fox, and in few minutes the plane was torn to pieces for souvenirs. Not a scrap remained but the old iron when I returned in the afternoon.

During the whole of this battle, so far as my own observation was concerned, our flying men held complete mastery of the air in this sector. Even at night, with his bombing planes, as soon as our searchlights and A.A. guns, and myriads of Lewis guns, were put in position by the infantry, he was unable to strafe us very much.

Some of the rear areas came in for a bit of attention, but even there he was given a bad time.

During the advance we came across a good many of our own planes which had crashed or had been driven down by the Hun, and none of his. Doubtless the Hun machines had been salvaged, because it is impossible to believe that no Hun planes had been scuppered in the area of our advance.

During the later stages of the fight the moonlight was brilliant, too brilliant to be pleasant, but very satisfactory for dispatch riders, transport and lorries on the march, perhaps.

About the 23rd the 3rd Division was withdrawn from the fight, and orders were suddenly issued to them to take forty-eight hours' rations, and that they would march at a certain hour.

I happened to be with the 52nd Battalion at the time visiting a friend and picking up information, and when they knew the battalion was moving, they thought it meant a rest, but unfortunately it did not.

The weather remained dry and hot and the dust was unspeakable. All units marched at night. I shall never forget lying in my tent in the moonlight listening to regimetal bands playing in the distance as the various units marched from the scene of their great triumph. Their destination was secret.

The 4th Division was the last to leave, and, unfortunately, one of their regiments got a direct hit from a bomb while on the march, causing thirty or forty casualties. One boy who helped remove the dead said that one thing in particular impressed him, and that was that all the dead had a perceptible smile on their faces, so much so that it attracted one's attention immediately.

It was evident about the 20th that the corps had received orders to proceed to another front, and when the 3rd Division left, this was certain.

On the 25th our section was ordered to go north, and at Frevent we should be told our final destination. Some of us knew where this spot was, but it was withheld from the N.C.O.'s and men.

We got about fourten lorries. The amount of material and kit carried by this unit was terrific. Signal wire in drums, wireless kit, telephones, telescopes, cases, etc., required a certain amount of room, but a great deal of unnecessary material was carried. This was noticeable in dozens of cases whenever one watched lorries being loaded, particularly if any headquarters were moving.

It would have been interesting to unpack some of the voluminous-looking sacks.

For the return trip a side car was placed at my disposal and my kit and my batman rode on a lorry.

At 4:30 we arrived without mishap at Duisans, a small village close to Arras, where we obtained billets in Nissen huts, and later heard that our corps would attack on the new front in two days' time. It was to be another surprise attack as far as possible.

How, When and Where to Fish on Vancouver Island

BY LT.-COL. LEWIS CAREY

Trout Fishing With Fly

I AM getting quite a number of questions asked me these days, and some of them are very amusing. I am more than glad to answer any question and to help any good sportsman, but when a man comes up to you in the street and flatly contradicts a statement which is too obviously true and correct, well, to say the least of it, it is amusing. One hates to tell a man he is a fool, but I certainly did to this particular individual.

In several of this series of articles I have told you that fish always lie with head up stream. Now this statement was contradicted, for my foolish friend informed me that only the day before he and a pal of his had been watching some trout in the Cowichan River with their heads down stream, concluding by saying that I should correct my former statements on this point in a future article.

Of course, what had happened was this: The unobservant individual and his pal had been looking into a pool with a strong backwater, and the fish they had seen were in the backwater, and they had been unobservant enough not to notice that the current where the fish were lying was directly opposite to the main current.

Worth Noting

Now this gives me a good opening, and an interesting one to many of my readers who happen to be beginners, and at the same time some of the older hands may not object to have their minds refreshed.

I have heard many a fisherman, in speaking of a good trout pool, with a backwater, say: "I have always liked the look of it, but curiously enough, I never seem to get any good sport there; in fact, I seldom get a fish."

I have heard others add to the above remarks: "I remember once, early in the season, on a rough, windy day, killing half a dozen beauties in the pool, but have never done anything since."

Now let me try and explain to you why so many fishermen give the pool in question a bad name, also why half a dozen good fish were taken in the self-same spot on a rough, windy day in the season.

The reason is simplicity itself, when you realize that in a pool of this kind there are fish looking both ways, so whether you approach up stream or down stream, you are instantly spotted, and away go the fish, and in their fright disturbing those who are looking the other way.

Now on a rough, windy day early in the season, the conditions are somewhat different, and although the backwater is there just the same and fish are lying exactly in the same way, nevertheless, owing to the wind and the higher water, you are practically invisible to them. Only last week I told you that on a rough, windy day you could use big flies and stout gut. Why? Simply that the fish would see your fly and not you, and would not be put off by the stout gut (don't forget that a yard and a half of stout gut on a windy day is the thing to use). Fish cannot see you when the surface of the water is much disturbed by the wind.

Secrets of Success

Having roughly described a pool with a backwater, let me now try and explain how you can fish it with success. Imagine the backwater is on the side you happen to be on, and that you are fishing up stream. Imagine also that the water is low and the sun is bright, and it is the month of April.

To start with, you must make up your mind at once whether to fish the backwater or the main stream. There should be little doubt about this, for bear in mind the backwater is nearer to you than the main stream, and to fish the main stream it would be impossible to get directly below in nine cases out of ten, as the mere fact that there is a backwater necessarily means that there is deep water and a strong current. Therefore, the backwater is what you should fish.

On the other hand, should the backwater be on the farther side, leave it alone, and fish the main stream. I hope this explanation is clear.

Now let us get a fish out of this backwater. Firstly, make a detour so as not to be seen by the fish, and get to the tail of the backwater. Here you will find the current forms a semi-circle, and in this portion you are very likely to get a fish, or possibly several. But, like everything else, if you wish to be successful, you must use your head.

It will be perfectly clear to any of my readers, if they have gathered and digested what I have tried to explain, that the semi-circular current where there are undoubtedly some good fish lying, must be fished very carefully.

Now if you cast into it in the ordinary way and leave your cast and part of your line on the water, as you usually do, you will find that you will never catch a fish. Why? Simply because your cast has gone around in a circle, and the line has been dragging the flies; in fact, your flies have been doing everything they shouldn't do.

The right way to fish is briefly this: Make many casts and short ones, and do not let your flies remain in the water more than a second or two. A short line quickly recovered, and the more often you cast, the more likely are you to catch fish.

When you get to the water you will see what I mean, remembering always that no two backwaters are always the same. Here again, it is for you to use your head and observe the current. If you do as I advise you, I am sure you will have no reason to give a pool with a backwater a bad name.

Tale With Moral

Now trout fishing is well on, and many of you will be soon camping out for the week-end, let me take the opportunity of cautioning you about fires. All good sportsmen look to their fires and never leave camp unless their fires are put out. Always make sure of this, and never be satisfied till every vestage of smoke has gone. I can assure you, one and all, that you can never be too careful over this, as the following story will illustrate:

X and I had come up to the Cowichan River for a week's fishing and had pitched our camp near one of our favorite pools. In fact, the place in question was well known, for two other camps were pitched close by. Before starting one morning, I happened to pass one of these camps to find it deserted, but the fire was blazing. I had no idea who the camp belonged to, but nevertheless took upon myself to put out the fire. Having thrown several buckets of water on it, and, not contented with this, I got a spade and threw earth on top and poured more water on the lot and left it, thinking that all would be well.

I then joined X, who was waiting for me, and away we went up stream. About two o'clock that afternoon I noticed smoke coming from the direction of our camp, and at first took little notice of it, but some half an hour later, seeing that it was increasing, I suggested to X that we should both go down and see the cause. Before we got to our camp site we were nearly blinded with smoke. Pushing on a little further, we noticed the grass was on fire, and coming towards us. X and I soon had our coats off, and dipping them in water, we proceeded to check the fire as best we could by trying to beat it out with our coats. By this time we were joined by others, who turned out to be the owners of the two other camps, and, with our united efforts, we were able to check the fire, which luckily had not caught any of the timber. But our camp had fared badly. There was nothing left. Tents and stores had all disappeared. The next camp had fared better, and this is where the fire had started, and this was the fire I had so carefully put out as I thought. The other camp was quite untouched.

Now X and I were in a pretty plight, without tents or stores. Our neighbors kindly offered us shelter and food, which we readily accepted, but I knew our trip must come to an end, as we could not stay longer than a day with our camping neighbors, although they realized that it was entirely owing to them that we were in such a plight.

But things turned out otherwise. X, who had disappeared for some time, now put in an appearance. "I have arranged everything. Have sent to Victoria for tents and grub." "Good man," said I. "How did you manage it?" "Well, I walked up to the main road and waited, and sure enough, a car passed by on its way to Victoria. I stopped it and sent a letter to those chaps I get our grub from; but for the life of me, I could not remember the name. Anyway, I addressed my note to Messrs. Stock and Feedem, near E. and N. Station, which was the nearest I could get to it."

"What did you ask them to do?"

"I asked them to get us a tent and send us grub, and told them as well as I could where we were," was X's reply.

I somehow felt that there was a poor chance of ever getting what we required, and told X so.

But I was wrong, for on our return to camp the following evening, everything was there, tent and all, nothing had been forgotten. A happy pair were we over our camp fire that night discussing a bottle of extra special Scotch and blessing the enterprising firm of "Stock and Feedem."

The fire had not turned out so badly, but once more let me caution all good fishermen to be careful and never leave a fire till absolutely certain that it is out.

Note

Some years ago I went to some trouble to test how far trout could see objects above the water. I found their eyesight very keen on all occasions, except when the water was ruffled by wind, especially in still water. I noticed they were unable to see objects a few feet above the surface. I have actually caught fish standing right over them in still water during a gale of wind.

Useful Hints and Advice

1. Keep out of sight.
2. In bright weather fish up stream.
3. Always be a sportsman.
4. Give your pal the best place, and let him fish in front of you.
5. If you see a fisherman who has caught nothing, help him, and show him the flies you are using, and if he hasn't any of that sort, give him one or two.
6. If you happen to catch an undersized fish, remove the hook very carefully and return him to the water. Don't throw him in, but let him slide away from your hand. Next season you may catch him when he weighs two pounds or more.
7. Always soak your gut well before using.
8. Dry your line when you get back.
9. Use eyed flies.
10. Join the Fish and Game Association. At its meeting you will learn much and get information worth knowing. Besides, you will be helping to improve both the fishing and shooting of the Province.

A FAIRY SONG

Come, follow, follow me,
Ye fairy elves that be,
Light tripping o'er the green
Come follow Mab your queen;
Hand in hand we'll dance around,
For this place is fairy ground.

When mortals are at rest,
And snoring in their nest,
Unheard and unespied,
Through the keyholes we do glide.
Over tables, stools and shelves,
We trip it with our fairy elves.

Then o'er a mushroom's head,
Our tablecloth we spread;
A grain of rye or wheat
The diet that we eat:
Pearly drops of dew we drink,
In acorn cups fill'd to the brink.

The grasshopper, gnat and fly,
Serve for our minstrelsy,
Grace said, we dance awhile,
And so the time beguile;
And if the moon doth hide her head,
The glow worm lights us home to bed.

O'er tops of dewy grass
So nimbly do we pass,
The young and tender stalk
Ne'er bends where we do walk;
Yet in the morning may be seen
Where we the night before have been.

—William Shakespeare

TRACTORS TO THE RESCUE

A sudden strike among the employees at the electricity station in a British town interrupted the supply of current to the local factories and thus brought them to a standstill. Help came, however, from an unexpected quarter. One of the factories was engaged on the mass production of tractors for agricultural and other purposes, and within a few hours a number of tractors were employed to supply the necessary power in this factory. Twelve tractors were belted up to a shaft from which several motors were driven as dynamos, this novel installation giving an average output of 200 horse power. Other tractors were used to drive machines directly. When the news of this got about, demands for the tractors came from other factories, and the emergency service so provided greatly discounted the effect of the strike.

Champlain founded the City of Quebec in 1608.

FACTORIES BOOST AUTO PRODUCTION

Nearly All Plants in East Showing Business Improvement —Ford Sales Have Greatly Increased

DETROIT, Mich., April 30.—Rapid improvement in the automotive industry is reflected in the big increase in production in most of the factories in and around Detroit. This is true particularly in the case of Maxwell, Chalmers, Studebaker, Hupp and Dodge. The only instance where there has not been increased production is at the Reo Motor Car company at Lansing, where the time and working force were cut 50 per cent last week. This, however, was not due to sales recession, but rather was for the purpose of permitting factory readjustments, and return to a full time schedule is expected next week.

Dodge opened up on a ten per cent schedule recently, but last week started on a 60 per cent production basis, which means close to 400 cars daily. Arthur T. Waterfall, assistant general manager, made the announcement regarding the production increase.

Production is Increasing

"Dodge Brothers opened about the middle of March and we are now operating on a 60 per cent basis with all indications pointing to a gradual return to normal. That is the best indication I can give of a change for the better. Other lines of business seem to be following the turn in the automobile industry."

Hupp Motor Car Corporation, which built 700 cars in February, increased the schedule in March to around 1,400. April schedules at Hupp called for a production of 2,000 cars, which rapidly is nearing the peak of last year.

Hupp officials a short time ago announced that while the factory had not been closed throughout the depression and was increasing gradually, there was nothing to indicate that production above 50 per cent of normal would be reached this year. Sales activity, however, has shattered that belief. The more than doubling of production during April, as compared with February, and the great increase over March, are due entirely to sales demand which, Hupp executives say, is showing remarkable improvement.

Studebaker Boosts Schedule

Studebaker has started in on a production in the Detroit plant of 800 cars per week, and 500 in the South Bend plant. "And the best of it is they are being sold," said A. J. Chanter.

Buick Motor Company at Flint, which has been employing about 12,000 men on a three-days-a-week basis, has started a schedule of 5½ days a week. This will mean that Buick in April will almost double its production. Buick was building about 200 cars a day in February and March and indications are that the April schedules will run between 350 and 400.

Ford Motor Company orders total approximately 90,000 cars for April delivery, according to figures furnished by Henry Ford personally, while on the trial trip of the Dearborn, his gasoline propelled railroad coach. That means, he said, that nearly every car and bit of finished stock on hand when the depression set in has been sold.

"The time is not far off," he declared, "when we will have to begin full operation to produce new cars and new parts to take care of the host of orders that come rolling in. Indications are manifest," he asserted, "that the bottom of business depression has been reached and passed, and the trend of industry is now definitely upward."

Ford Is Not So Poor

The annual report of the Ford Motor Company for 1920, filed at Lansing, shows total assets of $384,554,941, as compared with total assets of $332,998,121 in the report for 1919. All of the outstanding stock in the company is shown held by the Ford family—Henry Ford, 95,321 shares; Edsel B. Ford, 71,911, and Clara J. Ford, wife of Henry Ford, 5,413 shares. The amount outstanding totals $17,364,500 of $100,000,000 authorized.

Large sales of cars in the past few weeks have put the company on a much sounder footing than the annual report might indicate. The position now is considered so good by officials at the factory that they think it quite probable no bank loans will be required at present.

BEACONS ON HIGHWAY

Same Danger Colors as Used by Railroads Are Approved—Called Highway Lighthouses

The flashing beacon used on the high seas by the leading nations of the world is now to be used as a highway guide for motorists.

Like the beacon at sea, the city traffic is an unwatched light, automatic in operation for months at a time. Fuel is supplied by an acetylene gas accumulator in the base.

To these beacons and highway lighthouses is applied the national system of colors approved by the committee on standards of the American Association of State Highway Officials and by other national organizations and many cities in the United States. Red is used for first degree danger, yellow for second degree and green for traffic danger only.

Two hundred cities are reported to have standardized on this national color signalling, which is that of the railroad systems, and almost as many have made installation of the flashlight traffic beacon as an effective warning for drivers who are partially or wholly color blind, and those who find it hard to distinguish the ordinary signal from other city lights.

The flashing beacon is the invention of Dr. Gustav Dalen, winner of the Nobel prize in physics in 1912.

LESSON ON COURTESY TO SELFISH DRIVERS

Motorists Should Be Considerate to Rights of Others on the Road — Public Should Consider Motorist

As the number of automobiles increase, so does the opportunity for good manners in motoring. After all, the streets and highways belong to everybody and no one who is at all considerate of others' rights will forget this.

Most lapses from the golden rule of courtesy are due to thoughtlessness rather than deliberate selfishness—but thoughtlessness and automobile driving are a bad combination.

The man whose car waits for five minutes at an unpoliced intersection for a chance to cut across the traffic wonders why none of the score or hundreds of cars will hesitate long enough to make a gap for him, but this same man, were he in the stream of traffic himself, probably would not stop.

Make It Easier For Others

Those who expect courtesy should themselves be courteous. Every day every motorist has at least one occasion upon which he could courteously slow down and allow a fellow motorist to turn his car or could steer to the right or left a little to make it easier for the other man to turn into the main highway from an intersection.

In almost every city there are some streets so frequented during the morning and evening rush hours that the people who live on these streets and own cars can hardly get into or out of their own driveways—because the passing motorists are supremely indifferent.

The courteous motorist will not weave in and out of traffic on narrow roads and force other motorists to give ground to avoid collision, or slip in between two cars so as to compel the man behind to use his brakes for safety.

It isn't courteous to take the corners swiftly and swing wide so that approaching drivers, especially women, are forced to slow down or even be momentarily alarmed.

Where cars are parked and space is limited, the considerate motorist will give thought to those who will come after him and will not park carelessly so as to waste space.

A special chapter might be written on the courtesy of the horn. The horn is a safety signal—not a medium for the expression of impatience when traffic is delayed by a stalled motor a few cars ahead. The horn is not a door-bell to summon friends whom one is picking up to go out to dinner or for a drive. In every block there are sensitive, nervous and sick people who have a right to more consideration than is shown by repeated full-strength, prolonged sounding of the horn. The merit of the modern automobile horn is its carrying power and distinct tone. A very gentle touch on the horn button will warn pedestrians quite as effectively as a blast that paralyzes them with fright. Pedestrians have rights, too, the right to cross to the intersection without waiting five or ten minutes, the right to be warned courteously, if warning is needed at all.

There are some people who contend that automobile horns should be prohibited and the burden of caution placed on the motorist. This is an extreme view—but the reasons that lead to it are plain enough, the abuse of the horn.

It is the inconsiderate, discourteous motorist who brings down the wrath of the public upon all motorists. Men and women who are fortunate enough to own cars, but who have no motoring manners, are to blame for all the opprobrium which at times breaks forth and threatens to enact itself into speed laws of ten miles an hour and higher automobile licence fees.

Even the habitually discourteous motorist suffers and resents the selfishness of others who inflict annoyance upon him. There is only one remedy—to get courtesy, courtesy must be given, a square deal all around.

Licence plates for automobiles are changed every six months in Peru.

COMPLETE TOOL KIT URGENTLY NEEDED

Touring Motorists Should Take Every Precaution Before Starting on Long Trip—Take No Chances

One of the best ways to "doll up" your car at this time in anticipation of a series of enjoyable tours this Spring is to equip it for every reasonable emergency that may arise. While "dolling up" may be interpreted to deal more particularly to fitments that appeal more particularly to the eye, any veteran automobile tourist will tell you that "it's the things you don't see and don't think of that make motoring a real joy-ride or a glide into gloom."

While "dolling up" your car, don't fail to consider the tool box. Here should be the useful articles that every car should carry to provide against emergencies that arise sooner or later with the most careful of drivers.

Among the tire repair tools there should be a wrench for rapidly removing the nuts which hold the tire in place. One should also have a three-in-one valve tool in case the threads on the valve become battered. A box of new plungers is also desirable. A tow rope is indispensable, and it should be long enough to be of real use. No one anticipates being towed, but a tow rope may get you out of a rut or a hole when nothing else would. Besides, you may be disposed to tow someone else.

There are many other things needed in a car by the driver who is going on a tour. One of these is a set of electric light bulbs of the right voltage and candle power for the particular car. These may be bought in sets boxed at any supply store. At the same time, if the car has fuses in the electric system, a set of fuses should be carried. A small ball of stout wire is likewise handy.

Here are some of the other things that should be carried:

A set of ignition brushes boxed and labelled; several extra spark plugs, clean and adjusted, and in a carrier; tire pressure gauge; squirt can of oil, with a flexible nozzle if there are many oil holes in out of the way corners; hydrometer for testing battery, ammeter, or trouble light, for testing electric current; a box each of assorted nuts, assorted cotter pins, assorted cap screws and assorted washers, a spool of copper wire, several lengths of different sizes brass spring wire, a bag of clean waste or rags, and if you like clean hands, a box of the new kind of soap paste which can be used without water.

All of the things enumerated will stow in the tool box or under the seat, if properly wrapped, labelled and packed away. Some of them will not be needed often, but when you need a thing while touring, you need it badly.

Muffler cut-outs are prohibited in Buenos Aires.

Oiling Pump Shaft

Many of the perplexing squeaks from under the hood are due to the accumulation of rust on the pump shaft. The rough particles of rust clinging to the rotating shaft scrape against the sides of the water pump packing nuts, thereby causing a shrill and constant squeaking noise. No particular damage is likely to result from a rusty shaft, but for the driver who aims to have a quiet running engine it is a good plan now and then to clean off the rust by wrapping a strip of emery paper around the shaft while the engine is running slowly. This will polish the surface of the shaft and remove the rough particles of rust that scrape against the packing nuts. With a clean shaft the addition of a few drops of motor oil will produce the right results.

An Automobile Battery Built Like a Bridge and Guaranteed for Two Years

IF this guarantee needed an explanation, this would be it:

We have built this battery like a bridge. We have braced every plate against the terrible strain it must resist, exactly the same way as a bridge is braced. And just as a bridge rarely buckles under its load, so a Diamond Grid plate rarely buckles or short circuits.

In addition, the Philco Slotted Retainer, a new patented feature, adds fully 33% to the extraordinarily long life of the Philco Diamond Grid Battery.

This makes the two-year guarantee conservative.

RACE MEET TO BE HELD IN VANCOUVER

New Speed Models to Be Shown at Hastings Park in the First Dirt Meet of the Season

Racing drivers of the Pacific Northwest who starred here last year are busy preparing for a big season on the dirt tracks this Summer. It is very unlikely that the Victoria Automobile Dealers' Association will bring the meet to Victoria this Summer, as last year the meet did not prove very profitable.

Practically all the drivers have built or purchased new speed models during the Winter months, and these cars will make their first appearance on the Hastings Park track, Vancouver, on May 24. No less than ten of the premier drivers of the Pacific Coast will be on the job.

One of the cars which is causing quite a sensation in Vancouver and is expected to hang up a few records is a 90-h.p. Curtis, built and owned by Charles Erickson. This new model is powered with a Curtis eight-cylinder airplane motor, and with Gus Duray at the wheel there will be some thrills for the devotees of automobile races. Jack Ross, of Seattle, who copped all the laurels last year, has secured a new car, and as the rivalry between these two drivers is very keen the visitors to the May 24 meet will get their money's worth when these two get together.

A card of six races is being arranged which will include one for stock touring cars handled by Vancouver distributors. A handsome silver cup will be hung up for the winner of this event.

AUTO RACERS HELD HUMAN AS ANYBODY

"Pop" Myers Tells of Men Who Flirt With Danger—Interested in Track Events Since He Began With Cycle

INDIANAPOLIS, April 30.—T. E. Myers, an authority on automobile racing, is preparing a group of stories on the daring gasoline charioteers who flirt with fame and fortune in their wonderful speed performances. Mr. Myers is the man who is given credit for the success of the track at Indianapolis, where the International 500-mile race is held each year. He has managed this greatest sporting event in the world for years, and is known to all the drivers and race enthusiasts as "Pop."

Mr. Myers says that, contrary to common belief, the race drivers are sure enough humans, with wives, children, hearts, minds, souls, and an earnest desire for the better things of life. Drivers of whom he writes have already done big things at the Los Angeles races this year, and are now "tuning up" for the annual Indianapolis meet. Later they will be in the Pacific Northwest for the big Fourth of July races at Tacoma. Here is what "Pop" Myers has to say about Ralph De Palma, who captured the laurels at the opening race this year at Los Angeles in February:

"'Of course I'm married, and have other interests in life than racing,' indignantly replied Ralph De Palma, famous racing driver and undoubtedly the real favorite with race enthusiasts as the first answer to a string of questions pounded at him to find out if race drivers are human. 'Why do people always imagine that because we race drivers pilot a car at high speed and do things on the track that appear dangerous we are not human? We all eat three meals a day—if repair bills don't come too high and especially if we win; sleep at night, rest on Sunday, especially since all this blue law agitation, love our wives, homes and enjoy the things that appeal to other people.

Racing Business Matter

"'Racing is a profession with most of us. It is a business proposition that is pleasant and profitable, if you win, and more than that we all feel that we are doing a real service to everybody who enjoys the pleasures of motor-driven vehicles, because practically every motoring refinement and invention has been the result of experiments on the race course.

"'Sure I'll tell you my age.' De Palma smiled. 'I'm not a prima donna. I was born on December 18, 1883, at Troja, Foggia, Italy, and was married in New York City, June 30, 1908. My wife was born in Bienne, Switzerland, and attends the racing events in which I am entered. My family does not seriously object to racing—or, I would probably be engaged in some other line of endeavor, just like you would.'

"Ralph says he knows no fear in any race and if he had it to do all over again he would not only start racing, but would start sooner the next time. The distinguished Italian makes his permanent home in New York City, and has no intention of discontinuing racing.

"He is interested in music, wanted to study mechanics when he was a boy, was a competitor in cycle races when he was but 14 years of age, and was a motorcycle racer in 1902. He began automobile racing in 1908, and has been a prominent figure ever since. He was the circular dirt track champion in 1908, '09, and '10, road racing champion in '12 and '14, won the Vanderbilt Cup race twice, was victorious at Elgin six times, and led the field at Indianapolis in 1915.

Other Sports Enjoyed

"When off the race track De Palma bowls, and is an ardent devotee of water sports. He is interested in all athletics, and derives a lot of enjoyment horseplaying with the De Paolo brothers, his nephews, who are his constant companions in racing. Peter the older, rides in every race with him. De Palma is an automobile engineer of no mean ability and has been mechanically bent since a child. During the war he was a director of flying at McCook Field.

"'The most thrilling thing that ever happened to me on a race course,' said De Palma, 'was at Indianapolis in 1912, when I was leading the field with five miles to go to victory and my car broke down. It was a real thrill to see Joe Dawson flash on to victory as I pushed my car to the pits.

"'I like the Indianapolis race course best because it is not monotonous and a combination of first-class car and a good driver are necessary to make a good showing.' De Palma will drive a Ballot in the International 500-mile race to be held at the Indianapolis motor speedway, Monday, May 30."

FIVE STANDARD TYPES

Although prevalence of the streamline body on most of the passenger cars gives them a noticeable sameness in general aspect, the possibilities of the custom coach-work designer's art are infinite, as appears on the enclosed bodies which feature the exhibit of the finer cars. There are, however, five distinct outstanding types of motor car body, which will be found in almost every show space. The open touring car for five or seven continues to lead in popular estimation, through the sedan with seats for five or seven is gaining steadily, owing to the very practical advantage of the protection it affords the occupants in all kinds of weather, and also to its superior appearance. Then there is the roadster with its enclosed companion, the coupe, and the four passenger sport car, a model that is winning many new friends.

CODE OF CHIVALRY

This is a thought, a message and a plea to the knight motorist that he recall the obligations and ideals of his knightly prototypes of centuries long ago, when noble youths won their spurs, and thought out and achieved high ideals.

What should a driver do? The rules are very simple:

Slow down at crossings.

Signal for a stop or turn to the cars behind by holding out the right hand.

Apply brakes slowly. Change speed rates slowly. Drive carefully.

Be prepared to help any motorist in trouble on roads distant from garages.

Be prepared to give pedestrians "lifts" on country roads.

Stop car and engine when meeting drovers with sheep, swine or cattle on country roads.

Park only at side of roads, leaving fair way.

When buying produce in the country park alongside road, not on the road.

When parking at night, leave warning lights.

Have headlight dimmers and use them when meeting and passing other motorists at night.

When picnicking do not trespass to gather wildflowers, tree branches, blossoms, fruit or shrubs.

When picnicking, clean up thoroughly, removing from sight all cans, papers and rubbish.

Give all vehicles, especially loaded trucks, a good half of the road.

Take hills on the left side of road. Go over the crest carefully. Avoid coasting or speeding around curves at foot of hills.

Be courteous to pedestrians. Do not drive your car at them full tilt, and laugh when they jump. Do not splash water on them as they stand at crossings or near curbs, waiting for you to pass.

Avoid street cars carefully at stops. Learn and follow the local traffic rules, speed limits, and driving ordinances. These are made for the common good of all drivers, including yourself, and of all pedestrians.

MILEAGE RECORD

Probably one reason for the well known fact that most tire manufacturing concerns are experiencing a period of slackness in business is because tires are so much better made than formerly that last year's tires are still going and the demand for new tires is proportionately less. The science of tire making has advanced until the service of the best tires is limited only by the endurance of the materials themselves. Motorists now get from 10,000 to 12,000 miles from a genuinely good tire, whereas 500 to 3,000 miles was the average life of a tire a few years ago. The constant research and experimenting and the expenditure of huge sums of money to make tires that will give this greater mileage, deserves appreciation and the reward the makers of good tires feel is their due is to have the spontaneous patronage of motorists who want full quality at a reasonable price. Be not deceived by any cheap production that can be easily made to look good, and sell at a price to flatter the bargain hunter. Cheap tires are the dearest investment a motorist can make.

As an example of the unusual service rendered by "Gutta Percha" tires, take the experience of the Canadian Express Co., who recently secured over 30,000 miles from two "Gutta Percha" fabric tires on one of their Toronto trucks.

The Litho-Print Co., of Toronto, report over 10,000 miles already on "Gutta Percha" fabrics and the tires are fit for many more miles yet.

Motor car racing in Europe is to be revived in 1921, when at least six important events on the continent and in England will be held during the season. The races of note will be the French Grand Prix, a 500-mile race on the Brooklands track in England, and a road race at Le Mans, France.

The Imperial household garage of the Emperor and Empress of Japan will be completely installed with motor carriages by the first of the year. The delivery of these cars will mark the passing of the last magnificent coaches of state in the Far East.

OPEN SPACES CALL TO ALL DEVOTEES

Springtime Cry of Nature From the Great Outdoors Is in the Air—Get Out Into the Open Once Again

The call of the open spaces is in the air. It is a call that is heard by all with red blood in their veins—young and old alike—in the Springtime of the year. As regularly as the seasons roll around the insistent something that makes us all want to leave behind the noise and turmoil of the city and seek refreshing in the open spaces makes itself felt.

The call is nothing new—it is as old as the beginning of time and it finds a ready response from toilers in all walks of life. It comes with the first breath of Spring sunshine and is answered in a great variety of ways. The man with his little garden plot, attached to his quiet suburban home, answers it by getting out his garden tools, looking on the back shelves for the seed saved from last year; and studying the seed catalogues searching for new varieties to give an added splendor to his castle—be it large or small.

Get Your Car Out

The man with a car that has been laid up all Winter begins to think of having it put into commission for the coming season of sunshine and warmth and is already planning the runs that he will make in the long Summer twilight and over the week-ends. The families that are proud possessors of Summer homes are thinking of moving day and months of rest and quietude far out where the gentle breezes sweep over wide expanses of water and even the slightest flicker stirs the tall grasses and the tree tops into swaying sighing life.

Then there are the folks who are only able to reach the open spaces through an excursion for a day to the lakeside or who plan an annual vacation spent far out and away from the affairs of their humdrum everyday life.

An Irresistible Feeling

To all comes the call in some form or other. It is almost irresistible—It is forced into the background by a feeling of fear, in many instances brought about by a knowledge that the great big outdoors exacts its toll and that a whole-hearted and full response to the call would mean a severance of comforts in the seasons when the sap begins to run.

Victoria, and the surrounding districts, have much more to offer in the way of open spaces than other cities. For the early Spring months when the sap begins to run and the trees are budding and the dead grass of yesteryears is being pushed aside by a new growth, the parks within and around the city present many attractions for a taste of fresh air and freedom after the long Winter. The long stretches of pavement afford opportunities to pedestrians and motorists alike.

Then, a little later, when the frost has all left the ground and the surface of mother earth is once more firm and hard, longer trips are possible and the call is more generally answered. So on through the Summer months the highways and the byways, the rivers and the lakes claim their quota, so that few there are who do not reply at some time or other to the cry of nature.

SHOULD REPAIR LEAK

Slight leaks in hose connections are vital in radiator upper and lower and pump hose junctions, and they are especially worth remedying if the system is filled with costly anti-freeze mixture. When the hose clamp screw will not turn up farther, remove it and place several layers of tire tape between the hose and the clamp.

So much for cure. For prevention make sure that the radiator is kept fastened tightly in place, because a loose radiator will not only loosen the hose connections but may also cause breaks in the lower part of the radiator itself. Wherefore make sure that the two nuts holding the radiator to the frame are kept tightened down, and take up with a wrench any play noticeable in the rod leading from the top of the radiator to the dash.

DON'T SPIN WHEELS TO EXTRICATE YOUR CAR

Once a car is stuck in sand it is useless to try to get it out by spinning the rear wheels. If no progress is made on the first trial, shift to neutral and get busy at the rear wheels. Boards, if they are obtainable, are excellent in allowing the rear wheels to grip. The boards should be placed at the rear of the tires and the car reversed out of the difficulty.

In approaching a sandy spot it is best to speed up a little, holding the steering wheel firmly, so as to be prepared for an emergency. In sand the steering wheels are a little hard to control.

Muddy roads are negotiated in the same way as sandy ones, though usually tire chains will pull a car through mud that is not too deep.

CHANGE RULE OF ROAD

Calgary Board of Trade Asked to Pass Resolution to Have Road Rules Conform

The following article, which might prove of interest to local motorists, appeared in The Calgary Albertan on April 16th.

"Nova Scotia is behind the times in the matter of rules of the road in respect to which side of the street traffic should be directed, and the Halifax board of trade is asking the support of the Calgary board in an effort to make the rules conform all over the Dominion. In that province traffic is directed to the left of the road, as in British Columbia, and evidently this is the cause of considerable trouble to the tourist traffic coming to that province.

"Almost all over the United States the right side of the road is always used, as in Alberta, and tourists arriving there find themselves getting in wrong with the traffic police. The Halifax board of trade, in its communication to Calgary, says:

"'We would request your board to pass a resolution asking the Nova Scotia government to amend the Highway Act to change the rule of the road from left to right to conform with the rest of America.'"

After having driven automobiles all over the world, covering a distance of 70,000 miles, Harrison K. Craner, of Philadelphia, was recently arrested for the first time, in an attempt to pass a traffic stop signal.

Intake Manifold Effects Smoothness of Operation

One of the Most Important Problems Engineer Has to Face When He Designs a Motor Car—Good Distribution Necessary for Even Firing of Cylinders

The importance of the proper proportioning of the intake manifold is little realized by the general public. Here it is that the engineer finds one of the most delicate problems he has to face when he designs a car. In the days of very volatile gasoline there was no trouble at all in converting all of the gasoline into a vapor of gas at atmospheric temperatures and the problem of distribution did not greatly worry the mind of the designer, but nowadays when half of the charge is apt to be in liquid form or very minute spray form, the problem looms up as large and important.

Proper distribution means that each cylinder, whether it is in a four, six, eight, or twelve cylinder engine, gets exactly the same amount of charge, and consequently, fires with exactly the same explosion characteristics. If one cylinder gets more gas than another at any speed or speeds, firing is very apt to be started while another is fairly drenched with wet gasoline.

One of the best tests of an engine is to throttle it down to very low speed on high gear, particularly in heavy pulling. If the car pulls along evenly and smoothly it is a good indication that the distribution is good at very low speeds. Since this is the most difficult point at which to properly distribute the gas, it is very likely that the distribution is good at the higher speeds, as well as at the lower. In the very cold weather—when it is difficult to entirely vaporize the fuel, and when the engine is pulling slowly, thereby depriving the fuel of the helpful aid of high velocity in the gas passages—distribution is apt to be more improperly proportioned between the various cylinders than when the speeds are high, and the fuel is not only broken up mechanically by the high velocities at which it travels, but it is also operating under conditions where it is more likely to be properly distributed than when the speed is so slow that basification becomes a very difficult problem.

We have been hearing a good deal for the last three or four years about the hot-spot intake manifold, and to the average layman the problem is apt to appear very simple; that is, to take a small amount of exhaust heat and apply it to the intake manifold to a sufficient degree to raise the incoming liquid above its boiling point and, consequently, get a vapor into the cylinder instead of a fuel which is filled with globules of liquid.

Were the problem as simple as this, it would have been solved long ago, but as it is, even our best engineers are willing to concede at the present time that although they have learned a lot regarding the pre-heating of the intake manifold, and although the performance it is possible to secure today is far ahead of what was believed possible two or three years ago, they have still a great many things to learn about the handling of the intake gases. Some of the hot-spot manifolds brought out during the past two or three years are highly ingenious and have made it possible to secure practically the same performance with the low-grade gasoline of today as it was possible to secure with the product of high volatility, sold a few years ago.

Five years ago, the responsibility for all this work was put upon the carbureter manufacturer. He was required to make a carbureter which would break up the fuel and gassify it and turn it over to the intake manifold in the form of a very fine fog or vapor. It soon began to be realized, however, as the quality of the gasoline went down, that it was impossible for the carbureter alone to solve the situation. A bad manifold would destroy all the good that the best carbureter in the world would do. In spite of the finely divided, highly atomized mixture which the carbureter would turn over to the intake manifold, if this was improperly designed it was very apt to turn the fuel back into almost its original liquid state, and, furthermore, it was very apt to give one cylinder a great deal more of this mixture than the other.

The result was irregular firing and in Winter difficult starting and a long period required before the engine would warm up and take hold. In the meantime, while all of the raw gas was being fed into the cylinders during the warming up period, it was only partly burned, and the remainder was finding its way down the cylinder walls and into the crankcase, with the result that the crankcase oil was diluted and, consequently the bearing lubrication would suffer. Furthermore, the oil would be washed off the cylinder walls, with the result that these would be partially dry and rapid wear of the cylinder bore and of the piston rings would occur.

Thus, it is seen that the intake manifold is closely wrapped up with the entire question of life of the engine. A poorly designed intake manifold will cause bad lubrication and jerky performance, particularly on heavy pulling at slow speeds on high gear. Very often the car owner will blame the clutch for irregular jerking of the car when it is due to simply bad distribution of the intake manifold, causing one cylinder to give a proper explosion, while another one will give such a weak explosion that the impulses of the engine are extremely irregular.

JAY-WALKER IS BIG WORRY TO AUTOIST

Over 75 Per Cent of Motor Car Accidents Are Due to Pedestrians—Speeding Is Towering Factor

"A few days ago we had occasion to comment on ridiculous statements made by certain people in regard to the increase of automobile fatalities," says R. B. Morley, general manager, Ontario Safety League, in a statement just issued. "We now want to disabuse the minds of motorists of an idea that has sprung up lately, to wit, that 75 per cent to 90 per cent of the motor accidents are due to pedestrians. To hear some people talk one would think that carelessness was an attribute of the pedestrian only, but we know that carelessness, recklessness and thoughtlessness are not confined to any one class. As the safety league's calendar for April says 'Motorists and pedestrians owe it to themselves to go fifty-fifty on the caution stuff.' The motorist should remember that the pedestrian has less chance than the motorist, that he, therefore, cannot afford to be careless, and that in an accident involving both, the pedestrian is the person who always gets the worst of the encounter; that is to say, the driver of the automobile is always in the safer position.

"These efficiency experts who throw the blame in their statistics on the pedestrian as a class include the children. We cannot repeat too often that children are not careless, they are carefree and there is absolutely no excuse of any possible form or manner, that can be offered for a driver taking a chance when the children are or may be on the roadway. It makes little difference to the mother of a child killed, whether the fault lay with her child or the motorist. The old and much-discussed question of speed crops up again. It is easier to stop a car quickly at fifteen than twenty-five miles an hour; it is easier to stop at twenty than at forty miles an hour. But let us repeat in closing that no one group has a corner on the carelessness and that it ill behooves any of us to fellow."

DISTRIBUTION OF WEIGHT BIG PROBLEM

Some Interesting Facts Regarding This Phase of the Automobile Designer's Task Are Given

Of the many problems met in automobile design, that of weight distribution is not the least important, nor is it one that has received the fullest measure of attention on the part of the designer, says a writer in American Motorist.

Like all the tasks imposed by modern automobile construction, weight distribution must be largely a matter of compromise. In this respect the problem resembles that involved in spring design, in which becomes evident the difficulty of providing a spring that will give full resiliency under an empty body as well as under one that is loaded down to its full rated capacity. Similarly, weight distribution becomes a somewhat complex proposition when it is considered that it is impossible to distribute the dead weight of an automobile in such a manner that the mechanical equilibrium will not be interfered with when the car is run with a load or without one.

These questions, however, while interesting to the engineer, are of less importance to the average automobile user, except in the relation they bear to his tire consumption. Here, too, it is impossible to strike a fair mean. It is out of the question to secure for one tire as little wear as is encountered in the other, even though all four tires be of uniform quality and structure. Even in a car carrying the greater part of its weight in front, the greater wear is borne by the rear tires. It must be remembered in this connection that the propulsion of a motor vehicle differs from that of the horse-drawn vehicle in that the latter is pulled over the road, while the former is pushed along by the tractive effort transmitted to the rear or drive wheels. In consequence of the driving stresses, the rolling friction of the road, and the slippage that is absolutely unavoidable, the tires of the rear wheels encounter most of the wear to which the automobile tires are regularly subjected.

As far as the weight of the car itself is concerned, regardless of its distribution, it is common experience that the lightest car produces the smallest tire bills. The fact is that the life of a tire is proportional to the cube of the load it supports, so that if the load be doubled the average wear and tear on the tire will be multiplied by eight.

Test Wheels Regularly

Every car owner ought to make a practice to test the wheels for side play at least three or four times a year. Side play performs a doubly vicious role, for it causes excessive bearing wear and tire wear as well. If the motorist will jack up each wheel in turn and, grasping it firmly, push and pull it, any side motion will be readily apparent. In many cars wheel bearings are adjustable to care for just such trouble.

Ford

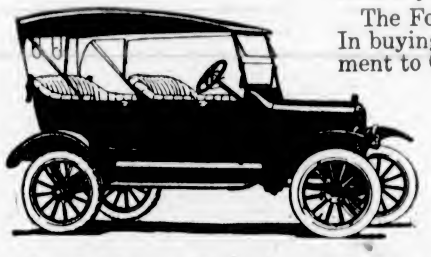

What the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, means to Canada's workmen

FEW people realize that while the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, employs over 3000 men at their factory at Ford, Ontario, there are also upwards of 50,000 people who directly or indirectly are kept busy in Canadian plants filling the demands of this Company for material and finished products.

During the depression of last Fall and Winter practically every automotive factory in the Dominion ceased manufacturing. To assist in relieving the serious Dominion-wide problem of unemployment the Ford Company, at heavy loss, kept its plant running four full days each week. Not only in the Ford factory but in hundreds of other Canadian industrial plants thousands of Canadian workmen were thus given employment throughout the winter.

The yearly payroll of this Company exceeds $4,000,000. Our purchases in one year totaled almost $20,000,000. With the exception of a few parts, which are not procurable in Canada, the whole of the Ford Car is built from materials purchased from Canadian manufacturers.

The Ford is a "Made-in-Canada" Car. In buying a Ford you are giving employment to Canadian workmen.

MIDNIGHT OIL SPENT ON STEERING GEAR

Wonderful Device Was Only Invented After Display of Gray Matter—Car Easily Controlled by Wheel

You don't have to carry a goat and shout "Gee and Haw" until your lungs are sore to steer the auto out of ruts and away from broken glass or other obstructions. It glides about the streets, turns corners and moves up to the curb at the precise distance prescribed by the police, and but a simple twist of the wrist—and not much of that—does it. Why is it that you can steer a car so easily? Well, it took a lot of midnight oil and gray matter to produce this result. Here are some of the reasons why you have so little trouble.

The first autos had a long bar like a tiller on a boat, such as you sometimes see on the electrics today, and there was not much else except the shaft and several levers below to attach the shaft to the axle, first, and then the steering knuckles. It was quite a genius who studied out the latter, after it was discovered that an auto could not go very fast with a loose front axle like a wagon. Improvements followed until today we have an almost vibrationless, easily controlled steering mechanism which does not tire one's arm as though engaged in hard manual labor. Nor is the wheel wrenched out of one's hands as was the old bar or early wheel when there was only a gear and rack to trasmit direction to the wheels.

Transmitted by Lever

The common steering mechanism today consists of a wheel attached to a rod or tube mounted in a housing in which it turns. On the lower end is a worm or spiral gear which meshes with the worm gear or sector, through which proper motion is transmitted by a lever, called a drag link, to one of the steering knuckles on which a wheel is mounted. A rod known as a tie bar connects this knuckles with its mate on which the other front wheel turns, so that they move in common.

Where the throttle and spark control levers are mounted on the hand wheel the steering post is a tube. Within it is another tube to which is attached a lever, controlling, with proper linkage, the throttle. Within this inner tube there is a rod, with a lever on the lower end, and linkage from this controls the spark advance. All the linkage mentoned here has ball and socket connections, easily kept lubricated and clean, and the entire mechanism usually is easy of access, so that there is no excuse for not keeping it in order. And inasmuch as upon its condition much of the comfort of steering depends the wise guy will spend a few minutes occasionally looking after it.

Wear On One Spot

Fortunately there is little trouble with the several devices which make up what is usually denominated the steering gear. About the only wear there is comes to the worm and worm gear or sector. These move together for such a limited part of the thread and gear that all the wear comes practically in one spot. The worm gear is fastened on an eccentric to take up this play, but this only moves the parts together and there might be a binding when the wheel is turned for a sharp curve or corner. So that on an old car where there is much play it is wiser to take off the worm gear and turn the steering wheel half around, then replace the worm gear or sector, or put in a new one, and it will engage a part of the worm which is not worn.

If not kept lubricated the ball and socket joints will wear and give an annoying play, besides making the front wheels wobble excessively, but, there ordinarily will be little trouble between the steering wheel and the steering knuckles with slight attention regularly, according to book.

RADIATOR FOR HOT OIL IS SUGGESTED

Automobile Engineers Plan Internal Cooling System for Engines—Racing Cars Now Use System

Keeping the engine cool by an internal, as well as an external, system is the latest suggestion to automobile engineers.

The plan is to cool the oil in the crankcase by pumping it through a small radiator. The hot oil coming from the engine would be returned cool and would help cool the motor internally.

Racing cars have had oil-cooling systems, especially since their high rate of speed caused the oil to get so hot as to decrease the efficiency of the engine. Automobile engineers, however, say since the average passenger car is not being built for speed the external water-cooling is suitable for the purpose. Fans attached to the crankcase, the engineers believe, are enough to keep the oil cool. But if the highest possible efficiency is desired, the oil-cooling radiator system suggested would come closer to expectations than any heretofore projected.

PACIFIC TRADE OPPORTUNITIES

Prepared by Victoria and Island Development Association

At the request of shippers of British Columbia an investigation was made as to the possibility of selling raspberries and strawberries to jam manufacturers of the Liverpool district. It was proposed to ship the berries in 40-gallon barrels, and in a frozen condition, or alternatively, as fruit pulp.

British manufacturers have, for some time, been importers of raspberry and strawberry pulp from Australia, and of apricot pulp from Spain and California, but have had no experience with frozen berries, and while considerable interest was manifested in the proposition, it was the general view that no business could be done until there had been an opportunity to inspect samples and test the product. Some doubt was also expressed as to the possible deterioration of the berries through the freezing process, and as to the possibility of handling a frozen product to advantage in view of the general lack of cold storage facilities in connection with jam factories. These are points on which successful business would depend and could only be settled by test shipments. Much would also depend on delivered prices, and the price situation in turn, would be dependent on the British berry crop, and the demand for jam.

On the whole, it is likely that it will prove more satisfactory to ship the berries in the form of pulp, for the following reasons:

1. Imported pulp is very largely used by jam manufacturers for carrying on the work of their factories at seasons when fresh berries are not available. Pulp could be sold and shipped at any time of the year. Frozen berries would have to be shipped in June or July, a season which corresponds very closely with the British berry season, and would have to be used at once, as it would be impossible to keep them for any length of time under refrigerator conditions. They would thus meet the direct competition of the fresh berries, very much to their disadvantage.

2. As a new and unknown product, it will be impossible to place orders for frozen berries, without providing samples for inspection and testing. However successful shippers might be in delivering car-lot shipments of a refrigerated product, in a sound condition, it would be very difficult, if not impossible, to deliver frozen samples that would give a fair idea of this method of shipment. Samples of pulp would, no doubt, also be required, but there would be no difficulty in furnishing these.

Fruit pulps in general are not sold direct to the manufacturers, but are dealt with by distributing firms located at the ports, and it is believed that it will be advisable for Canadian shippers to make similar arrangements for the handling of their product.

There is no demand for blackberry pulp, but it ought to be possible to work up a good business in strawberry and raspberry pulp.

In view of the fact that there are at present large amounts of loganberries in storage in Victoria, it has been suggested that these might be placed on the market as pulp fruit. Loganberries are not as well known in England as they are here, and would have to be demonstrated. But once the British public over there became familiar with this delicious fruit, which makes most excellent jam, either alone or combined with raspberry, it is thought there would be a large demand for it.

Iron and Steel Market in India

Although there is a large market for iron and steel products in India, very little is heard there of Canadian iron and steel products. One firm in Madras stated that they were importing both of these commodities from Canada, but their's is only one of few instances. Considering the huge business which the United States has worked up in India in iron and steel products, there seems no reason why the Dominion, particularly now that direct steamship lines have been established, should not be able to do a considerable amount of business in this market.

"Canada has competed in China and Japan in steel bars, and is possibly doing so today, accordingly our steel mills should be able to do equally well in India." Here is one of the many inducements for an iron and steel plant on the Island, for the manufacture of our own ores, for shipment to the Orient. Were we at present prepared to handle business of this kind, there would be no difficulty in attracting steamship lines to this port. Their return tonnage would be assured. We are not prepared at present, but the opportunity is not yet lost.

An important trading company in Japan desires to receive quotations for paper pulp in connection with the requirements of the Japanese Government. Firms desiring to tender are requested to submit quotations c.i.f. Yokohama. Orders are expected to amount to about 600 tons monthly.

MAXWELL REORGANIZES

Receivership Clears Way for Well-Known Company—Expansion of Factory Will Follow

DETROIT, Saturday, April 30.—The reorganization of the Maxwell Motor Company, Inc., today entered upon the final stages leading toward successful completion.

This explains the institution of a temporary and friendly receivership in the United States District Court. The primary purpose of the receivership, which was agreed to by all the interests concerned, is to establish title to the properties under the reorganization.

The court appointed as receiver W. Ledyard Mitchell, president of the company, who, with Arthur E. Barker, general sales manager, has been in active direction of the Maxwell business during the period of the reorganization.

Members of the committee said that this appointment is evidence of the continuance of the policies which have had so much to do with the recent upbuilding of the properties.

They said, further, that the receivership clears the way for carrying out the larger plans which already had been put into operation on a limited basis. Strengthening and expansion of the factory and dealer organizations will proceed along the lines recently followed.

The sale of the properties in accordance with the order of the court no doubt will be advertised almost at once, which will clear the way for the discharge of the receivers and the consummation of the reorganization plan, thus rendering available the new $15,000,000 of cash which has been held ready for months for the use of the company.

B.C. WAPITI HAVE ARRIVED IN LONDON

Present From Government to Zoological Gardens—Other Animals Received and Doing Well

The Government of British Columbia, through the Game Preservation Board, have presented three Wapiti deer—a stag and two hinds—to the Zoological Society. The animals arrived safely at Regent's Park on Wednesday morning, April 6. The stag is a magnificent young animal, standing nearly 5ft. at the shoulder. For safety on the journey he was shipped with the antlers of last season sawn off, and perhaps will not produce a normal "head" this season. But he should certainly do well next year. The hinds are rather smaller and more slightly built, but they, too, look in good condition. The three deer will be kept in the sanatorium for four weeks, in accordance with the regulations of the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries, after which they will be placed in the deer yards, which have been without good examples of the species for many years.

Wapiti belong to the red-deer group, and, like their relatives, have a "brow" and a "bez" tine, above which the antler forms a nearly cylindrical shaft, splitting up into two or more points near the summit. The British red deer ranges eastwards to the Caucasus, and is represented in Asia by a number of species, of which the Kashmir and Yarkand stags are the best known, and the Thian Shan stag of East Turkestan, the largest and most coveted. The Wapiti probably entered the American continent by a land or ice bridge at Behring's Straits. Unfortunately, its common name in Canada is "elk," which leads to confusion with the true elk or moose, the large ungainly deer with palmated antlers.

General Sir Percy Cox, British Commissioner in Mesopotamia, has sent from Baghdad a pair of young Persian gazelles. These pretty little creatures have lyrate horns, deeply ringed, but, unlike most antelopes, the females are horniess. They inhabit the highlands of Persia, and range as far East as the Gobi desert, in Mongolia. Although they are usually gentle and become very tame, the males are bold and will sometimes attack even keepers whom they know.

The Barbary sheep on the Mappin terraces have bred again this year, one ewe giving birth to two lambs. Perhaps the words "lamb" and "sheep" are not exact, because these fine creatures are between the goats and sheep. The hills of the terraces have proved very successful breeding places. Barbary sheep, Thar, Caucasian, Himalayan and Grecian ibex have all bred repeatedly on them, and many of the young have been reared. Within a few hours of birth the young of all these mountain animals are active, and perform marvelous feats of climbing on almost vertical surfaces.

Two of the performing sea-lions which have recently been on the London stage are at present "resting" in the sea-lions' pond.

By paying an annual fee to an electric light company in London, Ont., motorists are permitted to attach a wire from current taps on poles at convenient points throughout the city and heat their radiators while the car is left standing in cold weather.

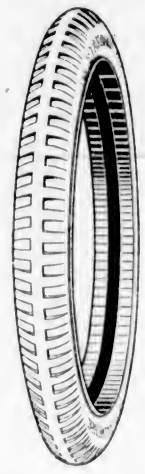

The only European motor trucks now being sold in Mexico are of German origin.

On the highways of Great Britain there are found commercial motor vehicles from Belgium, Canada, Germany, Italy, Switzerland and the United States.

In the 4,790 grade crossing accidents which occurred to motorists during 1919 in the United States, 1,232 persons were killed and 3,558 injured.

Commercial motor vehicles entering Great Britain are exempt from duty. Passenger cars and chassis pay 33 1-3 per cent ad valorem duty.

Special Showing of New Spring Top Coats

Semi-ready Tailored Clothes

have passed through stringent readjustment of all Prices!

Suits are all from $10 to $20 lower

The makers of Semi-ready Suits and Overcoats wrote off $100,000 from their stock of fine woollens—and gave the merchant the full advantage of lower price.

The "label in the pocket" is fixed on the basis of the cost of the cloth. In taking a loss of $100,000 in one period the cost of every Suit and Overcoat was automatically reduced—and this meant away below the present market value—below the replacement cost at prevailing wool values.

Semi-ready Botany Wool Serges that were $70 a year ago are now $55. It is on staple cloth that the earnest purpose of readjustment can be clearly seen.

Spring Top Coats that were $50 last season are $35 and $40 this season.

Fine Worsted Trousering that "went out of sight" a year ago are now back to reasonable prices.

High priced and expensive West of England Worsteds—the pride of the Bond Street tailor—are reduced by $20 and $25 as compared with last season.

Semi-ready Tailoring must not be confused with ordinary ready-made or "branded" clothing by ready-made clothiers.

It is utterly different.

The "inside" or "hidden" tailoring is what makes or mars a coat. Unless the active work within is done by skilled tailors—work that costs time and money—the garment will not hold its shape nor give the service expected.

Because Semi-ready Clothes were designed in correct anatomical proportions—because of their physique type system—the finest and most expensive materials can be finished to the "try-on" stage without risk of their going out of style before finding their admirer.

Fine Botany wool fabrics seldom seen outside of the most exclusive and expensive shops in London are available in the Semi-ready shops at a moderate price.

Expert tailors fit and finish the suits so that they conform to the better class of custom-made.

No man thinks of looking for a better than a Semi-ready Top Coat—anywhere.

SPORTS AND SCENERY AT CAMPBELL RIVER

Northern Section of Island Attracting Fishermen and Tourists From Practically All Parts of World

There is no place on the Vancouver Island Highway as well known to the tourists of Canada and the United States as Campbell River, and there is no place on the Pacific Coast which offers more of interest to pleasure seekers than this famous resort. In fact, Campbell River has as world-wide a reputation for its big salmon fishing as Lillooet has for its big game hunting. It is said among travelers who visit this place annually that these two places are as well known in the United Kingdom as Vancouver and Victoria. The sporting instinct in the Old Country people would naturally make them keen to study the history of such places as Campbell River and Lillooet, which offers so much to the lovers of gun and rod. In the early history of the Hudson's Bay Company, when that corporation owned and exploited the states of Oregon and Washington, it is claimed that this huge territory was lost to the British Empire through the failure of the fish in the Columbia River to rise to the fly of a famous British Admiral. The old seadog did not apparently have any use for a country where the then natives were deaf to the call of civilization, and even the fish had lost all ambition in a sporting sense. The admiral came to the conclusion that such a country would become a more or less useless appendage to the British Empire and was too conscientious in his duty to his king and country to saddle them with the expense and responsibility of possession and protection.

From the above story of the olden days it would be logical to assume that the same admiral held sway over the adjoining coastline of what is now British Columbia and that the sporting instincts of the fish (not to speak of the human species) saved to our gracious Sovereign of those days and to the Empire of the present time this great domain which is destined to become the most treasured possession of the British Crown.

Fish Good Sports

Whether there is any historical value to this story or not, the fact remains that the sporting instinct of the fish in the Campbell River district is of the highest order and that records of the Old Country fishermen, who have visited this locality time after time, and to be found in the old registers of the Willows Hotel, points to the possibility of the admiral's story having permeated through the British Isles. In recent years the excellent sport to be had at Campbell River has spread to many countries and the fishing enthusiasts of the United States, France and even from far away South Africa, have visited these waters to test the truth of the tales of the big catches made at Campbell River which have circulated in the sporting papers throughout the world. The great majority of the visiting fishermen have not been disappointed, for a true sportsman realises that when the fish are biting the fisherman must be "on the job," whether it be at four in the morning or eight o'clock at night, for fish, time, and tide wait for no man. Every man who has experienced the tense excitement of hooking a fifty, sixty, or even a seventy pound Tyee and the scientific handling of these huge fish to a successful landing would willingly give up a whole night's sleep rather than miss a moment of the precious biting time.

Splendid Trout Fishing

It must not be forgotten that big Tyee fishing is not the only sport to be had at Campbell River, for there are the finest and most lively specimens of trout to be caught at the mouth of the river less than a half hour's walk from the hotel. Even at this time of the year (April), splendid catches are being made with the fly by men who come early in the season and have their "pet" locations on the river bank. The fish at this point will rise to the fly up to Christmas time, something unusual in the rivers and lakes of this country.

To go back to the salmon, the fact must not be overlooked that these waters are perhaps the best in the world for the troller or the man who has had little experience with the rod. The man who fishes with the rod must have had some training in the handling of a big fish, but the troller, while not having such tense excitement as the rod man, will find that although this method is more simple, he will have to exercise much judgment to successfully land a thirty or forty-pound fish.

King of Fish

There are stretches of water within a few miles of Campbell River where one can have his "fill" of trolling, for the writer of this article has landed as high as thirty big salmon for not more than two hours' fishing in one day. The trolling is done usually from a rowboat, the line being attached to a stick placed at the side of the boat, showing instantly when a fish is hooked. Many ladies, who annually visit this place, find great pleasure in this sport and in spite of the fact that women never make good fishermen, there are notable exceptions to be found among the ladies who visit the Campbell River district.

Splendid Scenery

While many pleasure seekers visit this place to take advantage of the fine fishing to be had here, there are hundreds of others who come to see the beautiful falls about five miles up the river. A very fine picture of the falls was published in The Colonist a few weeks ago and no doubt attracted a great amount of attention from thousands of its readers. It is claimed that there is no more beautiful sight in the Dominion than the Campbell River Falls, and the people who have been privileged to see this magnificent waterfall have done much to advertise this beauty all over the continent.

Many Interesting Things

The Indian villages at Cape Mudge and other reservations in the vicinity of the river will always attract a big percentage of the visitors to this famous resort on Vancouver Island to purchase a few souvenirs in the shape of baskets and other curios as a reminder of their visit.

Some of the biggest lumber camps in this great Western country can also be inspected by those interested in the industrial side of things in British Columbia. There are no less than five of these big camps in a radius of ten miles of the hotel and can be reached after a pleasant run by boat in an hour or two. Directly across Discovery Passage, at Campbell River, can be seen the little village of Quathiaski, where an up-to-date salmon cannery is in operation during the Summer months, and is usually of great interest to people from inland points.

A ride on the Island Highway from Victoria to Campbell River is one of the most interesting on the Pacific Coast, and every year sees a big increase in the cars coming North, but 1921 will be the banner year for the great highway.

SPECIAL APPEAL FOR KINDNESS TO ANIMALS

Local Society Will Join All Canadian Organizations in Campaign Extending Over First Week in May

"The Being that is in the clouds and air,
That is in the green leaves among the groves,
Maintains a deep and reverential care
For the unoffending creatures whom He loves."

—Wordsworth.

The various humane societies in Canada have resolved to make a special appeal for the cause in which they are interested by conducting annually a "Be Kind to Animals Week" during the first week in May.

The local society has been in existence for 26 years and has been carried on more or less of late by the almost gratuitous work of its officers. Such a society must be regarded as a distinct asset to the economic and moral well-being of the community, and it is much to be regretted that ample funds are not forthcoming to enable the committee to organize the work in a thoroughly efficient manner. The society might well do with two inspectors instead of one very hard-worked and underpaid official.

Visits to outlying districts demand much of the inspector's time, and often the services of a veterinary surgeon are necessary. Some cases, too, require many trips before they are finally settled to the satisfaction of the officials. Such trips cost money, and no call made on the society of the suffering animal world ever goes unheeded. Investigation must be made in every case, whether rightly or wrongly reported. While it is the society's aim to prevent cruelty, there are, of course, cases which demand immediate action.

Thoughtless Cruelties

The abandoning of cats deserves the greatest condemnation and is a serious offence; starving and neglected cattle, overcrowded poultry, lame and neglected animals and other cases of ill-treatment, constitute a large part of the society's work of investigation.

Every humane society throughout the world now conducts a branch of work to help the cause of the performing animal. As a result of the investigations and exposures made by Jack London and other persons, a Jack London club has been formed, with many thousands of members already enrolled. All that is required of members is that they shall refuse to witness or patronize performing animal shows. Many of the best syndicates have already cancelled all such shows, both in England and the States, on account of the cruelty involved in the training of performing animals.

Humane education being the foundation of all reform in connection with cruelty, it is the object of humane societies to interest the children and to get humane teaching introduced into all schools. Here, again, the work of most societies is hampered for lack of funds.

Prizes Offered

The local society has offered essay and poster prizes this year for child competitions, and the results of these will be announced shortly.

When it is realised that there are vast districts in this and other Provinces where no societies for the prevention of cruelty exist, the hope is cherished that kind-hearted and far-seeing persons will lose no time in organising similar societies in their own neighborhoods, for, unfortunately, so long as cruelty exists humane societies must exist also.

Humane Sunday will, it is hoped, be observed on May 1.

A tearoom will be run during the whole week at Room 203, Union Bank Building, from 3 to 6 p.m. Price, 25 cents.

An entertainment will be given in Christ Church Schoolroom on Tuesday, May 3, at 8 p.m. Admission, 25 cents.

Subscriptions may be paid at the tearoom, at David Spencer's (Douglas Street entrance), or to the secretary, 323 Sayward Building.

Mayor's Proclamation

In connection with the event His Worship Mayor Porter has issued the following proclamation:

I am glad to endorse the action of humane societies of Canada in setting aside the first week in May as "Be Kind to Animals Week."

For humane and practical reasons it is at all times important that animals should receive kind and intelligent care, and the observance of such a week upon the characters of children and citizens generally cannot be underestimated.

By virtue of my office as Mayor, I call upon the people of Victoria to observe these days as a time for special attention to the needs of the defenceless and the work of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

(Signed) R. J. PORTER,
Mayor.

BRITAIN'S FIGHT IS THE WORLD'S

It is one of the most difficult problems of the times to educate labor to the fact that it is impossible to continue to pay the increased wages granted during and after the war, and still operate industries successfully.

In fact, it is coming to be a question whether labor leaders ever can be made to listen to reason. We have only to look at the situation in Great Britain to gain an idea of the unreasonableness of labor as a class, or at least as represented by their leaders.

There, a comparatively small part of the community holds, or, at least did hold for a number of days, the threat of "infinite discomfort—even starvation to individuals and ruin to the nation's industries—in its hands as a weapon to bully the people into submission.

The Triple Alliance in its ordinary functions—the railway men, the transport workers and the miners—controls the manufacture and distribution of coal, light, transportation and food. Because of this temporary control of these prime elements which minister to life and comfort, placed in their hands actually in trust by the rest of the people, they proposed, if the miners' demand for wages was not granted, to inflict acute punishment upon the whole community.

In other words, one class, some four million men, held the sword and the torch over the heads of forty million others, with a threat to kill.

This is civil war, with weapons as powerful as guns.

England's fight against it is the fight of the world for justice to the people, and for the actual existence of civilization against an enemy as bull-headed, as relentless and as brutal as the Germans in the World War.

The Question of Rights

The question of the rights of the miners does not enter in here. Even if their cause is just, this does not excuse the methods used to bring about recognition. This is tyranny of the majority, which must not be allowed to score. It is a revolution of a class, against the life of society itself.

The operators and the Government tell the workers that they can no longer support the workers at their present standard of living—that wages must be drastically cut if the industry is to live.

The miners want nationalization. They want a national pool of profits which they claim will produce living wages and keep the industry in healthy condition.

The miners refuse to lower their standard of living. They propose that the Government shall acquire the royalty rights in the mines, obtaining the funds through a bond issue and basing the amount to be paid the owners upon the average returns during the five years before 1914. This, they claim, would give a larger sum than the capital now invested in the properties.

They propose self-government, a national mining council with the present technical managers still employed, but with relations between the managers and the miners made more co-operative.

This may be the proper solution of the problem, but like other Government-conducted operations, the taxpayers might eventually have to make up the deficits. Whatever the merits, the methods employed to bring about the reforms are revolutionary and destructive, threatening the life of society itself, because, if successful, the same drastic force might, and probably would, be applied to take over all industry, and finally the Government.

The strike has been called off or postponed, but the record of the threat cannot be obliterated.—The Bache Review.

The Ideal Laxative for Children

Mothers give the little ones Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin for constipation. Acts mildly and gently. Formula on the package.

THE alert mother, ever anxious to find something better for her children's health, will interest herself in learning what is best to give them when they are constipated, have a headache, cold or fever, are bilious or dyspeptic. It stands to reason that the remedy that might be suitable for you, at your age, might be too drastic for a child.

By all means do what you can to regulate the diet, giving preference to the light, easily digested foods. But when diet fails you will have to help Nature with medicine. It would then be well for you to avoid the harsher cathartics and physics, castor oil, calomel and such, even if disguised in tablets or pills, for they weaken the child and make it irritable.

A better plan is to give half a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin. It acts mildly and gently and does not gripe or weaken. It has the unusual merit of being safe for the tiniest baby yet equally effective for grownups. The formula is plainly on the package, and a sixty-cent bottle is sufficient to last an average family many months.

There is nothing better or safer than Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin for stomach, liver and bowel troubles, and as it contains no narcotics or mercurials, mothers can feel safe in giving it to any member of the family needing a constipation medicine. It is syrupy and delightfully pleasant to take. It must meet the taste of the majority, for last year over eight million bottles were bought in drug stores, the largest sale of the kind in the world.

Buy a sixty-cent bottle today with the understanding that if for any reason it does not do exactly as claimed your money will be refunded. Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin has been on sale in drug stores for thirty years so you would not be experimenting with anything new.

Try It FREE

There are heads of families who will want to prove to their own satisfaction that my Laxative Syrup Pepsin is as effective in constipation, as mild and gentle in action, as pleasant-tasting and safe, as I claim. Let such write me for a sample. It will be sent postpaid. Simply say, "Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 19 Front St., Bridgeburg, Ont.: Send a free trial bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin to—" and give your name and address. I will see that the rest is attended to promptly.

BICYCLE WEEK BIGGEST YET

"Bob" Peden States That This Year All Records Will Be Broken — Cyclists Should Get Machines Out

"This is going to be the biggest 'Bicycle Week' that has been held yet," declared Mr. "Bob" Peden, manager of Peden Brothers, Victoria's pioneer bicycle store, yesterday.

"'Bicycle Week' is being held throughout the whole of the Dominion of Canada this week. The idea of this cycling event is to encourage local people to use bicycles more and for those that have machines to get them out and enjoy the outdoor life. With the Spring weather here and the roads in excellent condition for cycling, no one should fail to enjoy this opportunity of getting outside in the open," stated Mr. Peden.

Is there a boy who does not want a bicycle? Every healthy, growing boy wants a bicycle almost as soon ar he starts school. The boy finds that his wheel is simply great for getting around with. He can do his message for "ma" very quickly and have plenty of time for play afterwards. The boy, with his companions, can get out to the open country, to the woods or to the fishing places without paying car or railway fare. While making these little trips he is getting just the right kind of exercise for his legs, army and body. His lungs are filled with pure fresh air, and he comes home with rosy cheeks and a huge appetite.

Dr. G. F. McCullough, a well-known physician of Iowa, is an ardent bicycle enthusiast and claims that there is not a more healthful recreation than cycling. In his college days Dr. McCullough was an athlete of considerable prominence but he gave up his athletic inclinations soon after he started his practice as a medico. After he had become absorbed in the routine of his work, he found himself becoming soft and his physical condition caused him some concern. Several years ago Dr. McCullough came back to the trusty bicycle and is now one of the best bicycle boosters anywhere. He thoroughly believes in bicycling himself and recommends it to others as the best health-builder within the reach of ordinary men and women.

Don't forget "Bicycle Week" ends Saturday next. Get your bicycle out ready for the road.

CHEAP TRANSPORTATION

Of all forms of transportation, bicycling is the cheapest in the long run. A bicycle costs a comparatively small sum and, in spite of low cost, they can be purchased on terms that enable the rider to pay small weekly or monthly instalments while they are getting all the benefits from the wheel. Many instances have been recorded in which the upkeep of a bicycle has amounted to only a few cents for years of use. Some riders have been known to ride a bicycle for 10,000 miles and during this service the cost for repairs or replacements has not been more than $3 or $4. Of course, these riders have taken care to see that their wheels are always well oiled and adjusted but this work is very simple and does not require more than a few minutes every month or so.

SCOUTS USE WHEELS

Boy Scouts, generally, are much interested in the bicycle. There are the Bicycle Patrols in which each scout is mounted on his bicycle, and then there are the bicycle badges which a scout is able to earn by demonstrating his knowledge of the wheel and by displaying his ability to ride the bicycle well.

Many grown-up folks associate the bicycle with the Boy Scout because they have seen the neatly-uniformed scout so frequently with a bicycle on duty or on an errand bent. The Boy Scouts do use the bicycle a great deal. Various troops have their hikes and outings in which they ride their bicycles and, in doing so, they gain added strength, health and pleasure.

Makes Long Trip

Wide prominence has recently been given to transcontinental and other lengthy tours by bicyclists and others but undoubtedly one of the greatest bicycle rides of all is now being completed by a Swiss named Leuret. He has reached the home stretch of a globe-girdling tour which he started from Geneva, Switzerland, seven years ago. His route carried him through Russia, Siberia, Japan, South America, the United States, a portion of Canada, the West Indies and France. Judging by reports of this and other tours, it is possible to reach any destination with the help of a bicycle.

Rides Bicycle

Earle Williams was quite noted as a bicycle racer before he became a moving picture star. He did quite a lot of his riding in California. It is interesting to note that he has returned to the use of the bicycle as a facility for his work for the screen. Recently, he rode out to a location in the country to make an important scene for his latest picture, "The Mystery of the Silver Car."

Inadequate Definition

The following definition of a bicycle is given in Noah Webster's Dictionary: "A light vehicle, having two wheels, one behind the other. It has a steering handle and a saddle." This is not considered quite adequate, now, for a description of the present-day bicycle with its economic, time-saving and health-giving qualities.

MONTREAL HAS THIRD OLDEST BICYCLE CLUB

The Oldest Club in World Is Pickwick Club, of London, England, and Still in Existence

The oldest bicycle club in the world is the Pickwick Bicycle Club of London, England, and it is still going strong. The Pickwickians recently held their fifty-first annual meeting.

The Boston Bicycle Club is credited with being the second oldest, while the Montreal Bicycle Club comes third, in point of venerable age. The Montreal Club recently held its forty-fourth annual meeting, when real old-time cycling enthusiasts were elected to the various offices.

The captain of the Montreal Bicycle Club is Ald. Louis Rubenstein, who has been the president of the Canadian Wheelmen's Association for the past eighteen years. R. E. Melville, the club's treasurer, is the manager of the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association and secretary of the Quebec branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada. Art Harries, of Montreal, is the 1921 president of the club.

Incidently, the Canadian Wheelmen's Association is acknowledged to be the oldest continuous sport governing association in Canada. The C. W. A. gave evidence of ever youthful energy this Spring in holding an enthusiastic convention at Toronto to start its forty-first year.

CAPTURES ALL TITLES

It is very interesting to know that Canada's sturdy manhood stood the test very successfully in the national professional bicycle championships of the United States last year. All of the 1920 professional sprint championships were won by two Canadian cyclists, who have become famous because of their athletic ability, thanks to the bicycle. Arthur Spencer, of Toronto, won seven of the eight United States championships during the season, and his brother, Willie, captured the eighth title, so that all of the U.S. honors went to the one family.

BICYCLE SERVICE

Scattered across Canada are approximately one thousand authorized bicycle service stations. They are to be found in every city and town, and have been appointed as such because they are fitted to care for any possible service wants that riders may require. They carry a complete stock of reliable parts and accessories, and they have repair departments in which replacements and overhauling can be carried out efficiently and economically. These service stations are designated by special signs, which are displayed at the store entrance or over the store front.

Bicycle Racer

One of the bicycle racing stars of Los Angeles, Cal., is Clyde Arbuckle, brother of "Fatty" Arbuckle, the famous film comedian. The one-mile state bicycle championship was won by Clyde at the recent opening of the brand new Los Angeles bicycle track, and "Fatty" was ticked far more than if he had accomplished a real movie stunt.

Beats Walking

"No use talking, cycling beats walking," is the interesting slogan that has been adopted for the bicycle. This short sentence indicates, to a great extent, all the usefulness, pleasure and economy that can be secured in bicycling.

Some time ago an Indian was much surprised to seen a man riding a bicycle. "White man heap much lasy; he walk fast sitting down," exclaimed the Redskin.

Young Bicycle Rider

The youngest bicycle rider in either Canada or the United States is said to be the tiny son of G.A. Wenige, of London, Ontario, the well-known bicycle booster. The baby cyclist will be three years old on September 11 next, yet he is able to ride a two-wheeled bicycle with ease. This fact only serves to demonstrate that a toddler is not too young to enjoy the numerous benefits of cycling.

The automobile industry is declared to be the second largest industry in the world, employing two hundred and eighty allied trades and carrying ten per cent of the world's commerce.

The total output of gasoline produced during the first nine months of 1920 amounted to 3,500,000,000 gallons, as compared with 2,900,000,000 gallons during the same period in 1919.

The evolution of travel throughout the ages, from the earliest day when primitive man had only his two legs to carry him to the modern automobiles, is now to be shown in motion pictures for the first time.

An "automobile muff" has been invented to keep the hands of the motorist warm while driving in cold weather. Securely fastened to the steering wheel is a light but rigid framework of steel over which the muff of padded cloth or fur is fitted. The arrangement is such that the person driving can operate the wheel with ease.

BIG GUNS FIRE FOR OPENING

"Bicycle Week" Opened Yesterday, and Will Continue Until Saturday Next—"Ride a Bike" Slogan

Yesterday marked the opening of "Bicycle Week."

Each year Canada observes a "Bicycle Week" so that the value of the simple bicycle for practical uses, healthful exercise, sport, economy and other purposes may be emphasized. Bicycle Week is generally scheduled each year for the first week in May—just when all active and energetic boys and girls, men and women, are seeking the great outdoors once more in search of health-giving outdoor life. This year the week selected started yesterday and winds up next Saturday, May 7.

Since 1915 Bicycle Week has been celebrated throughout the Dominion each year, and the cycling festival has been adopted by enthusiasts in the United States, so that the event is celebrated simultaneously in all cities and towns throughout the whole of the North American Continent.

The bicycle is not useful to the boy alone, as some imagine. The silent two-wheeler is being used by many thousands of young and older men, girls and women to take them to and from their daily work quickly and conveniently. The bicycle permits a person to save much money in car fares and it is also a great time saver. The rider, in practically all cases, can get home quickly for a warm meal at noon and thus avoid the slow, crowded street cars at the rush hours. The cyclist will generally find, too, that he will have a few minutes to spare extra in which to attend to little duties around the house or to rest after the dinner before making the return ride to the office or factory.

CALGARY MAYOR MADE START WITH BICYCLE

Rode Hundreds of Miles Along Trails of Manitoba and Saskatchewan Rustling for Magazine

Mayor Adams, of Calgary, Alberta, owes much to the bicycle for his start towards business success in Western Canada. When only a young man, the present mayor of Calgary rode hundreds of miles along the trails of Manitoba and Saskatchewan on his trusty bicycle in order to secure magazine subscriptions and to sell books. He was able to reach many out-of-the-way places, and, thus, picked up considerable business which was missed by those who stuck to the main-traveled routes.

In a recent interview, Mayor Adams readily admitted that he rode all over the Prairies on a bicycle and had carried on the work of a publication solicitor while he was attending college at Winnipeg. Through this activity, the mayor gained a sturdiness of constitution and a knowledge of human nature, as well as a familiarity with the country that have helped him considerably throughout his career. He was elected to the Calgary mayoralty last January.

PEARL WHITE TELLS HOW TO HELP ANKLES

Pearl White, the moving picture star, recently advised all women to ride a bicycle if they desired to have beautiful ankles. The screen celebrity declared that the use of the pedals for even only twenty minutes each day would make a difference.

"This is the quickest and easiest way to bring about the desired effect," said Miss White. "If women would but realize it, they can easily work off the extra flesh of the ankles and present them as they were intended to be—objects of beauty and grace."

Ride a Bicycle

You'll Enjoy the Exercise of Riding to Business—You'll Save Money, Too!

Take pencil and paper and figure it out for yourself. The money you spend every day on street car fares is absolutely lost to you at the end of a year. But on the other hand, invest that same sum by monthly instalments in a bicycle and you will have a substantial asset to show at the year's end.

The Canadian-Made "Perfect" Bicycle shown at this store in models for men, women and children is the strongest, most reliable bicycle obtainable in Canada today. It is a Canadian product, planned and built by men who understand your requirements.

These high-grade bicycles are moderately priced and are sold on an installment plan of

HANDICRAFT IN THE HOME

BY ALICE URQUHART FEWELL

A PARASOL MADE FROM AN OLD UMBRELLA FRAME

One is sure to find somewhere around the house an old discarded umbrella with the covering split or worn beyond repair, but with a frame still in good condition. If you have this old umbrella I can tell you how to utilize the frame to make a lovely new parasol for the early Spring days.

First decide on the material to be used for the parasol. There are many pretty silk or silk and cotton fabrics in the stores which are suitable for this purpose. Pongee silk makes an attractive parasol, and is inexpensive to buy. When one has decided on the material and the color, the old umbrella frame may be painted and made over to harmonize with the new covering. Two yards of material of any width will be required to make the parasol. When selecting the material a good selvage edge is necessary as this edge forms the bottom edge of the sections of the parasol. If one does not care to use the selvage, a hem may be turned lengthwise along the selvage edges of the silk, and then hemstitched by machine.

Remove the cover from the old umbrella, and selecting one section which is in good condition rip it carefully from the others. This is to be used as a pattern for cutting the new cover. The frame may now be paint-paint. For a light colored silk parasol a white enamel frame will look well, or the frame may be painted some shade of green, or any other color to harmonize with the new cover. The handle is probably of the old-fashioned straight type and made of wood. This may also be painted with the enamel paint and brought up to date by inserting in the straight handle a loop of silk cord to match the paint. The straight handle is shown in Fig. 1, while the loop handle is pictured in Fig. 2. To insert the loop of cord, first bore a hole through the end of the handle. Put the cord through this hole, and sew the loop together, having the ends come together end to end. Pull the loop until this joint comes inside the hole, where it will not show, and fasten it here with a little glue.

Press out the section from the old umbrella which is to be used for a pattern, and from this take measurements for the new cover making a pattern on paper first. Take the measurements by following the diagram shown between Fig. 1 and Fig. 2. First measure along the selvage on the umbrella section, and then draw the line on the paper. This line is marked BB on the diagram. Next measure from the tip of the section down through the centre to the base of the triangle, and draw the line AA. Measure the short line across the tip of the section and draw the line XY. Connect the points BX and the points BY, and the triangle is complete. The pattern must be drafted in this way since the bias edges of the umbrella section are stretched and would not give an accurate measurement. To check up the pattern, measure down one of the umbrella ribs from the top to the eyelet at the bottom, and be sure this measurement corresponds with the lines BX and BY on the diagram. If the measurement is not correct the line must be made longer or shorter as the case may be.

Cut the pattern from the paper, and then lay it on the material. Most umbrellas have seven sections, and seven pieces must be cut by this pattern. The pattern is layed on the material so that the base of the triangle BB comes along the selvage of the cloth. Cut three sections from one selvage, and four from the other.

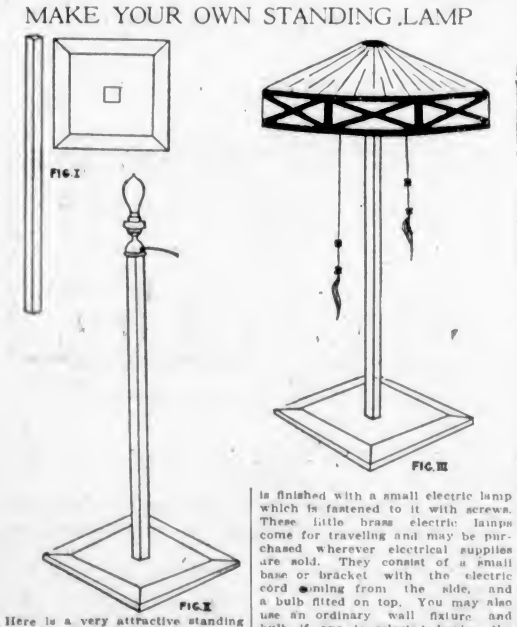

Sew the sections together on the machine, taking the same kind of a seam as that on the old umbrella. On the umbrella frame adjust a small round lining at the tip, using the old lining as a pattern. Slip the new parasol cover over the tip of the umbrella frame. If the opening at the top is too small to go over the tip and shield of the frame, one of the seams may be ripped a little, and sewed in place again. Run a heavy thread around the top opening of the cover, and pull it up until it fits tight. Turn in the edges with a pair of scissors, and buttonhole around the opening to give strength. This is done with the frame closed. Now tack the points where the sections come together to the eyelets on the end of each rib. Each seam must also be tacked to the rib in one or two places also. Where the points are fastened to the ribs the material should be turned in, and several threads wrapped securely around the eyelet to make it strong. The parasol is now complete with the exception of the button and strap which holds it when shut. Make a strap of the new material like the one on the old umbrella, and sew a button to one section, placing the strap in the position it occupied on the umbrella.

BORDER FOR A GUEST TOWEL

This attractive border for the end of a guest towel is embroidered in outline and darning stitches, and will work up very quickly and effectively. One-half of the border is given here, the dotted line at the left being the centre of the pattern. Transfer the border with carbon paper to one end of a guest towel placing it just above the hem. The open space in the centre of the border is left for an initial or monogram. The pattern is worked with colored embroidery cotton, two colors being used. Either yellow or pink for the flowers and green for the leaves and stems gives a pleasing result. Work around the flowers, leaves and stems with an outline stitch. The two lines at the bottom of the border, and the single line at the top are worked in the same stitch, using green cotton. The background is also done in green with a darning stitch. When transferring the pattern it is not necessary to trace the dotted lines for the background, as the darning is easily done by weaving in and out of the heavy threads on a huck towel.

MAKE YOUR OWN STANDING LAMP

Here is a very attractive standing lamp which is easy to reproduce at home. To make the lamp you will require a post of wood two inches square and five feet long, and a square piece of wood for the base which is two inches thick and sixteen inches square. At the mill where the lumber is purchased you can easily have the piece of wood for the base bevelled on the top edges as shown in Fig. 1. Fig. 2 shows another view of the base with the edge bevelled. In the centre of the base a small square must be cut the exact size of the post, and it must extend only partly through the thickness of the wood.

The lamp may either be made of smooth lumber, and when completed finished with a mahogany stain or enamel paint, or it may be made of a rougher piece of wood, and covered with rep in a color to match the shade.

To put the lamp together place the post in the small square opening cut for it in the centre of the base piece, and secure it in this position by screwing through from the bottom side of base into the bottom end of the post. To make this very secure it is well to use two long screws. It is also well to put carpenter's glue on the bottom of the post before it is placed in position on the base. The top of the post is finished with a small electric lamp which is fastened to it with screws. These little brass electric lamps come for travelling and may be purchased wherever electrical supplies are sold. They consist of a small base or bracket with the electric cord coming from the side, and a bulb fitted on top. You may also use an ordinary wall fixture and bulb if one is selected having the cord coming from the side of the fixture as shown in Fig. 2. Screw the little lamp or wall fixture to the top of the upright post. Some of the lamps have screw holes in the base. If there are no holes a plumber can easily make them.

The lamp should be fitted with a very large bulb to give a good light, as only one light is provided. The cord comes out from under the shade when the lamp is complete, and may be attached to any side or floor plug in the room where it is to be used.

This lamp would be most attractive if the wood were finished in ivory or gray enamel paint. The shade rests on a wire frame which goes down over the bulb. These frames can be bought at an electrical supply shop. Fig. 3 shows the completed lamp adorned with a shade.

If one does not want the lamp painted the wood may be covered with rep or ribbed silk, and then finished with gilt braid. Paste the material to the base piece before the lamp is put together, and paste a piece also around the post. Put the lamp together as described above, and finish all the edges and corners with gilt braid. The braid is glued on, and finishes all raw edges left where the material was pasted to the wood.

INDIANS PROTEST AGAINST OPPRESSION

Manifesto Issued by Island and Mainland Tribes—Laws of White Men Are Arbitrary and Unjust

The Colonist has been asked to publish the following protest:

We, the various Indian tribes of the Mainland and Vancouver Island, vigorously protest against the present law regulating use of our Indian costume.

We were created by Almighty God, with rights equal to any other race. From time immemorial our people have never had any trouble among themselves, or with any other race. Now laws have been made prohibiting our potlatch and our Indian costume. What would the white man say if we Indians were to stop him from holding his picnics or feasts or celebrations? He would certainly say, "You have no right to interfere, as you do not know anything about our customs or society."

Do white people really understand us Indians? Can a white man live the Indian life? Were white men Indians, they could probably understand what both potlatch and our costumes mean to us.

Indians have an ancestral "honor," and equally with the Scotchman, a costume. Speaking plainly, does following the white man's ways and fashions give the right to rob us of our cherished observances and traditions or make us less Indian?

Section 149 of the Indian Act says: it is unlawful to hold any Indian festival, dance or other ceremony, or to give or to "pay back" money, goods or any other articles. Is it wise to prohibit Indians paying other Indians what is owing to them? I think not. It is teaching Indians to be untrue and dishonest. Our Indian is always willing to pay what he owes.

We want to ask the public, "Has Mr. Thomas O'Connell, of the Dominion police at Nanaimo, arrested any Indians through trouble of any potlatch or dance? Never. The Indians always perform their customs in a peaceful manner. There is no trouble on the part of the Indian if left alone, and the better Indians themselves object to any liquor coming in. By all means let us have the dance, the festival and the potlatch. It is the Indian's right because it is the white man's right, and we will not abuse that right.

Yours respectfully,
SIMON PIERRE,
Secretary.

HEADACHES

Make Life Miserable

Headaches are one of the most aggravating troubles one can have, and it is hard to struggle along with a head that aches and pains all the time.

Headaches seem to be habitual with many people; some are seldom if ever, free from them, suffering continually from the dull throbbings, the intense pains; sometimes in one part, sometimes in another, and then again over the whole head.

There is only one way to get relief from these persistent headaches, and that is by going direct to the seat of the trouble, for unless the cause is removed, the headaches will still continue to exist.

The fact that Burdock Blood Bitters keep the stomach, liver and bowels toned up is proof enough to show that it will eliminate the cause of the headaches.

Mrs. Harold Lanain, Owen Sound, Ont., writes:—"My system was run down and my blood out of order. I suffered a great deal from severe pains in my head, which made me feel very miserable. After having tried other remedies I purchased a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and was very glad to notice a decided improvement in my health, so I took another, and am glad to say that it has done me an enormous amount of good. I have recommended it to my friends who were in a similar condition, and they all say it is a wonderful remedy."

CLUB DEVELOPING TOURING SERVICE

Victoria Automobile Association Busy Working on Important Branch—Establishing Eastern Connections

Taking into consideration the extent of the touring information service as furnished by the Victoria Automobile Club alone justifies membership in the club. In less than six months connection has been established with all the clubs of the Pacific Northwest and many Eastern clubs, as far as Chicago. The presentation of the club membership card at the office of any of these organizations insures for the motorist their complete information service. Another important factor to be considered is the recognition accorded members of one club by those of a like organization. If you are in trouble on the road and the emblem of the club is in evidence on your car you are assured assistance by passing motorists, whether members of your own club or some other, whereas with no club emblem displayed you run the risk of being passed by.

The club has established very close relations with the Automobile Club of Southern California and is now supplied with a weekly road report covering the Western States and especially the Coast district. This also applies to the Chicago Motor Club, whose weekly report covers more particularly the middle and Eastern part of the country. These reports are kept posted up in the club office and will be found invaluable to motorists planning trips in these parts.

Negotiations have been entered into with the Canadian Good Roads Association and the Good Roads League of B. C. looking to affiliation with these organizations. These are both strong and influential bodies and a great deal has been accomplished by them in the cause of good roads. Mayor Porter, who is to represent the city at the convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association at Halifax on May 10 and 11, has also been requested to act as representative of the club. An invitation to make this city the convention city of 1922 has been forwarded to the secretary of the association.

Grand Trunk Meeting Called

LONDON, April 30.—The Grand Trunk Railway Company has called a meeting of the shareholders for May 12, at which reports will be heard from President Howard G. Kelly and others, regarding the proposition of the Canadian Government to take over the control of the railway in the immediate future.

A small concrete moat around fig trees has been found a sure prevention against raids by fig eating ants of California.

Lenine and Trotzky

Lenine and Trotzky worked together as thick as thieves and raised merryell with Russia, then they made laws, and the big guys that objected to them were thrown into prison with permission to bite the iron bars till they wore their teeth out. In one sense we have followed old Lenine and Trotzky's stunt by raising Cain with our big sale, but we can buy the goods and at a price that enables YOU to be in the unique position of buying wholesale during our

"MAXIMUMISM"

The Toronto Saturday Night, under the heading "The Grub-All Policy of Wage Earners Leads to the Bread Line," states that Maximumism might be the description of the idea of those deluded workers in Great Britain who were thundering against society to obtain the last possible shilling they can extract from the community for their services. Maximumism, which might be interpreted to mean "all we can get," is dangerous because its limits are not set or defined.

Statistics show that 88% of the people do not start to accumulate wealth until they are forty years of age. They practice "maximumism" in investments, and some come to the bread line.

We would like to press upon you the necessity of investing carefully. You have not given the investment in bonds the time and study it deserves.

If a Dominion Government guaranteed bond, that we sell, goes up five points during this year, as it has during the past four months, your investment would net a profit of 13.50%. This is "all we can get" by investments with no guarantee.

We believe Government Bonds will increase in value to approximately the values of 1914.

Bonds are sold by us on the instalment plan.

Banking Service for All

AS the majority of the first directorate of the Bank of Montreal, formed in 1817, were Scotchmen or bore Scotch names it was but natural that they should seek in Canada "to extend and to perpetuate for the farmer and the merchant the benefits and stimulus of a system the worth of which Scotland's prosperity could abundantly prove." One of the outstanding features of the system was the maintenance of numerous branches by banks of large capital.

The Bank of Montreal, in adopting this feature from the outset, laid the foundations of a service by which branches have been established throughout the entire Dominion.

At each of these branches the full service of the complete organization is available.

Through this service the Bank of Montreal offers to all classes of the community, from the smallest savings depositor to the largest commercial organization, good and adequate banking facilities. Each customer whether his account be large or small is welcome as a client of the institution.

MOTOR GROUP SHOWS UNUSUAL ACTIVITY

Related Issues Are Also in Active Demand — Rails Are Neglected — Oils Recover From Early Depression

NEW YORK, April 30.—Selected issues were in urgent demand during today's brief but active session, Motor and related shares, especially rubber, overshadowed all others at gains of 1 to almost 3 points.

Leather, food and chemical issues, also were prominent at similar gains, but recent favorites of the industrial class were sluggish and uncertain, while rails figured only nominally.

Sales, 672,400 shares.

Liberty bonds forfeited part of yesterday's general advance, but the bond market in general was steady. Total sales, par value, $5,270,000.

For the second time since early in April the clearing house statement of actual conditions revealed a deficit in actual reserves, the loss of about $3,445,340 resulting from a cash decrease of slightly more than $15,-002,000 in cash holdings.

Otherwise the statement failed to reflect to any extent the pronounced increase of stock market activity, loans and discounts showing only a trifling expansion.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET

WINNIPEG, April 30.—Today's short session of the wheat market, both cash and futures, was inclined to be dull, and only a small volume of business was worked. Shippers reported little inquiry for new business from the seaboard.

After the lower opening both May and July wheat advanced, May reached a high of 121⅜ and July 123¾, keeping fairly steady around these figures. The close was ¼ to ⅜ cent higher.

In the cash market the demand was not urgent, and the early offerings being fairly liberal, the premium lowered 2 cents at 17 cents over for the May.

The oats market was active, and there was evidently a rush to unload holdings of May before the delivery month opens on Monday. A large volume of business went through during the first hour. Oats closed ⅜ to ¼ cent lower; barley ¾ cent higher to unchanged; flax 5⅛ cents to 4⅜ cents higher, and rye unchanged.

UP! SCOTLAND!

Contributed

The Scots appear to have had rather a rough time lately in the local prints. It is high time that the old claymore was unearthed, sharpened on both sides, and given a preparatory whistle through the air.

Some insipid and insidious remarks have appeared as ascribed to an individual laboring under the appelative of Blatter.

The name is synonymous undoubtedly with the Anglo-Saxon, Bladder, Blighter, Bleater and Bloater, with the Scots' Blether and Bluiter (pronounced Blitter and meaning a gurgling noise generally of dirty water).

Blatter also is analogous in name with the Irish form, which is O'Blatterate.

Blotter might also be well applied and even used so effectively in fact as to result in complete obliteration, in which case no "argumentum baculinium" would be necessary and the untarnished claymore would once more glide gracefully and sweetly to her resting-sheath.

It would naturally be more satisfactory for any Scot to reply in his own language, to an attack on his beloved bagpipes. But here he is at a disadvantage as the neglected education of the "Puds" prevent them from comprehending his meaning. The attempts made by those uneducated ones to pronounce this same language are a thousand times more terrifying to the Scots than the sound of the Piedmohr is to the Sassenach detractor, and if the Blatters will take the risk of dislocating a jaw or two, they have in their mouths a far more effective weapon of scatteration than ever can be placed in their hands, be it pen or sword. This mode of attack is, however, probably being nurtured in obscurity, pro re nata, for a special emergency.

There may be considerable strategy in this attempt to trample upon the bagpipe. It is a wind instrument and if there is one commodity of which the detractors have an unlimited supply it is wind. "Rem acu tetigiste," which being interpreted reads, "You have touched the thing with a needle." But we are on guard. Oh, Blatter! The Scottish bagpipe, like the Scottish thistle is a nasty article on which to attempt to sit. It has a horrible habit of bobbing up again or someone else has to do the bobbing, and there is invariable recovery, though the terrifying, expiring wail may temporarily deceive the unwary.

A figure under an umbrella, presumably a Scottish patriot paying his respect before the Victoria statue, has also been drawn before the piercing and critical eyes of the local Scots.

At first sight it might have been mistaken for a Premier preparing for a rainy day. However, we understand that this matter has already been attended to, and besides, we conscientiously believe that such authorities have enough sense to come in out of the rain or to avoid the deluge by other means.

Maxweltown Brays, Balqhildder Brays and now Balmoral Brays, and could the two former also have been summoned from the spirit world then might they all three well have appeared together singing an assinine conglomeration of discordant brays and full of spirit, that dear old fiery cross melody so applicable to any gathering of the clans, to wit, "Come Under My Old Umbrella'."

* * *

"Ill fared it then with Rhoderic Dhu
That in the ground his tarque he throw."

Blatter we shan't discharge our Pen
But "Will ye no' come back again?"

An endless belt for unloading motor trucks has been invented. The power for operation is made by the rear wheels of a truck resting on rollers.

BUY NUGGET

The Gold Mining Industry is now rapidly coming back to normal conditions. Wages and working costs have fallen, while the value of the product has not depreciated.

The Nugget Gold Mines, Limited, has now completed final arrangements for the commencement of Milling operations, which start next week (May 1st). With approximately 6,000 tons of ore in the stopes already broken, and the engagement of a double crew of workmen, naturally indicates that extensive operations are about to commence. We strongly advise the purchase of Nugget around the present price of 12½ cents per share. It will show a substantial appreciation during the current year.

We will be glad to furnish all particulars upon request.

LIBERALS ENTERTAIN FRIENDS AT NANAIMO

Addresses by Ministers and Others Followed by Concert and Dance

NANAIMO, April 30.—The Nanaimo Liberal Association gave a most successful concert, whist drive and dance in the Odd Fellows' Hall last night, there being a bumper attendance. Among the visitors present were Hon. Wm. Sloan, Minister of Mines; Attorney-General J. W. deB. Farris; Hon. Dr. McLean, Minister of Education; Mr. Thos. Menzies, member for Comox; and Mr. J. S. Cowper, of Vancouver, who briefly addressed the gathering during the evening. A fine programme of instrumental and vocal selections was given by local talent and the function was brought to a close with a dance which was attended by over one hundred couples.

SOCIAL EVENING HELD AT ROYAL OAK HALL

A large number of the parishioners and friends of St. Michael's gathered in the Royal Oak Hall on Tuesday evening to enjoy the good time arranged for them by the members of the Parochial Forward Committee. The chief form of entertainment was a series of progressive games, three minutes being allowed for each game. The players, entering heartily into the spirit of the evening, made the whole affair a great success. The ladies' and gentlemen's prizes were carried off by Mrs. W. Coton and Mr. Pearson respectively, each winning a total of twelve games, while the booby prize was claimed by Gordon Thorpe.

A short musical programme composed of a pianoforte solo by Miss Peacey and songs by Mrs. Towler, Mrs. Wood and Mr. Ibbertson, Sr., was greatly enjoyed by all, after which dainty refreshments were dispensed, and the evening brought to a conclusion by the singing of the National Anthem. Rev. C. R. Littler kindly acted as chairman.

An auction of cakes at the close of the entertainment made it possible for practically all the expenses of the evening to be met.

"THREE K'S" WILL APPEAR AT METCHOSIN

Concert and Dance Likely to Be Most Popular Event of Season

METCHOSIN, April 30.—Arrangements are being made to have the Three K's Concert Party, of Victoria, give a grand concert in Metchosin Hall on Friday, May 13, commencing at 8:30 p.m. The Three K's have gained much popularity by their performances in the city, and are in great demand by the pleasure-seeking public.

It is planned to have a concert lasting two hours, followed by dancing, the music for the dancing being provided by the splendid orchestra that accompanies the concert party. Supper is to be served at the conclusion of the concert. This will give the management opportunity to prepare the floor for the dancers.

A concert party of twelve members, with all their equipment, costumes, etc., and orchestra requires considerable handling, and it is not likely that they will visit the country districts very often. It is therefore hoped that everyone in Metchosin and surrounding districts will arrange to be present. Everyone can be assured of a most enjoyable evening.

COURTENAY NEWS NOTES

COURTENAY, April 26.—The business men of the city have raised a fund for the purpose of putting tarvia on the main street, and work will commence in a few days. The city is co-operating and it is expected that the Government Engineer's Department will lend some assistance, as Union Street is a portion of the Island Highway.

The three ships of the Canadian navy, now in port, continue to be a centre of attraction and on visitors' days, Wednesday and Sunday, are thronged with sightseers.

Citizens of Courtenay on Wednesday placed their motor cars at the disposal of the captain and officers of the Canadian navy and journeyed to Cumberland, to allow the men of the fleet to inspect the coal mines. They were met at Cumberland by officials of the mining company and taken on a thorough tour of Canadian Colliery Company's property.

The dance held in honor of the men of the navy, on Thursday night, was largely attended and a good time was enjoyed until early morning. It was given under the auspices of the G.U.V.A. Auxiliary.

Mr. Charles Pigott has opened a grocery store in his block on Union Street. Miss Pigott is in charge.

Mr. E. H. Hicks-Beach, official in charge of the taking of the census in Comox district, is busily engaged making preparations for the work next week. He will issue instructions to candidates for enumerators' work and will be ready for service on the first of June.

About forty motor cars from Cumberland, carrying the school children of the coal city, passed through Courtenay, on Thursday, bound for Comox for an inspection of the navy vessels.

The body of the late Mike Povelitch was forwarded by boat Wednesday, for burial at Vancouver. The body was accompanied by the deceased's brother, who had come on Tuesday from Merritt.

NANAIMO NEWS NOTES

NANAIMO, April 30.—At yesterday's regular meeting of the Nanaimo Rotary Club, Mr. G. S. Pearson was re-elected president and Mr. Harvey Murphy vice-president by unanimous vote of the members.

At the home of the bride's parents yesterday, Miss Doris Dobinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Dobinson, Haliburton Street, was united in marriage to Mr. G. F. Bennett, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Bennett, Wellington. Miss Martha Dobinson, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, the groom being supported by his brother, Mr. William Bennett. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Balderston.

The afternoon tea held by the Brechin School was a pronounced success, the net proceeds from the sales amounting to over $100. Those who attended were surprised by the novel form of decorations employed throughout. The whole of the interior had been converted into a woodland dell by means of evergreens and moss. Tea was served on rustic tables by little fairies prettily attired in rainbow colors. Two dainty fairies accompanied by their fairy princess arrived from Fairyland to guard the large fruit cake and basket of candy to be raffled, which resulted in the fruit cake being won by Mrs. H. Wilson, Brechin, and the basket of candy by Miss E. May, of Newcastle Townsite.

Sherlock Holmes Stories

The Adventure of The Norwood Builder.

The story thus far:
A young man, announcing himself as the unhappy John Hector McFarlane, presents himself before Sherlock Holmes and asks for help. He tells Holmes he expects to be arrested on the charge of murdering Mr. Jonas Oldacre, of Lower Norwood, but could go to jail if he knew Holmes were working to free him. He calls the attention of Holmes and Watson to an article which he reads from a morning paper. This article says that late the preceding night Mr. Oldacre, a builder of Norwood, a rich bachelor of fifty-two, was killed. About twelve o'clock an alarm of fire was turned in for a small timber yard behind his house. The fire could not be extinguished until the entire pile had been burned. Mr. Oldacre could not be found, and an examination of his room showed that he had not slept there and that a struggle had occurred. Slight traces of blood were found, and a walking stick, identified as belonging to John Hector McFarlane, was found. There were evidences of some heavy body having been dragged from his room through the French windows to the pile of lumber, and charred remains were found in the ashes.

Just as McFarlane finished reading, Lestrade, a member of the Scotland Yard detective force, burst into the room and arrested McFarlane. Holmes convinced Lestrade to give McFarlane time to tell his story before taking him to jail. McFarlane said that many years ago his parents knew Oldacre, but that he did not. The afternoon before Oldacre had come to see him—he was a lawyer—giving him his will and asking him to cast it into shape. What was McFarlane's surprise to read that Oldacre made him his sole heir. The will was duly signed and witnessed and Mr. Oldacre then asked McFarlane to come to his house that night, as there were some documents there that needed explaining. He made McFarlane promise not to mention the affair to his parents until everything was settled. That evening he went to Oldacre's house and was shown in by a middle-aged woman. He went to Oldacre's bedroom, where there was a huge safe. From this Oldacre took many documents and it was almost midnight when they had finished looking them over. McFarlane remembered that the window looking on the garden was open, with the blinds only partly drawn. McFarlane left Oldacre before midnight, and knew nothing more until he read of the crime in the morning paper. McFarlane then left with the police officers, but Lestrade stayed to talk to Holmes, who picked up the will and read it.

From the irregularity of the writing Holmes deducted that the will had been written on a train, the clearly split-ends at the stations. This bore out McFarlane's statement that Oldacre had said the will was drawn up the preceding day on his way home. Holmes and Lestrade went over several different theories of the murder, but Lestrade always insisted that McFarlane was logically the murderer. When he had gone, Holmes departed for Blackheath, where McFarlane lived, but returned later to tell Watson he could get no clues to exonerate McFarlane. He had seen his mother, who admitted that Oldacre was an old suitor of hers, whom she refused because of his heartless treatment of animals. She showed Holmes a photograph of herself which she had given Oldacre and which he had returned to her on her wedding day, slashed across with a knife. Then Holmes went to Oldacre's house and examined it. In the ashes were found trouser buttons with the mark of Oldacre's tailor on them.

Holmes found some documents missing from the safe, which seemed odd, as McFarlane, if he had been the murderer, would have no object in robbing what he was about to inherit. Then Holmes examined the housekeeper, and felt convinced that she knew more than she would tell. The next morning Lestrade sent for them and told them he had conclusive proof of McFarlane's guilt, for on the wall of the hall was a thumb mark of blood. The mark was that of McFarlane's thumb. "That is final," said Lestrade. "Yes, that it final," said Holmes.

Lestrade said the housekeeper had drawn their attention to this mark. Holmes insisted that the mark was not there the day before when he examined the hall. Holmes then asked the men all to go with him to an upper hall and asked a couple of policemen to set fire to some straw which they brought from an outhouse. A man stood ready to extinguish it with a couple of buckets of water. As soon as it was burning all of them, at Holmes' request, joined in a cry of "Fire!"

PART SIX

It had hardly died away when an amazing thing happened. A door suddenly flew open out of what appeared to be solid wall at the end of the corridor, and a little, wizened man darted out of it, like a rabbit out of its burrow.

"Capital!" said Holmes, calmly. "Watson, a bucket of water over the straw. That will do! Lestrade, allow me to present you with your principal witness, Mr. Jonas Oldacre."

The detective stared at the newcomer with blank amazement. The latter was blinking in the bright light of the corridor, and peering at us and the smouldering fire. It was an odious face—crafty, vicious, malignant, with shifty, light-gray eyes and white lashes.

"What's this, then?" said Lestrade, at last. "What have you been doing all this time, eh?"

Oldacre gave an uneasy laugh, shrinking back from the furious red face of the angry detective.

"I have done no harm."

"No harm? You have done your best to get an innocent man hanged. If it wasn't for this gentleman here, I am not sure that you would not have succeeded."

The wretched creature began to whimper.

"I am sure, sir, it was only my practical joke."

"Oh, a joke, was it? You won't find the laugh on your side, I promise you. Take him down and keep him in the sitting-room until I come, Mr. Holmes," he continued, when they had gone, "I could not speak before the constables, but I don't mind saying, in the presence of Dr. Watson, that this is the brightest thing that you have done yet, though it is a mystery to me how you did it. You have saved an innocent man's life, and you have prevented a very grave scandal, which would have ruined my reputation in the force."

Holmes smiled, and clapped Lestrade upon the shoulder.

"Instead of being ruined, my good sir, you will find that your reputation has been enormously enhanced. Just make a few alterations in that report which you were writing, and they will understand how hard it is to throw dust in the eyes of Inspector Lestrade."

"And you don't want your name to appear?"

"Not at all. The work is its own reward. Perhaps I shall get the credit also at some distant day, when I permit my zealous historian to lay out his foolscap once more—eh, Watson? Well, now, let us see where this rat has been lurking."

A lath-and-plaster partition had been run across the passage six feet from the end, with a door cunningly concealed in it. It was lit within by slits under the eaves. A few articles of furniture and a supply of food and water were within, together with a number of books and papers.

"There's the advantage of being a builder," said Holmes, as we came out. "He was able to fix up his own little hiding-place without any confederate—save, of course, that precious housekeeper of his, whom I should lose no time in adding to your bag, Lestrade."

"I'll take your advice. But how did you know of this place, Mr. Holmes?"

"I made up my mind that the fellow was hiding in the house. When I paced one corridor and found it six feet shorter than the corresponding one below, it was pretty clear where he was. I thought he had not the nerve to lie quiet before an alarm of fire. We could, of course, have gone in and taken him, but it amused me to make him reveal himself, besides, I owed you a little mystification, Lestrade, for your chaff this morning."

"Well, sir, you certainly got equal with me on that. But how in the world did you know he was in the house at all?"

"The thumb-mark, Lestrade. You said it was final; and so it was, in a very different sense. I knew it had not been there the day before. I pay a good deal of attention to matters of detail, as you may have observed, and I had examined the hall, and was sure that the wall was clear. Therefore, it had been put on during the night."

"But how?"

"Very simply. When those packets were sealed up, Jonas Oldacre got McFarlane to secure one of the seals by putting his thumb upon the soft wax. It would be done so quickly and so naturally, that I dare say the young man himself has no recollection of it. Very likely it just so happened, and Oldacre himself had no notion of the use he would put it to. Brooding over the case in that den of his, it suddenly struck him what absolutely damning evidence he could make against McFarlane by using that thumb-mark. It was the simplest thing in the world for him to take a wax impression from the seal, to moisten it in as much blood as he could get from a pin-prick, and to put the mark upon the wall during the night, either with his own hand or with that of his housekeeper. If you examine among those documents which he took with him into his retreat, I will lay you a wager that you find the seal with the thumb-mark upon it."

"Wonderful!" said Lestrade. "Wonderful! It's all as clear as crystal, as you put it. But what is the object of this deep deception, Mr. Holmes?"

It was amusing to me to see how the detective's overbearing manner had changed suddenly to that of a child asking questions of its teacher.

"Well, I don't think that is very hard to explain. A very deep, malicious, vindictive person is the gentleman who is now waiting for us downstairs. You know that he was once refused by McFarlane's mother? You don't? I told you that you should go to Blackheath first and Norwood afterwards. Well, this injury, as he would consider it, rankled in his wicked, scheming brain, and all his life he has longed for vengeance, but never seen his chance. During the last year or two, things have gone against him—secret speculation I think—and he finds himself in a bad way. He determines to swindle his creditors, and for this purpose he pays large cheques to a certain Mr. Corneltous, who is, I imagine, himself under another name. I have not traced these cheques yet, but I have no doubt that they were banked under that name at some provincial town where Oldacre from time to time led a double existence. He intended to change his name altogether, draw his money, and vanish, starting life again elsewhere."

"Well, that's likely enough."

"It would strike him that in disappearing he might throw all pursuit off his track, and at the same time have an ample and crushing revenge upon his old sweetheart, if he could give the impression that he had been murdered by her only child. It was a masterpiece of villainy, and he carried it out like a master. The idea of the will, which would give an obvious motive for the crime, the secret visit unknown to his own parents, the retention of the stick, the blood, and the animal remains and buttons in the wood-pile, all were admirable. It was a net from which it seemed to me, a few hours ago, that there was no possible escape. But he had not that supreme gift of the artist, the knowledge of when to stop. He wished to improve that which was already perfect—to draw the rope tighter yet round the neck of his unfortunate victim—and so he ruined all. Let us descend, Lestrade. There are just one or two questions that I would ask him."

The malignant creature was seated in his own parlor, with a policeman upon each side of him.

"It was a joke, my good sir—a practical joke, nothing more," he whined incessantly. "I assure you, sir, that I simply concealed myself in order to see the effect of my disappearance, and I am sure that you would not be so unjust as to imagine that I would have allowed any harm to befall poor young Mr. McFarlane."

"That's for a jury to decide," said Lestrade. "Anyhow, we shall have you on a charge of conspiracy, if not for attempted murder."

"And you'll probably find that your creditors will impound the banking account of Mr. Cornelious," said Holmes.

The little man started, and turned his malignant eyes upon my friend.

"I have to thank you for a good deal," said he. "Perhaps I'll pay my debt some day."

Holmes smiled indulgently.

"I fancy that, for some few years, you will find your time very fully occupied," said he. "By the way, what was it you put into the wood-pile besides your old trousers? A dead dog, or rabbits, or what? You won't tell? Dear me, how very unkind of you! Well, well, I daresay that a couple of rabbits would account for both the blood and the charred ashes. If ever you write an account, Watson, you can make rabbits serve your turn."

Winter months into a place of amusement, providing for music, suitable indoor games, with concession privileges let out that will help provide for the maintenance. To this end the fullest support of this association should be given to the action of the Chamber of Commerce in the furthering of its plans toward the establishment of an amusement centre. It is the opinion of your commissioner that the project of a salt water swimming bath should be set aside until the undertaking of a convention and amusement pavilion is assured. Information shows that swimming baths even in Los Angeles, the continent's greatest tourist centre, and of special mention, the Fleishman baths, of New York, with that city's vast population, have not been a financial success.

Thanks to the City Council, and to others concluded the report.
